V Character adjectives

1 READING

- a What kinds of people do you admire most? Why?
- b Look at photos a and b. What do you think these people have done that make other people admire them?
- c Read Apple's design genius and The woman who reinvented children's TV quickly and check your answers.
- d Read the texts again and answer the questions. Write JI (Jony Ive), JC (Joan Ganz Cooney) or B (both).

Who ... ?

- 1 had training in their area of work
- 2 carried out some research
- 3 set up their own company
- 4 was one of the first people in their role
- 5 initially found the work challenging
- 6 was interested in other people's learning
- 7 believes the things we use should be beautiful
- 8 has won prizes for their work

- e Who do you think is more inspiring, Jony Ive or Joan Ganz Cooney? Why?

Apple's design geniu

I've always loved great design. Ever since I can remember, I've been fascinated by the shape and look of objects. In my opinion, Apple Inc. is the number one company in the world for product design.

In the time that ¹you're reading this article, around 750 iPhones and 300 iPads will be sold internationally. These iconic devices generate millions of pounds a day for Apple, and the man behind their iconic look is known as a 'design genius'. In 2013, Time Magazine listed him as one of the 100 most influential people in the world, but can you name him?

If you said Steve Jobs, you'd be wrong, although it was Jobs who first recognised this man's talent. His name is Jony Ive.

Born in London, Jony Ive studied industrial design at Newcastle Polytechnic. After graduating, ²he helped set up the London design agency Tangerine. In 1992, while ³he was working at Tangerine, he accepted a job offer from Apple.

His first years in the job were tough and the design work wasn't very interesting. The company was also struggling to make money. However, when Steve Jobs returned to Apple in 1997 and saw the design work that Ive ⁴had produced, he immediately recognised Ive's ability and promoted him. Ive's first success in his new role was the design of the original, colourful iMac in 1998, which was quickly followed by the first iPod in 2001. Thanks to Ive's simple, elegant designs, Apple became one of the most successful companies in the world. Since then, ⁵he has been responsible for the iPhone, iPad and Apple Watch. Ive's design involves not only the way these products look but also the way they work. ⁶He believes devices have to be both beautiful and practical.

Jony Ive's key contribution to Apple is now being recognised and he has received numerous awards. There is no doubt that Steve Jobs was a larger-than-life ideas man and businessman who created a hugely successful company. However, without Jony Ive's design talent, Apple may not have become such a huge success.

So what have I learnt from Jony Ive? That the best designs are often the simplest.

THE WOMAN WHO REINVENTED CHILDREN'S TV

I've always felt passionate about television's ability to entertain and educate. I grew up watching what I consider to be a master class in how you can combine these two aspects of television: Sesame Street. This is the programme that brought us Big Bird, Elmo, Cookie Monster and friends. They're all the invention of a woman I consider a genius: Joan Ganz Cooney.

In the mid-1960s, Ganz Cooney was working as a producer of television documentary programmes in America. She realised television could play an important role in the education of pre-school children. She researched this idea and, in 1967, she wrote an outline for Sesame Street.

Ganz Cooney presented her ideas to the TV channel she was working for at the time. However, the channel rejected her proposal, saying that they thought she didn't have the right experience to produce a TV programme for children. As a result, she set up Children's Television Workshop with a colleague, and two years later they had managed to raise eight million dollars to finance production. Even so, many people working in the television industry questioned her ability to manage such a project. This was during the 1960s, when the industry was largely controlled by men.

At first, Ganz Cooney didn't want to fight to keep her role as the director of the production company and the producer of the programme. However, her husband and a colleague encouraged her to do so, because they knew the project would fail without her involvement. This meant she became one of the first female television executives in America.

In 1969, two years after her initial research, Sesame Street went on air, and today it's still going strong. However, Joan Ganz Cooney didn't stop there. She continued to take an interest in early childhood education, and in 2007, she set up a centre to help improve children's digital literacy. I really admire the way she has quietly got on with helping young children. She's not a household name like Big Bird, but she's had a huge impact on the education of millions of children around the world.

Sesame Street Facts

- more than 120 million viewers worldwide
- shown in more than 140 different countries
- now has a production budget of around $17 million a year

G Questions

V Trying and succeeding

The 30-day challenge

Have you ever started a new hobby, but given up after only a couple of weeks? Or started a course and stopped after the first few lessons? Most of us have tried to learn something new, but very few of us ever really get any good at it – it's just too difficult to continue doing something new.

But now there's some good news: did you know that if you can keep up your new hobby for just 30 days, you have a much better chance of succeeding? And you may learn something new about yourself too.

d What examples of 30-day challenges did you hear? Use words from both boxes for each challenge.

Cycle everywhere, even if it rains.

rise poem coffee new picture mountains everywhere

e What do you think of the ideas Alison talks about? Make notes.

f Compare your ideas.

3 READING

- a Look at challenges 1–3. Who do you think will find it easy and who will find it difficult?
- b Read the interviews and check your ideas.

30-DAY CHALLENGE

Challenge 1:
Farah decided not to eat meat.

What made you decide to become vegetarian, Farah?

Well, for quite a long time now I've been trying to eat less meat, partly for health reasons. I think vegetables are better for you.

Yes, but I always thought I'd miss meat too much. The idea of being a vegetarian for 30 days was really good, because I could give it a try and then see how I feel.

2

No, I feel really good. Actually, I don't miss meat at all, so I think I'll easily manage the 30 days and I might try carrying on longer. I certainly think I'm a bit healthier than I used to be.

Challenge 2: Mona decided to draw something every day.

Mona, why did you decide to draw something every day?

Well, I've never been very good at drawing, but I've always thought I'd like to start drawing things around me. It's one of those things that you think about doing, but you never get round to.

All kinds of things. At the start I drew objects around me at home. Then I went out in my lunch break and started drawing things outdoors, like yesterday I drew a duck in the park – that was really difficult!

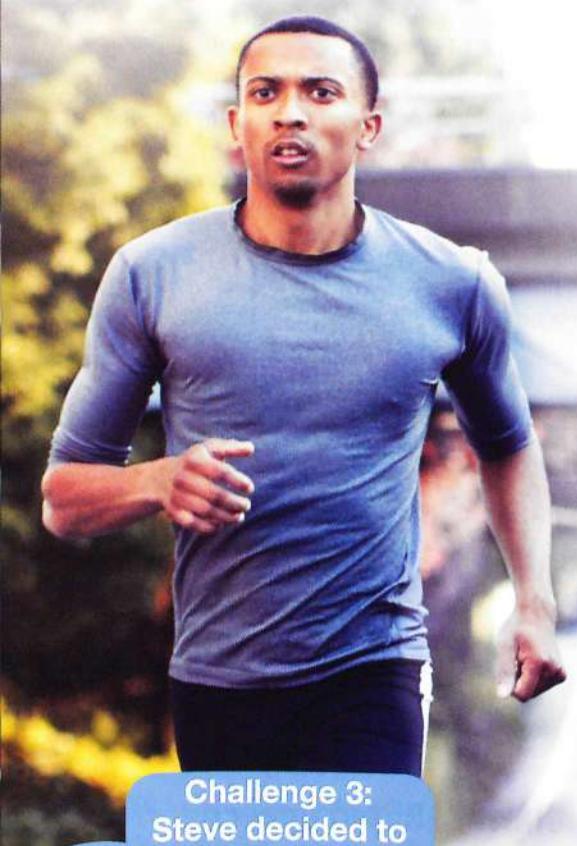

So do you feel it has been worthwhile?

Oh yes, definitely. I'm still not very good at drawing, but it's been lots of fun and it's very relaxing.

c Complete the interviews with the missing questions.

- a And who do you practise with? Or are you just working alone?
- b But didn't you ever think of being vegetarian before?
- c And how do you feel? Are you finding it difficult?
- d And do you think you'll carry on after the 30 days?
- e What have you drawn pictures of so far?

d Listen and check your answers.

Challenge 3: Steve decided to learn Italian.

Steve, what language did you decide to learn?

Well, I thought I'd choose a language that isn't too different from English, so I decided to try Italian.

Isn't it difficult to keep going with it?

Yes, it is. I've had to be very strict with myself. I'm using a book with a CD, so I usually try to cover one lesson a night.

4 Well, there's an Italian restaurant just round the corner and I'm friends with the owner, so I go there and I chat to him. That's one reason I chose Italian.

5 Maybe, or I might try a different language every month. I'm thinking of trying Japanese next.

4 GRAMMAR Questions

a Read the rules about questions. Find examples of each type of question in the interviews and 3c.

1 In questions, we usually put the auxiliary verb before the subject. If there is no auxiliary verb, we add do or did.

Are you making dinner? Have you eaten?

What did you eat?

2 If the question word (who, what or which) is the subject, we keep normal word order.

Who spoke to you? What happened next?

3 If a question has a preposition, it can come at the end:

You were talking to someone. → Who were you talking to?

4 To ask an opinion, we often ask questions starting with a phrase like Do you think ... ?

Is it a good idea? → Do you think it's a good idea?

b Compare examples a and b.

a Did you see her at the party?

b Didn't you see her at the party?

Which example ... ?

1 is a neutral question (= maybe she was there, maybe not)

2 expresses surprise (= I'm sure she was there)

c Compare examples c and d.

c Which colour do you want?

d What colour do you want?

Which example ... ?

1 asks about an open choice (there may be lots of colours to choose from)

2 asks about a limited range (e.g. black, red or green)

d Now go to Grammar Focus on p.134

e Work in pairs. You are going to role-play two of the interviews in 3b and continue with your own questions.

1 Choose one of the interviews.

Student A: Interview Student B. Add your own questions.

Student B: Answer Student A's questions using your own ideas.

2 Choose a second interview. This time Student B interviews Student A.

5 SPEAKING

a Work in pairs.

1 Write down three challenges you might do in the next three months.

1 Write a short poem every day

2 Get up at dawn

3 Go running

2 Look at your partner's challenges. Write some questions to ask about each one. Ask about:

- reasons for doing the challenge
- details of what he/she plans to do
- how he/she feels about it.

Are you planning to ... ?

1 LISTENING

a Discuss the questions.

- 1 In your country, how do students manage financially? Do they ... ?
 - rely on their parents
 - get a part-time job
 - use student loans
- 2 What do you think is the best way? Why?
- 3 If you had to do a part-time job to earn some money as a student, what job would you choose and why?

b Look at the photo of Tessa and Becky from Part 1. Who do you think they are?

- 1 tourists visiting a famous building
- 2 college students doing a course
- 3 journalists who have just done an interview

c 1.15 Watch or listen to Part 1 and check your ideas.

d 1.15 Watch or listen again. Answer the questions.

- 1 Are Becky and Tessa friends? How do you know?
- 2 Why does Becky have to go?

e 1.16 Watch or listen to Part 2. Are these sentences true or false?

- 1 Becky and Tom are married.
- 2 Becky is free this evening.
- 3 Becky is in a hurry.

2 CONVERSATION SKILLS

Breaking off a conversation

a 1.17 Look at these ways to break off a conversation and say goodbye.

- 1 I really must go now.
- 2 I must run.
- 3 I've got no time to talk now.
- 4 I'll see you tomorrow.

Listen to the speaker. Which words does she not use in 1–4?

b Look at some more ways to break off a conversation. Which words has the speaker not included?

- | | |
|----------------------|------------------------|
| 1 Must be off now. | 3 Can't talk just now. |
| 2 Talk to you later. | 4 Nice talking to you. |

3 PRONUNCIATION Rapid speech

a 1.18 In rapid speech we often leave out sounds. Listen to the phrases below. Which sound is left out? Is it a consonant sound or a vowel sound?

- | | |
|------------|--------------|
| 1 must go | 3 got to go |
| 2 must run | 4 can't talk |

b Read the conversation. Put B's replies in order. Is more than one order possible?

- A So how was your holiday?
B Got to go. / Sorry. / Can't talk now. / It was great.
A OK, well, have a nice evening.
B Bye. / See you tomorrow. / Yeah, thanks. / Must be off now.

c Work in pairs. Have short conversations.

Student A: Tell Student B about what you did last weekend. Continue until he/she stops you.

Student B: You're in a hurry. Use expressions in 2b and 3b to break off the conversation.

Then swap roles.

4 LISTENING

- a 1.19 Watch or listen to Part 3. What happens to Becky? Choose the correct answer.

- 1 Becky meets Sam and learns how to make coffee.
- 2 Becky learns how to handle food and meets a café customer.

- b 1.19 Watch or listen again. Answer the questions.

- 1 Sam explains two things to Becky. What are they?
- 2 What does Phil do in the café?
- 3 Why do they call him 'JK'?
- 4 Who is Emma?

- c Discuss the questions with other students. Give reasons for your answers.

- 1 Do you think the others like Phil coming to the café?
- 2 Do you think Becky will be good at her new job?

- d 1.20 Watch or listen to Part 4. Which of these topics do Tom and Becky mention?

coffee food Becky's new job the reason Tom is here
Phil's book their wedding plans

- e 1.20 Watch or listen again. What do Tom and Becky say about each topic?

5 USEFUL LANGUAGE

Explaining and checking understanding

- a Look at the expressions Sam uses to explain what to do. Put the words in italics in the correct order.

- 1 most / thing / is, / the / important don't touch the food.
- 2 to / always / remember use these tongs.
- 3 is, / remember / thing / to / another the tables are all numbered.

- b 1.21 Listen and check your answers.

- c Why does Sam use these expressions?

- 1 because he needs time to think
- 2 because he's not sure
- 3 to emphasise important points

- d Look at these ways to check that someone has understood an explanation. Complete the questions with the endings in the box.

the idea? got that? clear? I mean?

- 1 Is that ...
- 2 Do you understand what ...
- 3 Have you ...
- 4 Do you get ...

- e 1.22 Pronunciation Listen to each question in 5d said in two ways. Which way sounds ... ?

- friendly and polite
- unfriendly and not so polite

To sound friendly, does the speaker's voice go up () or down () at the end?

- f Practise asking the questions in 5d in a friendly and polite way.

- g Here are some other things Sam could explain to Becky. Imagine what he could say using language in 5a and 5d. What could Becky say to show she has understood?

- 1 how to clear and arrange a table when a customer leaves
- 2 what to do with the coffee machine at closing time
- 3 what to do if customers leave something behind

- h Practise the conversation in 5g. Swap roles.

6 SPEAKING

- a Choose a process you are familiar with or something you know how to do. It could be:

- something connected with a sport or a hobby
- how to use a machine or an electronic device
- how to make or cook something.

- b You are going to explain the process to your partner. Prepare what you will say. Think how to emphasise the important points and check that your partner understands. Use expressions from 5a and 5d.

- c Work in pairs. Take turns to explain the process to your partner and ask each other questions to check understanding.

a Discuss the questions.

- 1 In your daily life, how much do you depend on technology?
- 2 What aspects of technology make your daily life easier?

b Look at the survey results below and discuss the questions.

- 1 Do you think people you know would agree with these results?
- 2 Do you agree with the results? Is there anything else you would like to add to the list?

MODERN LIFE IS RUBBISH!

A survey in the UK revealed the things that British people hate most about modern life. Here are the top five:

- 1 self-service check-outs
- 2 sales calls
- 3 selfies
- 4 slow internet connection
- 5 mobile phone battery life

c 1.23 Listen to Gitta and Derek talking about technology. Are they describing positive or negative experiences? Do they talk about the same device?

d 1.23 Listen again. What's the speaker's relationship with the other person in the story? What made the experience positive or negative? Why?

e Discuss the questions.

- 1 Do you agree with Gitta's reaction to her boss? Why / Why not?
- 2 Do you know people like Derek? Do you think they should try to change? Why / Why not?

f Work on your own. Think about the questions below and make notes.

- When has technology created a problem for you?
- When has technology helped you solve a problem of some kind?

g Discuss your experiences in 1f.

a Read Tech free! Are any of the things in the survey mentioned?

b Read the text again. Are the sentences true or false?

- 1 Before the experiment, Sam was a bit worried by the idea.
- 2 Sam was annoyed that he had to chat to someone in the bank.
- 3 The bank teller was clearly surprised that Sam wanted to withdraw money.
- 4 Sam saved time by not using the self-service check-out at the supermarket.
- 5 Sam was able to work better when he wrote by hand.
- 6 As the day progressed, Sam thought less about using his phone.
- 7 Sam learnt something about the way we depend on technology.

c How would you feel if you had to live without using technology for one day? Discuss what you would enjoy and not enjoy.

3 WRITING SKILLS

Organising an article

a How does Sam organise his article? Choose the correct summary. He ...

- 1 explains his attitude towards technology, describes his day, requests readers to do the same thing
- 2 explains his level of dependency on technology, describes his day, finishes with an evaluation of the experience
- 3 explains his feelings about technology, describes his day, finishes by promising to repeat the experience

b How does Sam get the reader's attention at the beginning of the article?

1 Have you ever wondered what it would be like to give up technology? I'm a TV journalist and I spend a lot of my working life in front of a computer or a TV. I decided to conduct my own private experiment: I would spend a day trying to manage without technological devices. What a scary thought!

2 The first thing I usually do every day is reach for my smartphone to check the time and read any messages or emails. But I'd locked it away in a drawer the night before. Already I was feeling very cut off from the world, and it was only ... actually, I had no idea what time it was!

3 After breakfast, I needed to get some cash. Inevitably, this meant a trip to the bank because cash points are technological devices. I had to queue, but I had a very nice conversation with a woman whilst I was waiting. Not surprisingly, the bank teller thought I was a bit strange withdrawing money this way. I think she thought I was a robber!

4 Then it was on to the supermarket. You may be wondering what's technological about that. Well, I had to make sure I avoided the self-service check-out and joined the queue for a normal one – with a real person. Naturally, it took longer, but I had a great chat with the guy who served me, and he told me about a new club that is opening up nearby. Would I have found out about that if I'd gone to the self-service check-out? No.

5 Afterwards, I came home to have a go at writing a news story by hand. Strangely, I found it easier to concentrate on my writing. But my hand and fingers got really sore! And I have to confess – by this stage, I was having to make a real effort not to get my phone out and check my messages. I was starting to wonder what my friends were doing. Maybe they were making plans to go to that new club, and I would never know!

6 All in all, I wouldn't say I could live without technology. Predictably, I really missed my phone all day. The worst part was not being able to check updates in the news or from my friends. I felt very out of touch. However, I kept to my promise of a tech-free day and I did have more face-to-face interaction. Undoubtedly, it made me realise just how addicted to technology we all are.

c Complete the tasks below.

- In paragraphs 2–5, underline the linking word or phrase that sequences the events in Sam's day. The first one has been done for you.
- In paragraph 6, what linking phrase shows that Sam is going to summarise his experience?

d Look at the example sentence from the article. The adverb Inevitably shows the writer's attitude. Find five other comment adverbs in the article.

Inevitably, this meant a trip to the bank because cash points are technological devices.

e Add the adverbs in the box to the sentences. (Sometimes there is more than one possible answer.)

amazingly naturally inevitably
(not) surprisingly

- Why do some websites always ask you to change passwords? Having created a password for my bank account, I was asked to change it two weeks later.
- I usually hate anything to do with technology. I quite like using the self-service check-out at the local supermarket.
- I always expect IT products to be very expensive. The tablet I bought last week cost very little.
- I find it very difficult to install new software. I've downloaded the latest version of a program and my computer has frozen.

f Which piece of advice is not correct for writing an article? Why?

- Begin the article with a question to get the reader's attention.
- Use direct questions to connect with the reader of your article.
- Think about how you can structure the main part of the article. You can use a sequence of events or you could compare and contrast ideas.
- Use linking words to guide the reader.
- Be as objective as possible.
- Use comment adverbs to show your opinions.
- Summarise your experience or ideas and evaluate them.

4 WRITING

a Imagine you had to live for a week without a technological device you use in your daily life. Choose a device from the survey, the article or use your own ideas. Make notes about what the experience might be like.

b Discuss your notes.

c Write an article about your experience. Organise your article to follow the structure in 3a. Use the linking phrases and adverbs from 3c–e to help you.

LOST AT SEA

How long could you survive at sea? One day? Two? And when would you start to lose hope?

When Robert Hewitt came to the surface, he ¹realised straight away that something was wrong. He ²d'ening for sea urchins and crayfish off the coast of New Zealand with a friend, and ³had decided to make the 200-metre swim back to shore alone. But instead, strong underwater currents had taken him more than half a kilometre out to sea.

Lying on his back in the middle of the ocean, Robert told himself not to panic. He was a strong swimmer and he ⁴was wearing his thick wet suit. 'I'm not going to die. Someone will come,' he told himself. But three hours passed and still no one had come for him. Robert would soon have to make a tough decision.

He was now a long way from the coast and the tide was taking him further out, but he decided not to try to swim for shore. He felt it was better to save his energy and hold on to his brightly coloured equipment. But the decision was not an easy one. 'I just closed my eyes and said, "You've made the right decision. You've made the right decision" until that's all I heard,' he remembers.

As night approached, Robert established a pattern to help him survive in the water.

To stay warm, he kept himself moving and took short naps of less than a minute at a time. Every few hours, he called out to his loved ones: 'Just yelling out their names would pick me up and then I would keep going for the next hour and the next hour and the next.'

When he woke the next morning, he couldn't believe he was still alive. Using his bright equipment, he tried to signal to planes that flew overhead. But as each plane turned away, his spirits dropped. He managed to drink water from his oxygen tank to keep himself alive, but as day turned to night again he started to imagine things.

Robert woke on the third day to a beautiful blue sky. Now seven kilometres off the coast, Robert decided he had to swim for it. But the sun was so strong and Robert quickly ran out of strength. Hope turned to disappointment yet again: 'I felt disappointed in myself. I thought I was a lot fitter. I thought I would be able to do it.' Robert then started to think he might not survive.

On the fourth day, the lack of food and water was really starting to affect him. Half unconscious, and with strange visions going through his head, he thought he saw a boat coming towards him with two of his friends in. Another vision, surely.

But no – 'They put me in the boat and I said something like "Oh, how's it going, what are you guys doing here?"' Then he asked them the question that he'd asked in all his visions: 'Can I have some water?' As they handed him the water and he felt it touch his lips, he knew. This was not a vision. He'd been found! After four days and three nights alone at sea, Robert had been found! Sunburnt, hungry and exhausted, but alive ...

Student A: ERIC LEMARQUE

It was getting late and Eric LeMarque decided to have one final run on his snowboard. As he ¹*'d gone / was going* down the mountain, he ²*came / was coming* across some thick fog and headed in the wrong direction. All of a sudden he was completely lost. All he had with him was his snowboard, some bubble gum and an MP3 player. Eventually, he ³*remembered / 'd remembered* something he ⁴*was seeing / 'd seen* in a movie about using an MP3 player as a compass. This meant he was able to get an idea of where he was and head in the right direction, up the mountain. Eric was missing for a week. During that time, he fell in a river, almost went down a waterfall and had to walk through snow that was four and a half metres deep! On the eighth day he was seen by a helicopter that ⁵*had searched / had been searching* for him. He was completely exhausted but alive.

Student B: RICKY MEGEE

A farmer couldn't believe what he saw when he came across a stranger living on his farm. The man, Ricky Megee, ¹*lived / had been living* off the land in the Australian bush for two months. Ricky ²*had been driving / had driven* near the border of Western Australia and Northern Territory. He ³*stopped / had stopped* to help some people whose car had broken down and offered one of them a lift to a nearby town. Unfortunately, the passenger turned out to be a robber, who stole Ricky's car. Ricky was now completely lost in the bush. He ⁴*ate / had eaten* insects, snakes and frogs and eventually managed to find a dam to provide him with water. He built a small shelter there and waited, hoping to be rescued. 71 days after being left, Ricky was found by the farmer. He ⁵*'d lost / was losing* more than 50 kg in weight during his time in the bush.

How to Survive an animal attack

YOU'RE WALKING IN A FOREST WHEN SUDDENLY A WILD ANIMAL APPEARS FROM NOWHERE AND IT DOES NOT LOOK FRIENDLY. WHAT DO YOU DO?

The first important point is that there's not usually much you can do, except hope it goes away again. With luck, you may never have to defend yourself against a wild animal, but it doesn't hurt to know what to do if an escaped leopard attacks you in your back garden, or if you're going for a country walk and you suddenly meet a family of wolves.

BE AWARE

The first thing is to know which animals are really dangerous. Many people are scared of animals that are in fact harmless, and not scared enough of animals that could kill you. Most animals won't attack people unless you do something to make them angry. Bears, for example, will usually move away as soon as they hear you and they'll only fight if they think you're attacking them or their young. Wolves won't normally attack unless they are very hungry, and then only if they're in a group. Tarantulas are horrible and hairy, but they aren't actually dangerous at all – you can let them walk over you. On the other hand, tigers and crocodiles are serious killers who will be happy to eat you for breakfast.

BE PREPARED

It's a good idea to take a stick, a knife or a pepper spray when you go for a walk in the wild in case you meet a dangerous animal. Have it in a place where you can easily find it. It may mean the difference between life and death.

KNOW YOUR ENEMY

If you ever find yourself face to face with a large and dangerous animal, you'll want to know their strong and weak points. Common weak points are:

- the nose
- the eyes
- the neck.

People have sometimes survived by punching sharks, large cats, and crocodiles on the nose, and pushing your thumbs into their eyes will also work well, as long as you press hard enough. Otherwise, you might just make them angry!

You can also try to get a psychological advantage. Provided you seem bigger and more dangerous than the animal, it will probably leave you alone, so make a lot of noise and try to make yourself look bigger.

WHAT NEXT?

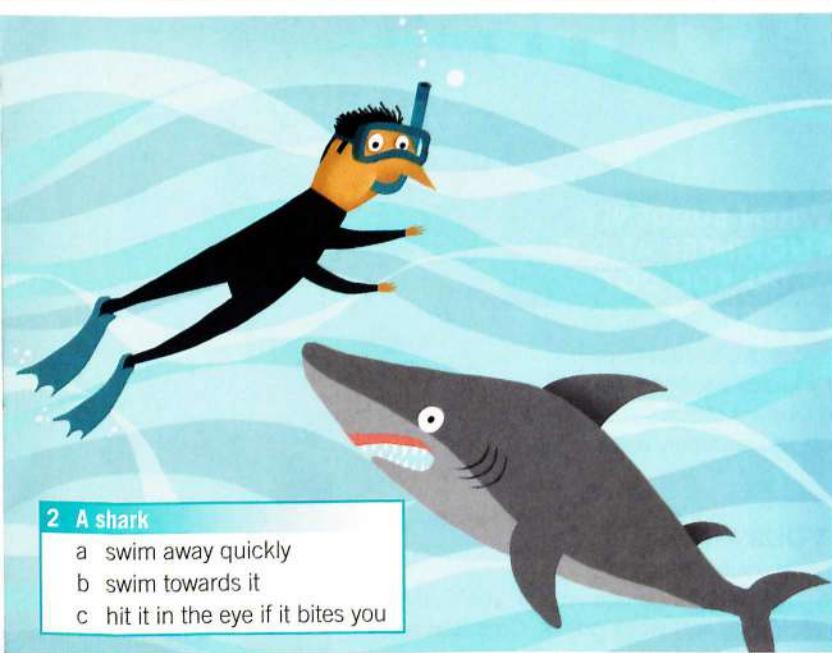

If scaring them doesn't work, then you have two options: running or fighting. Remember that most animals are better at running and fighting than humans, so don't expect things to end well. But if you decide to fight, fight back with everything you have. Often during animal attacks people give up before the fight has even started. If you have any sharp objects or weapons, then use them. Hit the animal's weak points, keep shouting and make sudden movements. Good luck!

UNIT 2

f Look at the ideas below for surviving attacks by three different animals. For each animal, decide which ideas are the best.

g ► Communication 2B Now go to p.127 to check your answers.

2 GRAMMAR Future time clauses and conditionals a Look at the words and phrases in bold in sentences 1–5 and answer questions a–e.

- 1 They'll only fight if they think you're attacking them.
- 2 They won't attack people unless they're trapped or provoked.
- 3 Bears, for example, will usually move away as soon as they hear you.
- 4 Provided you stay absolutely still, the bear will lose interest and go away.
- 5 As long as you don't panic, it will probably swim away.

- a Which two words or phrases have a similar meaning to if?
- b What does sentence 2 mean?
 - 1 A bear will only attack you if it's trapped or provoked.
 - 2 A bear will attack you anyway, even if it isn't trapped.
- c What does sentence 3 mean?
 - 1 When bears hear you they will wait, then move away slowly.
 - 2 When bears hear you they will move away immediately.
- d Look at these examples:

If you stay still, the bear will go away
(= something good will happen).
If you move, the bear will attack you (= something bad will happen).

In which example could we use as long as or provided instead of if?

- e What tense is used after the words and phrases in bold? What tense is used in the other part of the sentence?

b Find one more example in How to survive an animal attack of each of these words and phrases:

- 1 as long as
- 2 unless
- 3 provided

c ► Now go to Grammar Focus on p.136

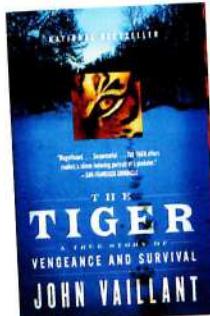

d Complete the sentences. There is more than one possible answer. Compare with other students.

- 1 Sharks won't attack you unless ...
- 2 Wolves will only attack if ...
- 3 Tarantulas won't bite you provided ...
- 4 If you hit a crocodile on the nose ...

Be wise and SURVIVE!

We all enjoy being in the great outdoors. There are lots of amazing environments, but some of them can be quite challenging, even dangerous, and it's important that you think about safety. Here are some simple guidelines to help you stay safe.

- A
- 1 Get a map of the area and make sure you know where you are going.
 - 2 Check the weather forecast.
 - 3 Wear clothes and shoes that are suitable for the conditions. If you think the weather may change suddenly, take extra clothing.
 - 4 If you are going on a longer walk, take some emergency food with you.
- B
- 5 Provided you follow the signs, you shouldn't get into trouble.
 - 6 Never take short cuts unless you're absolutely sure where they go.
 - 7 Allow plenty of time to get to your destination or get back before it gets dark.
- C
- 8 As soon as you realise you're lost, stop, keep calm and plan what you will do next.
 - 9 Don't eat all your food at once. Have a little at a time.
 - 10 Try to find a source of water you can drink from like a river or a stream. Being able to drink is more important than being able to eat.
 - 11 Don't keep moving around. Find somewhere that is dry and get plenty of rest. It's easier for rescuers to find you if you stay in one place.
 - 12 Always try to stay warm. You can cover yourself with dry plants.
 - 13 If you need to keep moving, make sure you use rocks or pieces of wood as signs that show rescuers where you are going.
 - 14 As long as you tell yourself you'll survive, you probably will!

3 WRITING SKILLS

Organising guidelines in a leaflet

- a Notice these verb forms used in the leaflet.
- 1 Check the weather forecast. – positive imperative
 - 2 Don't eat all your food at once – negative imperative
 - 3 Never take short cuts ... – frequency adverb + imperative
 - 4 If you think the weather may change suddenly, take extra clothing. – if + present tense + imperative Find one more example of each verb form in the leaflet.

- b Choose the correct answers.

- 1 What's the function of the verb forms in 3a?
 - a to give advice
 - b to make indirect suggestions
- 2 Why are those forms used?
 - a to make the information clear and direct
 - b to show hikers they have a strong obligation

- c Correct the incorrect sentences.

- 1 Not eat any plants you don't recognise.
- 2 Never leave the main group of people you are hiking with.
- 3 If you will hear a rescue team, make lots of noise.
- 4 Always carries a pocket knife.
- 5 As soon as it starts getting dark, stop and think about what to do next.
- 6 If you have a map, take it with you.

4 WRITING

- a Choose one of the situations in the box and make notes on advice you could include in a leaflet.

camping in a forest backpacking in a foreign country swimming in the sea hiking in the mountains

- b Write a leaflet for the situation you chose above. Remember to:

- use headings
- include the different imperative forms in 3a
- make the information clear and direct.

- c Swap leaflets with another student. Does the leaflet include headings and different imperative forms? Is the information clear and direct? What improvements could be made?

- d Give your leaflet to other students. Read other leaflets and decide which leaflet you think is the clearest and the most useful.

- 3 Have you had any experience of the ideas discussed in the text?
- 4 Do you think you'll change your learning practice as a result of the information?

LEARNING TO LEARN

a IT'S ALL ABOUT RHYTHM

Bodies and brains need time to warm up

'Early bird' or 'night owl', we all have different body clocks and rhythms. However, research is beginning to show that we're all quite similar in the way our minds and bodies behave at different times of the day. Understanding these rhythms helps us work out when's the best time to learn.

If learning means having to use your brain, the morning is the best time. But not first thing. Our bodies and brains need time to warm up and our body temperature rises slowly from the moment we wake up. Between ten in the morning and midday, most people are at their best in terms of their ability to concentrate and learn. If we want to learn something physical, then it pays to wait until the afternoon. Between 2 pm and 6 pm our muscle strength is at its peak and our hand-eye coordination is very efficient. This means the afternoon is probably better for learning new sports or perhaps a new dance step.

GIVE ME STRENGTH

A new word suggests a picture

Isn't it strange how we can remember the words of a much loved poem that we learnt at primary school more than twenty years ago, but we can't remember where we left our keys about ten minutes ago? More than 130 years ago this problem caught the attention of the German psychologist Herman Ebbinghaus and he came up with a theory: the strength of memory.

Ebbinghaus believed that if we find new information interesting, then it'll probably be more meaningful to us. This makes the information easier to learn and also helps the strength of memory. It also helps if we associate the new information with something else. For example, a new word we learn might make us think of a picture. This association can also build memory strength.

Using associations to help us remember what we learn is known as 'mnemonics'. For example, some people are able to remember a long sequence of numbers because the shape of all those numbers reminds them of a specific physical shape such as a guitar. Mnemonic techniques are often used by competitors in the World Memory Championships held each year in London.

Popular spelling mnemonics:

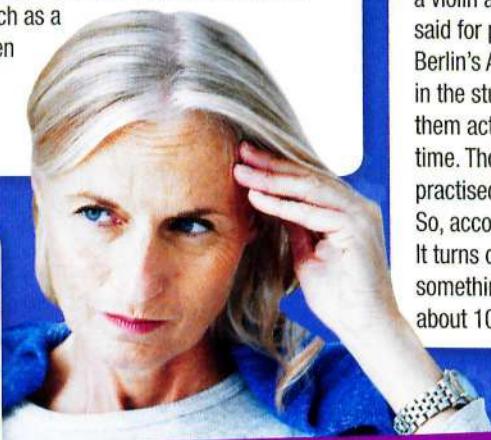

BECAUSE

Big Elephants Can't Always

Use Small Exits

HERE or HEAR?

We hear with our ear.

A QUESTION OF TALENT?

"All you'll need is about 10,000 hours!"

We've all had the experience of trying to learn something new only to find out that we're not very good at it. We look around at other people we're learning with and they seem so much more talented and are doing so much better. It seems to come naturally to them. And when you look at all the people who are outstanding at what they do – the really famous people who are superstars – all you see is natural ability. The conclusion seems obvious: talented people must be born that way.

Without a doubt, there are people who are brilliant at certain things – they have a talent for kicking a football around a field, or they pick up a violin and immediately make music. However, there's also a lot to be said for practice. Psychologist K. Anders Ericsson studied students at Berlin's Academy of Music. He found that even though all the musicians in the study had the potential to become world famous, only some of them actually did. What made the difference? The answer is simple: time. Those who became exceptional were more competitive and practised about two thousand hours more than those who only did well. So, according to Ericsson, that's what it takes to become really skilled. It turns out that practice really does make perfect, and in order to learn something and become very successful at doing it, all you'll need is about 10,000 hours!

e Read the text again and answer the questions about each sport.

- 1 What sport is it?
- 2 Who is given as an example?
- 3 What unusual features are mentioned?
- 4 What is the result?

f Which of the things in 1b are mentioned in the text? Do you think this is important for all sports activities or only for top professional players?

Born to be

THE BEST

CHAMPION SKIER

Champion cross-country skier Eero Mäntyranta had an unusual gene which made him produce too many red blood cells. Cross-country skiers cover long distances and their red blood cells have to send oxygen to their muscles. Mäntyranta had about 65% more red blood cells than the normal adult male and that's why he performed so well. In the 1960, 1964, and 1968 Winter Olympic Games, he won a total of seven medals. In 1964, he beat his closest competitor in the fifteen-kilometre race by forty seconds.

RECORD HIGH JUMP

On the seventh high jump of his life, Donald Thomas cleared 2.22 m. The next year, after only eight months of training, Thomas won the world championships. How did he achieve this victory? Not from training. He had unusually long legs and an exceptionally long Achilles tendon, which acted as a kind of spring, shooting him high into the air when he jumped.

THE WORLD'S BEST RUNNERS

Why do so many of the world's best distance runners come from Kenya and Ethiopia? Because a runner needs not just to be thin, but also to have thin legs and ankles. Runners from the Kalenjin tribe, in Kenya – where most of the country's best athletes come from – are thin in exactly this way. Compared to Europeans, Kalenjins are shorter but have longer legs, and their lower legs are half a kilo lighter.

BASEBALL PRO

Professional baseball players have, as a group, remarkable eyesight. A typical baseball professional can see at seven metres what the rest of us can see at four metres. This means that, however much they trained, only a tiny proportion of the population would be able to do what professional baseball players can do naturally: see a ball that is travelling towards them at 150 km an hour.

Present perfect simple and continuous a Match sentences 1–4 with the uses of the present perfect simple and continuous (a–d).

- 1 You've been playing tennis since you were a child.
- 2 I've also read the book.
- 3 I've been thinking a lot about this recently.
- 4 I've lived in Kenya myself.

- a to talk about a recent completed action, e.g. I've lost my glasses.
- b to talk about an activity that started in the past and is still continuing, e.g. We've been waiting since this morning.
- c to talk about an experience at some unspecified time in your life, e.g. He's climbed Mount Everest.
- d to talk about a recent activity which continued for a while (which may or may not still be continuing), e.g. I've been reading a lot of good books lately.

b ► Now go to Grammar Focus on p.138

c Add a sentence using the present perfect simple or continuous.

- 1 I don't think I could play squash any more. I ... I haven't played it for years.
- 2 She's really fit. She ...
- 3 Of course I can play chess. I ...
- 4 Why don't you buy a new pair of skis? You ...

d Think about a sport (or other free time activity) that you have been doing for some time. Make notes about questions 1–4.

- 1 How good are you at it?
- 2 How long have you been doing it? Why did you start?
- 3 What are the main reasons you've become good at it (or haven't)? Is it more to do with ... ?
 - your genetic make-up and natural ability
 - developing technique and practising
 - support from other people
- 4 Do you think any of the things you have read or heard in this lesson are relevant to the activity you've been doing?

e Tell other students about your activity.

5 READING and SPEAKING

a Read about two famous US baseball players and answer the questions.

- 1 How are they similar?
- 2 How are they different?

b Think about the questions.

If 'sport isn't as fair as we like to think', should players be allowed to find ways to improve their performance? Which of these ways do you think are acceptable? Why?

- training hard
- having an operation (e.g. replacing arm muscles, improving eyesight)
- taking legal substances to enhance their performance (e.g. energy drinks)
- taking illegal substances to enhance their performance (e.g. drugs)

c Compare your ideas. Do you agree?

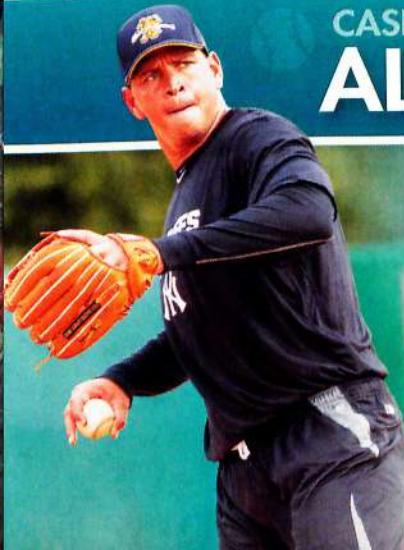

CASE STUDY: TOMMY JOHN

Tommy John is one of the best-loved figures in American baseball. In 1974, after an injury to his arm, he was the first player ever to have an operation to replace the muscles of his right arm with artificial ones. After his operation, he went on to win 164 games, more than he did before science helped to improve his performance. His 'bionic arm' enabled him to win at least 20 games a season. He had one of the longest careers in baseball history, retiring at the age of 46, and is regarded by the public as a sporting hero. Since then, at least a third of major-league baseball players have had the same operation, now known as 'Tommy John surgery'.

CASE STUDY: ALEX RODRIGUEZ

Alex Rodriguez is well known among baseball fans in the USA. He's one of the best baseball professionals of all time and the youngest player ever to hit 500 home runs. But he's also well known for a different reason. Between 2001 and 2003, under pressure to keep up his performance in the American League and to help him recover from an injury, he took steroids, which are an illegal drug under the rules of the League. He has since been suspended, but has tried to appeal against his suspension and return to the game. He is now one of the most hated figures in American baseball.

W Describing data

1 SPEAKING and LISTENING

a Discuss the questions.

- 1 What's the most unusual sport you've ever seen or heard of? Have you tried it?
- 2 What do you think are the most popular sports in your country to participate in? Why do you think they are popular?
- 3 How do you think new sports become popular?

b Look at photos 1–3. What are the names of the sports? Which of these sports have you tried? Which would you like to try?

c 1.57 Marco talks to three people at a sports complex: Lizzie, Barry and Patricia. Listen and match the speakers to the sports in the photos.

d 1.57 Listen again and make notes for each speaker:

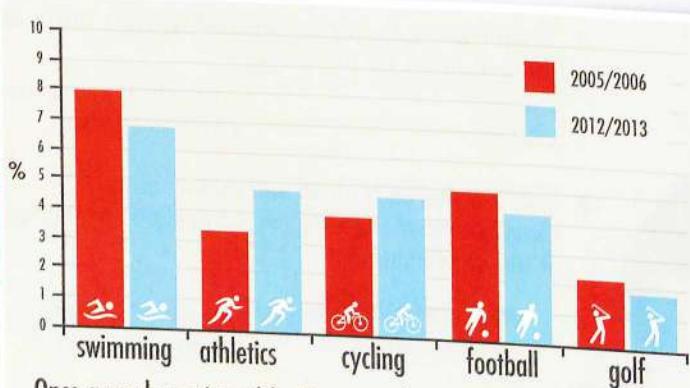

- 1 reasons for choosing their sport
- 2 experience of the sport
- 3 future plans

e Are any of these sports popular in your country? Why / Why not?

2 READING

a Look at the bar chart. Are the sentences true or false?

- 1 The data only shows information about people who take part in sports.
- 2 The data doesn't give information about children's sport participation.
- 3 The data shows every year between 2005 and 2013.
- 4 Most of the sports have more participation in 2012/2013 than in 2005/2006.

b Read the article A nation of armchair athletes. Does the article give the same information as the bar chart?

c Read the article again and answer the questions.

- 1 Does the writer think the major sporting event encouraged people to take part in sports?
- 2 Does the information represent only five sports?
- 3 What piece of information did the writer not expect?
- 4 What possible reason does the writer give for the increased interest in cycling?
- 5 What change does the writer mention in the final paragraph?

3 WRITING SKILLS

Describing data

a Match the summaries with the paragraphs (a–e) in the article. Which paragraph ... ?

- 1 states the main conclusion you can draw from the data
- 2 adds extra information not shown in the data
- 3 interprets the data in more detail
- 4 outlines the issue that the article and the data is about
- 5 explains what the bar chart is about

b Look at paragraph d in the article again and complete the table.

	Adjective	Noun
there is a/an	1 _____	increase obvious	2 _____
	3 _____ / 4 _____	decrease
	Verb	Adverb
the number(s)/size	has/have increased 7 _____	5 _____ / 6 _____ significantly

c Notice This in paragraph d in the text. Answer the questions.

- 1 Does it refer back or forward to other information in the paragraph?
- 2 How is information organised in the paragraph?
 - a data followed by a comment
 - b a comment followed by data

d Use the data about a British city to write sentences.

Use language from 3b.

- 1 People playing tennis: 2014 = 18%; now = 22%
- 2 Number of football teams: 1 year ago = 53; now = 39
- 3 Gym memberships: 2014 = 21%; now = 33%
- 4 Number of volleyball teams: 2 years ago = 26; now = 23

A nation of armchair athletes?

^aThere's no doubt that international sporting events are good for sport. There's always huge interest in them and people are glued to their TV sets watching different events. Of course, this is all about watching sports, but does it also mean that people get off the sofa and actually take part in sports?

^bThe bar chart looks at the five most popular sports in the UK in terms of people participating – not just sitting around and watching them on TV. One point to note is that all these sports include a range of activities. So, for example, 'swimming' also includes the sports of diving, water polo and deep water diving, while 'football' includes five-a-side games as well as full teams. The results in the graph show percentages of people who actively participate in that sport at least once a week.

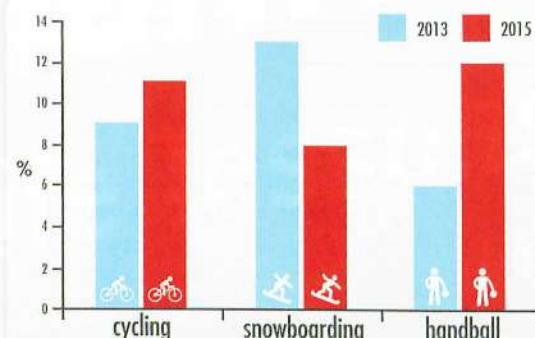

^cThe blue and the red columns make a direct comparison between the year from October 2005 to October 2006 and a similar period in 2012/2013, just after a major sporting event. As you can see, the statistics show there has been no sudden increase in British people getting actively involved in sport.

^dIn fact, most surprising of all, there's a significant decrease in the number of people getting involved in swimming, the number one sport in the UK. You can see that there has also been an obvious change in the number of people wanting to go out and kick a football. There's a slight decrease in the number of people playing golf although participation hasn't decreased significantly. The most noticeable increase in sport participation can be seen in athletics. Perhaps this is because athletics features regularly at international sporting events. It also requires very little equipment initially, so can be a low-cost sport. Interest in cycling has also increased slightly. This might be because cycling includes BMX and cross-country, which makes this a very varied sport. Cycling enthusiasts have reported that interest in different kinds of cycling has increased noticeably in recent years.

^eIt's important to remember that the information in the table only focuses on the five most popular sports in the UK. Recent reports show that British people are becoming interested in a wide range of sports and are taking up activities like snowboarding and handball. It doesn't really matter what sport people choose to get involved in – the key thing is that they get out of their armchairs and take part.

a Look at the bar chart and read the notes below. What does the information show?

Once-a-week sport participation – top three sports at Market Street Sports Complex, 14 years and over.

cycling – now more popular in the UK snowboarding – snowboards quite expensive and expensive to go abroad handball – local teams have been winning games

b Work in pairs. Plan an article about the data and notes in 4a. Then write your article.

c Swap your article with another pair. Does the article use language from 3b correctly? Does it include verbs and nouns? Does it have the same organisation as 3a? Was it easy to understand?

- 7 I get asked some very silly questions.
- 8 This sword is very uncomfortable to wear.

d Which of the two kinds of training seems harder to you? Which one would you choose to do? Why?

4 VOCABULARY Talking about difficulty

a All the adjectives in bold, except for one, describe something that is very difficult. Which adjective is not as strong as the others?

The training was punishing.

Discipline was very strict.

Teachers could be quite tough.

He described his time at school as 'arduous'.

It's not likely to be quite as gruelling as Jackie Chan's training.

Those lucky enough to be selected go through rigorous training.

Sometimes they might need to use force to resolve a tricky situation.

TRAINING TO BE THE BEST

❀ BECOMING JACKIE CHAN ❀

How do you get to be the next Jackie Chan? Most people think you should find a martial arts master and learn all their secrets. Jackie Chan's training was in a Peking Opera School in Hong Kong. These schools used to train people for traditional Chinese theatre and apart from the acrobatics and martial arts, students also learnt speech, song and dance.

The training was punishing. Students would rise at 5 am and train for at least ten hours. Discipline was very strict and teachers could be quite tough.

Jackie Chan, who did his training in the 1960s, described his time at school as 'arduous'. Students had to repeat exercises again and again until they got them right. At the same time, they would need to learn traditional character roles used in Chinese theatre.

Students were sent to Peking Opera Schools when they were children. They would stay at the school and were given food and accommodation as well as training. This meant that they built up a debt that they had to repay once they began performing in Chinese theatre. They were forced to sign a contract agreeing to this.

During the 1960s, interest in traditional Chinese theatre declined and the schools closed down. Today there are still academies in China that offer a mixture of the study of and training in Peking opera. However, it's not likely to be quite as gruelling as Jackie Chan's training.

❀ THE VOICE IS A WEAPON ❀

Imagine getting up each day and going to work back in the sixteenth century. That's probably what it feels like for guards around the Vatican City, the people who are dressed in the amazing uniforms from the Renaissance that you can see in the pictures.

These people are part of a 500-year-old tradition. All the guards are Swiss and they are there to protect the Vatican and the Pope. They're the oldest military unit that still exists today and is still active.

Getting into the Swiss Guards isn't easy. You need to be a Swiss male between the ages of 19 and 30 and you need to be at least 1.74 metres tall. You also have to have completed basic military training with the Swiss Army and have some kind of professional qualification like a degree or diploma.

Those selected go through rigorous training. They start by learning about the history of the Swiss Guards and how to recognise key people around the Vatican. At the same time, there is weapons training. Vatican Swiss Guards have to learn to handle old-fashioned weapons such as swords.

However, Swiss Guards also learn that the very first weapon they should use is their voice. Guards often have to deal with difficult tourists who want to explore parts of the Vatican not open to the public, so their training involves lessons in both Italian and English. Of course, sometimes they might need to use force to resolve a tricky situation, so they are trained in self-defence, a mixture of karate and judo developed specially for the Guards.

In this day and age, it's difficult to think of a job where you learn languages, martial arts and how to use a sword. It's no easy task, but in order to wear one of the most striking uniforms in the world, that's what the Swiss Guards have to do.

a Which adjective in 4a means ... ?

- 1 something is so hard you have to push yourself almost to the point of hurting yourself
- 2 something is very difficult because the training is very thorough and detailed
- 3 something is difficult because there are rules that must be obeyed

c Ask and answer the questions. Give extra details.

- 1 Imagine you have to run a marathon. Would it be tough or punishing for you?
- 2 Can you remember a teacher you had at school who was very strict?
- 3 What's a job that requires rigorous training?
- 4 Have you ever been in a tricky situation? What happened?

- 2 Beautiful cities aren't always the best places to live.
- 3 The weather influences the way people live.
- 4 Foreigners often don't make an effort to get to know the local culture.
- 5 Living abroad can be worthwhile even if you don't always have a good time.

- e The speakers say that meeting local people is important when you live in a different country. Think of three ways you could meet local people. Which is your most interesting idea? Why?

2 READING

- a Read the leaflet about becoming an international student 'buddy' in London. Answer the questions.

- 1 What is a 'buddy' and what does he/she do?
- 2 What are the advantages of becoming a buddy?
- 3 What kind of person are they looking for?

BE A BUDDY FOR THE INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS' CLUB

Are you curious about other cultures? Are you eager to get to know and meet new people from all over the world?

Volunteer to offer assistance and friendship to international students as a 'buddy' at your university or college.

Responsibilities

After an international student has been assigned to you, you will show them around during the first weeks of their stay. You'll give them an insight into the student life in your area and generally help them out.

What we offer you

- free membership and benefits of belonging to the International Students Club
- free training courses which will look great on your CV (a certificate of participation awarded)
- the opportunity to get a wide range of cross-cultural experience

- b Paulo wrote an email applying to be a buddy and saying why he is suitable. Which of the reasons below do you think he should use?

he understands the needs of foreign students he loves living in London he's outgoing and sociable he's interested in other cultures he speaks several languages
he has plenty of free time he knows London well

Read the email and check your answers.

3 WRITING SKILLS

Giving a positive impression

- a Paulo uses phrases in his email which give a positive impression. Underline the phrases which have these meanings.

- 1 I speak English well.
- 2 I like being with other people.
- 3 I have no problem talking to people.
- 4 I am able to understand the needs of students.
- 5 I know the city well.
- 6 I have always been interested in learning about other countries.
- 7 I would be willing to give up my free time.
- 8 I could help your programme.

- b Paulo writes I am sure this would help me ... instead of I think ... in order to sound more confident. Find four more expressions like this in the email.

- c What is the advantage of using the expressions in 3a and 3b when applying for a job? Which answer is not correct?

- 1 They make the writer sound positive and enthusiastic.
- 2 They make the email more interesting to read.
- 3 They give the impression that the writer could do the job well.

Dear Sir/Madam,

¹I saw the information about international student buddies on your website and I am writing to apply for the role.

²I am a Brazilian student at Birkbeck College, London, where I am studying international law. I am fluent in English, Spanish, French, and Portuguese, which would help me to communicate with students from different countries. I am also very sociable and good at communicating with people, which I am sure would help me to establish a good relationship with new students.

³As a foreign student in London myself, I am in an excellent position to understand the needs of students coming from other countries. I have a thorough knowledge of the city and the student life here. I am confident that I would be able to help students to feel at home and find their way around.

⁴I have always been very keen on learning about other cultures and my own circle of friends in London is completely international. I strongly believe we should encourage people from different cultures to come together to help promote intercultural understanding.

⁵I would be more than happy to give up my free time to work as an international student buddy and I'm certain I could make a valuable contribution to your programme.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully,
Paulo Figueiredo

4 WRITING

- a Plan an email applying to do voluntary work. Choose one of these situations. Make a list of reasons why you would be suitable.

- A website is advertising for volunteers to work in an international summer camp and organise activities for teenagers.
- A voluntary organisation wants helpers to make contact with English-speaking families living in your country and help them to adapt to your culture.
- A large secondary school in your area wants volunteers to give talks to pupils about different jobs and to help them decide on a future career.

- b Write the email. Include:

- an opening sentence, explaining why you are writing
- two or three paragraphs, explaining why you are suitable
- phrases from 3a and 3b
- a final sentence to conclude the email.

- c Work in pairs. Look at your partner's email. Does it ... ?

- make it clear why he/she is suitable
- have a clear structure
- use expressions from 3a and 3b to give a positive impression

- d Swap your email with other students. Would they choose you as a volunteer?

Qualifications

You're open-minded and interested in other cultures.
You have a knowledge of English as well as other languages.

UNIT 4

Review and extension

1 GRAMMAR

- a Use the words in brackets to rewrite the sentences. Make sure the meaning doesn't change.

- 1 I was a nurse but now I work for a drug company. (used to)
- 2 I don't do shift work now. (no longer)
- 3 When I was a nurse I sometimes slept in, but now I always get up early. (would)
- 4 I no longer take my lunch to work because there's a cafeteria at the drug company. (any more)
- 5 I don't wear a uniform in my new job so I can now wear my own clothes. (used to)
- 6 I don't have to deal with difficult patients now. (no longer)
- 7 I'm much happier than I was before. (used to)

- b Correct five obligation and permission expressions in the text.

I went to a very strict primary school when I was a child. I wasn't allowed to do about two hours homework every night which meant there was little time to play with my friends. But often my parents told me just to study for an hour and wrote a note for the teacher excusing me from homework. In class we weren't let to talk to each other when we were working on a task because teachers didn't like noisy classrooms. However, we allowed to put up our hand and ask our teacher a question as she felt it was good to help students. We weren't allowed to do some kind of physical exercise every day after lunch, but that made us very tired in the afternoon. One good thing is that they supposed us learn a musical instrument and I learnt to play the clarinet, which I still enjoy doing.

2 VOCABULARY

- a Complete the sentences with a preposition followed by your own idea.

- 1 Tiredness is usually caused _____.
- 2 A sunny day always has a positive effect _____.
- 3 Too much exercise can result _____.

- b) Why am I always so unlucky?

3 You get an 'A' in an exam. Do you think:

- a) Wow, I'm really good!
- b) I was lucky with the questions.

4 You're crossing the road. A driver gets annoyed and shouts at you. Do you think:

- a) He/She must be having a difficult day.
- b) People are so rude!

5 You're trying to figure out a problem with your computer. Do you think:

- a) There must be some simple solution to this.
- b) I just don't understand computers. I give up.

6 You start a new fitness programme and you're really tired the next day. Do you think:

- a) Wow, I worked hard yesterday – it'll be easier next time.
- b) Wow, I must be really unfit!

7 A friend you haven't seen for months says 'You're looking good.' Do you think:

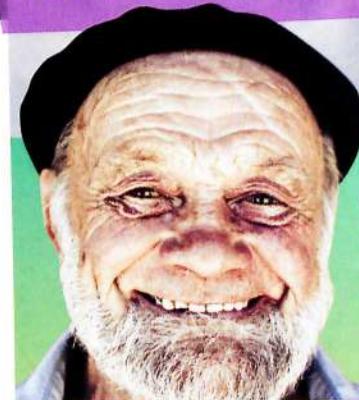

- a) Yes, he's right. Nice of him to notice.
- b) Does he really mean it or is he just being nice?

b Work in pairs. Compare your answers to the quiz. Did you have mostly a or mostly b answers?

c Communication 5A Now go to p.131.

d Read the article Why we think we're going to have a long and happy life quickly. Choose the correct words to complete the summary.

Most people are naturally optimistic / pessimistic and this is generally an advantage / a disadvantage for the human race, because it helps us to be realistic about the future / more successful.

WHY WE THINK WE'RE GOING TO HAVE A LONG AND HAPPY LIFE

Researchers have found that people all over the world share an important characteristic: optimism. Sue Reynolds explains what it's all about.

WE'RE ALL ABOVE AVERAGE!

Try asking a 20-year-old these questions:

- What kind of career will you have?
- How long do you think you'll live?

Most people think they'll be able to earn above-average salaries, but only some of the population can be in that top half. Most young men in Europe will say they expect to live well into their 80s, but the average life expectancy for European men is 75. Most people will give an answer that is unrealistic because nearly everyone believes they will be better than the average. Obviously, they can't all be right.

Most people are also optimistic about their own strengths and abilities. Ask people 'How well do you get on with other people?' or 'How intelligent are the people in your family?' and they'll usually say they're above average. Again, they can't all be right. We can't all be better than everyone else, but that's what we think.

LOOKING ON THE BRIGHT SIDE

There is a reason for this. Research has shown that, on the whole, we are optimistic by nature and have a positive view of ourselves. In fact, we are much more optimistic than realistic and frequently imagine things will turn out better than they actually do. Most people don't expect their marriages to end in divorce, they don't expect to lose their jobs or to be diagnosed with a life-threatening disease. Furthermore, when things do go wrong, they are often quick to find something positive in all the gloom. Many people who fail exams, for example, are quite sure they were just unlucky with the questions and they'll do better next time. Or people who have had a serious illness often say that it was really positive, because it made them appreciate life more. We really are very good at 'looking on the bright side'.

Even if our optimism is unrealistic and leads us to take risks, without it we might all still be living in caves ...

... we carry on polluting the planet, because we're sure that we'll find a way to clean it up some day ...

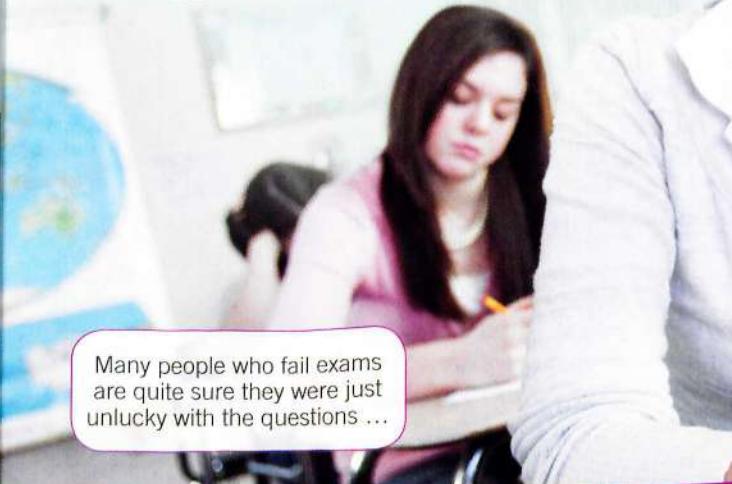

THE OPTIMISM BIAS

This certainty that our future is bound to be better than our past and present is known as the 'Optimism Bias' and researchers have found that it is common to people all over the world and of all ages. Of course, the Optimism Bias can lead us to make some very bad decisions. Often, people don't take out travel insurance because they're sure everything will be all right, they don't worry about saving up for old age because the future looks fine, or they smoke cigarettes in spite of the health warnings on the packet because they believe 'it won't happen to me'. Or on a global scale, we carry on polluting the planet, because we're sure that we'll find a way to clean it up some day in the future.

OPTIMISM IS GOOD FOR YOU

But researchers believe that the Optimism Bias is actually good for us. People who expect the best are generally likely to be ambitious and adventurous, whereas people who expect the worst are likely to be more cautious, so optimism actually helps to make us successful. Optimists are also healthier because they feel less stress – they can relax because they think that everything is going to be just fine. Not only that, but the Optimism Bias may also have played an important part in our evolution as human beings. Because we hoped for the best, we were prepared to take risks such as hunting down dangerous animals and travelling across the sea to find new places to live and this is why we became so successful as a species. Even if our optimism is unrealistic and leads us to take risks, without it we might all still be living in caves, too afraid to go outside and explore the world in case we get eaten by wild animals.

Many people who fail exams are quite sure they were just unlucky with the questions ...

e Read the article again. Tick (✓) the five points made in the article.

- 1 Pessimists usually have fewer friends than optimists.
- 2 Humans are naturally positive about their future.
- 3 Reality is often worse than we imagine it to be.
- 4 People who live in warmer countries are usually more optimistic.
- 5 We often act (or don't act) because we're confident everything will work out.
- 6 If we imagine a better future, we will take more risks.
- 7 Optimists spend a lot of time daydreaming.
- 8 Optimism about the future makes us feel better in the present.

f Discuss the questions.

- Look again at your results in the quiz. Do you think you have the 'Optimism Bias'?
- Do you agree that it's better to be optimistic than realistic? Why / Why not?
- How do you see yourself in 20 years' time?

Cooking in

ANTARCTICA

When she saw an online advertisement for a Chef Manager at the British Antarctic Survey (BAS) base in Rothera, chef Fleur Wilson was certainly given food for thought. Fleur, in her mid-thirties, felt it was time for an adventure and a life experience that really was different.

Fleur is part of a group of key support staff at Rothera. The main focus of BAS is scientific research into the climate, the oceans and ecosystems of Antarctica. In order to carry out this research successfully, scientists need the help of people like Fleur to make their lives as comfortable as possible.

A key responsibility for Fleur is keeping everyone happy, and one of the best ways of doing this is by keeping them well fed. This doesn't mean preparing high-end restaurant food, but it does mean organising lots of social events to boost the mood. However, everyone has to play their part, and Fleur makes sure no one escapes doing the dishes.

One thing that all staff at BAS share is their love of the continent. 'I don't mind the rough weather,' Fleur says, 'and I've always found landscapes with ice and snow amazingly beautiful. Sure, I don't get to see much for six months of the year, but for the other six months there's plenty of light and the scenery is stunning.' But, quite apart from admiring the natural beauty of Antarctica, the staff all have a clear understanding of the fact that it's a fragile environment because, compared to the rest of the world, it is largely untouched. They're aware that the presence of human beings can have a significant ecological impact on the continent and, therefore, they treat it with care. BAS research stations use solar energy to heat air and hot water. 'We try to be as environmentally friendly as possible,' says Fleur; 'we don't want to leave a carbon footprint down here.'

As Fleur notes, 'Antarctica can tell us a lot about what's happening in the world. It can tell us a lot about global warming and climate change. In an extreme climate like this, you can really notice if things are changing.'

During the winter months, all Rothera staff try to keep themselves entertained either by making mid-winter gifts for each other or creating a murder mystery event. Fleur has also taught herself Spanish to intermediate level. However, during the summer months she does cross-country skiing and enjoys trips to do some penguin and whale watching.

Fleur realises that living and working in Antarctica isn't for everyone. 'If you're the kind of person that likes shopping, going out for dinner and clubbing, then forget it.' She's now in her fourth year here and still finds it a unique and rewarding experience.

'I was mad enough to apply for the job and I've been mad enough to stay. But it's a job that's given me so much – I've worked with some remarkable people and I'm living in a unique and fascinating part of the world.'

d Work on your own. Answer the questions and make notes.

- Are there any environments in your country that are considered fragile? What kind of environments are they?
- What different human inventions have a negative ecological impact?
- What kind of things could you do to reduce your carbon footprint?

- 3 What action (if any) do you think governments and world leaders should take to manage climate change?

Are extreme weather events a sign of

CLIMATE CHANGE?

Leon

¹ People have always complained about the weather, but the number of extreme weather events – such as droughts, hurricanes and heavy snow – seems to have increased in recent years. Naturally, people are worried about this. But are these events a sign that our climate is changing?

² Many people believe that extreme weather is part of a general pattern of climate change. Scientists predicted that global warming would lead to more unstable weather and this is exactly what seems to be happening. Furthermore, most scientists agree that these changes are happening faster than expected and that they are a direct result of human activity. Many scientists also warn that this is only the beginning and things will almost certainly get worse if we don't take action.

³ However, not everyone agrees with this point of view. Some people point out that there have always been extreme weather events, but we are simply more aware of them now. They say it's not certain that climate change is a result of human activity, so we should try to find out the facts before we spend millions on fighting it.

⁴ On balance, it seems that extreme weather is probably linked to climate change, but we can't be completely sure about this. My own view is that we can't take the risk of waiting until we are absolutely certain about climate change, as by then it will be too late to stop it. It's far cheaper to invest in cleaner forms of energy now than to fight climate change in the future, and rich countries should lead the way doing it.

2 READING

- a Leon wrote an essay discussing the topic of climate change. Read the essay and answer the questions.
- 1 Which of these sentences best summarises the essay?
 - a He considers arguments for and against climate change and then draws a conclusion.
 - b He sets out to prove that climate change is really happening.
 - 2 What is his conclusion?
 - a We don't know enough about it to act now.
 - b We should act against climate change now or it will be too late.

- b Read the essay again and make notes on the points Leon makes for and against extreme weather being a sign of climate change.

3 WRITING SKILLS Reporting opinions

- a Match four of the descriptions below to paragraphs 1–4 in the essay.
- Introduction – stating the problem
 - Introduction – giving Leon's point of view
 - Arguments against the existence of climate change
 - Arguments for the existence of climate change
 - Conclusion – re-stating the problem
 - Conclusion – summarising the main points and giving Leon's point of view
- b Answer the questions.
- 1 Why does Leon ask a question in the first paragraph?
 - 2 How does Leon make his arguments seem more objective (i.e. not just his own opinion)?

- c Find linking expressions in the essay that mean:

- d Notice how Leon uses expressions like these to report people's opinions.

Most scientists agree that ...

Many people believe that ...

Find more expressions in the essay that:

- 1 report what scientists say or think (x2)
- 2 report what other people say or think (x4)
- 3 report how people feel (x1).

- e Write sentences for and against these questions, using expressions from 3d. Compare your sentences with other students.

Should investment in cleaner forms of energy continue?
Is the climate changing faster now than ever before?
Is it already too late to stop climate change?

4 WRITING

UNIT 6

Around the globe

GETTING STARTED

- a Talk about the photo. What do you think?
- 1 Where are the man and the boy and why?
 - 2 Why aren't they talking to each other?
 - 3 What's on the man's phone? What's on the boy's phone?
- b Discuss the questions.
- 1 Do you prefer travelling alone or with other people?
Why / Why not?
 - 2 What do you usually do while you're waiting in an airport or a train/bus station?
 - 3 What are the positives and negatives of going on long journeys?

6A I'm not going to try to see everything

1 READING and LISTENING

- a Look at photos a–d and read about the four tourist attractions. Have you visited any of these places? Which one would you most like to visit?
- b Read the tourist comments. Which are positive and which are negative?

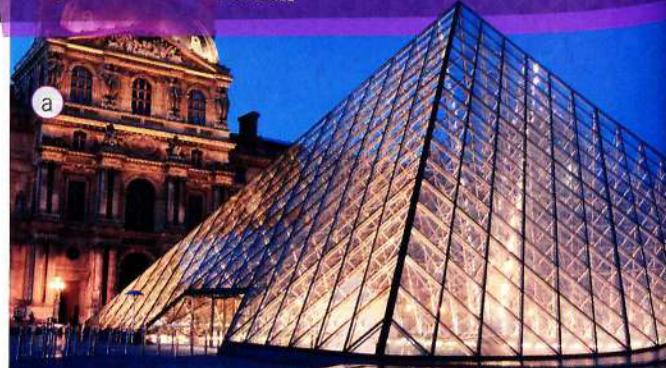

- 1 To see all these amazing things in gold and silver with precious stones like diamonds, and to know they've been used by kings and queens – it was wonderful!
- 2 It sort of felt like a lot of rooms with too much furniture in them. I mean, it was historic and interesting, especially if you like gardens, but it was too much in one visit.
- 3 All these beautiful old religious objects – they were in glass cases and too far away. I wanted to get much closer than that.
- 4 I've never seen so many beautiful paintings in one place – it was extraordinary.
- 5 We spent hours exploring the gardens with lovely statues and fountains – I could have stayed longer.
- 6 We had to keep walking and couldn't stop and look at the crown. It felt like high-pressure tourism.
- 7 Absolutely fascinating – I learnt so much about the Ottoman Empire.
- 8 Over-crowded – and everyone rushing to take a photo of just one famous painting – not a pleasant experience.

- c Match comments 1–8 with the tourist attractions in 1a.
 d ▶ 2.39 Listen to two tourists, Di and Bernie. Which places in 1a do they mention? Do they have the same idea about sightseeing tours?

3 READING

a Read the information from a tourism website about three destinations. Answer the questions.

- 1 What countries are the tourist destinations in?
- 2 Are the places well known?
- 3 Is the main tourist attraction in each place part of nature or is it man-made?

b Read the texts again. Are the sentences true or false?

- 1 Uruapan is an ancient city.
- 2 The Paricutin volcano is still active.
- 3 Colin and his girlfriend left Hanoi because of bad food.
- 4 The people of Ha Long Bay don't live on the islands.
- 5 The wooden constructions on Kizhi Island were built in the 1950s.
- 6 Emmy and her friends felt that visiting Kizhi Island was a special experience.

c Which place do you think sounds most interesting? Which place sounds least interesting? Why?

4 VOCABULARY

Travel and tourism

a Look at the adjectives in bold in the text. Do they have a positive or negative meaning?

b Answer the questions about the adjectives.

- 1 If something is remarkable, is there something special about it or is it quite normal?
- 2 If you see something memorable, is it something that stays in your mind for a long time or do you forget it easily?
- 3 If you think something's exotic, does it seem foreign and unpleasant or foreign and interesting to you?
- 4 If a landmark is breathtaking, is it exciting and surprising or really high up?
- 5 If you feel that something's impressive, is it something you admire or just something that's very big?
- 6 If something's unique, how many are there of them in the world?
- 7 If you think something's superb, do you believe it's very spicy or of very high quality?
- 8 If you see something astonishing, are you very bored or very surprised?
- 9 If something's stunning, does it feel almost as though you've been hit by its beauty or does it mean you think it's quite old-fashioned?
- 10 If you think scenery is dramatic, is it pleasant and interesting or beautiful and exciting?

WHERE TO GO?

We all know about the world's most famous tourist attractions, but what about those places we haven't heard of? Tell us about your favourite places and send us a photo.

URUAPAN

I agree that people always go to the same places. I live in Mexico and tourists always visit places like Mexico City and Acapulco. Not many tourists come to my hometown, Uruapan. It's one of the oldest cities in Mexico. A beautiful river – it's called 'The river that sings' – runs through it, and there are spectacular waterfalls on the outskirts of the city. However, the most amazing feature you can see here is the nearby volcano, Paricutin. It really is quite impressive. You can go trekking up the volcano (it's about 420 metres high). The volcano is extinct so it's perfectly safe. So for some history and some really remarkable scenery, Uruapan is a good choice.

Teresa

HA LONG BAY

It's interesting that not many people talk about Vietnam as a holiday destination. Last year my girlfriend and I went there for the first time. We loved it – the people were great and the food was superb. Hanoi is a busy city, but there are lots of more exotic places you can escape to in Vietnam. The place we loved the most was Ha Long Bay where everyone lives on a floating house! On top of that, all around the bay there are astonishing islands made of limestone. Some of them look like beautiful towers – they're really quite breathtaking. And there are lakes and caves on some of the islands, as well as some very cheeky monkeys. Ha Long Bay is dramatic and beautiful. But best of all, there aren't thousands of tourists – not yet anyway!

KIZHI ISLAND

If you want to see something original and unique, you should go to Kizhi Island in Russia. The whole island is like a museum of stunning wooden constructions that look like they are straight out of a fairy tale. The island's in the middle of Lake Onega in Karelia, Russia. In the 1950s, lots of historic wooden buildings were moved from different parts of Karelia on to the island in order to save them. A couple of years ago, a group of us went to St Petersburg first, then on to Kizhi Island. It's the most memorable holiday I've ever had, and I felt like I'd been transported to another world. Although it's a UNESCO site, not too many people know about it so you won't meet loads of tourists.

3 READING

a Read about three languages. In what ways are they similar? In what ways are they different?

DANGER! DYING LANGUAGES

About half the world's languages are in danger of dying out, and many have already been lost, sometimes without any written record to show what they were like. We look at three languages: one dead, one dying and one which is being brought back to life thanks to one woman's dream.

BO In 2006, the last speaker of Bo, an ancient tribal language, died in the Andaman Islands, off the coast of India, breaking a 65,000-year link to one of the world's oldest cultures. Boa Sr was the last native who was fluent in Bo, which had been spoken since pre-Neolithic times.

Though the language was being studied and recorded by researchers, Boa Sr spent the last years of her life as the only speaker of the language, so she was unable to converse with anyone in her mother tongue. The Bo songs and stories which the old woman told couldn't be understood even by members of related tribes.

N|U Hannah Cooper is one of the few remaining speakers of a southern African language called N|u (the vertical line represents a clicking sound made with the tongue). N|u is now only spoken by about eight people. Now most young people have no interest in learning N|u, which they see as an 'ugly language, just for old people'. Although efforts are being made to save the language from dying out by recording stories and by giving language classes for children, it seems unlikely to survive as a spoken language for more than a few years.

Hannah remembers: 'We all used to get together and speak the language. We gathered together, we discussed issues, we laughed together in N|u.'

WAMPANOAG When the first European settlers landed in North America in 1620, they were helped by a Native American tribe called the Wampanoag, who showed them how to plant corn. The language died out in the early 19th century and there were no fluent speakers of Wampanoag for more than 150 years.

However, one night a young woman called Jessie Little Doe dreamed that her ancestors spoke to her in the Wampanoag language. Inspired by this, she first studied the language herself and then started a programme to revive the language, using old written records and books written in the language. She and her husband are raising their three-year-old daughter entirely in Wampanoag, and every summer they organise a 'language camp', which is attended by a group of about 50 young people and where only Wampanoag is spoken. This is the first time a language with no living speakers for many generations has been revived in a Native American community, and there's a good chance that it will be spoken more widely by future generations of Wampanoag.

b Read the text again and make notes about each language:

- 1 number of speakers
- 3 other important facts
- 2 increasing or decreasing?

c  Imagine you could ask each of the three people mentioned in the text a question. What would you ask? What answer do you think they would give?

4 GRAMMAR The passive

b How do we form the passive?

- a be + past participle
- b have + past participle
- c be + infinitive

c Find and underline other examples of the passive in the text. What tense are they?

d  Now go to Grammar Focus on p.144

e Rewrite the paragraph using the passive, so that the subject remains 'the Nlu language'.

The Nlu language is in serious danger because people only speak it in a few small villages. In the past, people spoke it in a large region of South Africa and Namibia. Linguists have now recorded it and they've written it down and teachers who have learned the language themselves are teaching it to children in schools.

f  Think about languages in your own country and discuss the questions.

- 1 What languages are spoken? What about dialects? Is there one 'official' language or more than one?
- 2 Which languages or dialects do you think are increasing and which are declining? Why?
- 3 Do you think people should be encouraged to use their own language, dialect or accent? Why / Why not?

5 LISTENING and SPEAKING

a You are going to listen to the rest of the interview with Professor Barnett, who tries to preserve endangered languages. How do you think he will answer these questions?

- 1 Does it matter if small languages die out ... ?
 - to the people who speak that language
 - to the wider world
- 2 Isn't it a good idea for everyone to learn a global language?
- 3 Is it possible to stop languages from dying out?

b  Listen and check your ideas.

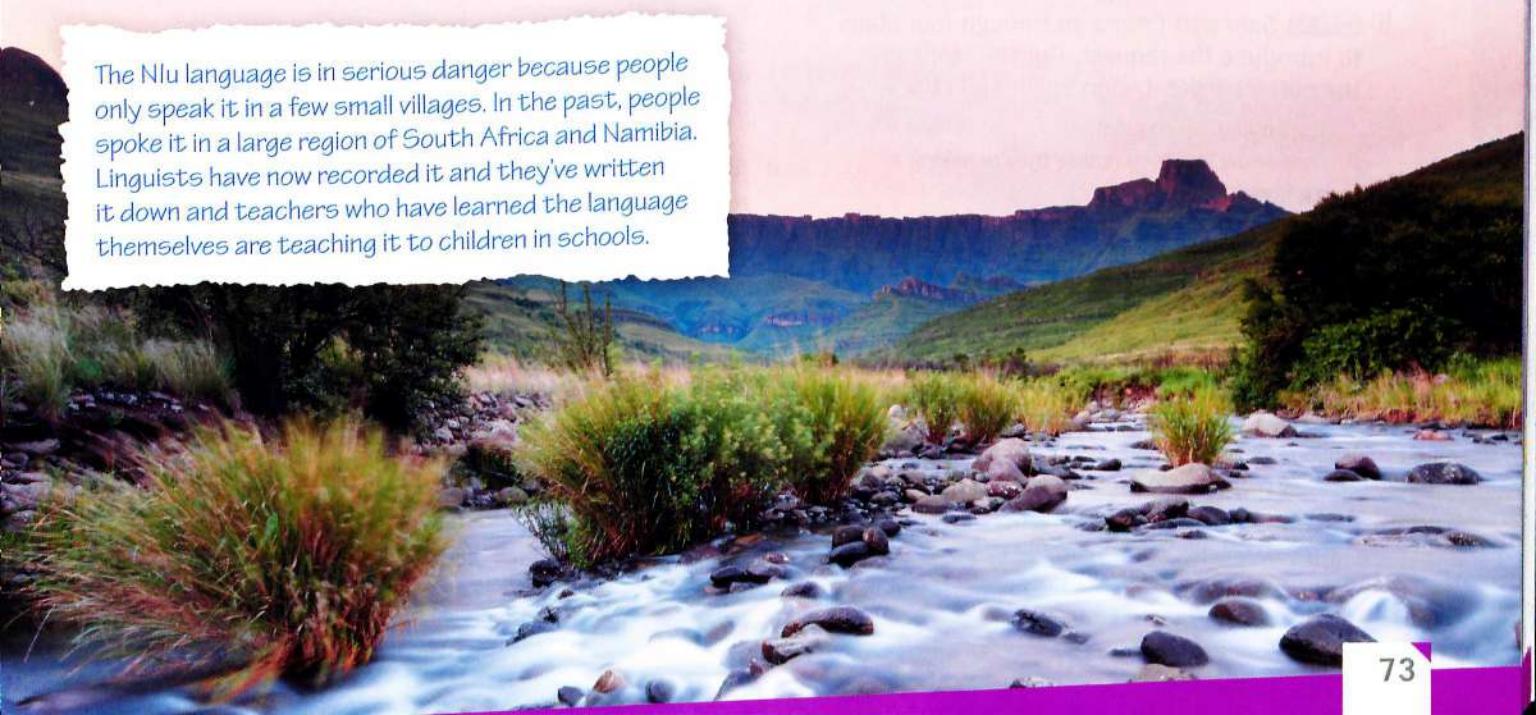

c  Listen again. Tick (✓) the points he makes.

- 1 No one feels happy about their language dying out.
- 2 Languages are just as important as buildings.
- 3 You can translate everything from one language to another.
- 4 You can learn a 'big' language and still keep your own language.
- 5 It's not good for children to be bilingual.
- 6 Children are the key to keeping languages alive.
- 7 Technology can stop languages dying out.

- e Compare your destinations with other students' ideas. Why do you think tourists find these places interesting?

2 READING

- a Read Kirsten's travel blog about their trip. What information does it contain that was not in the recording?

GRAND CANYON

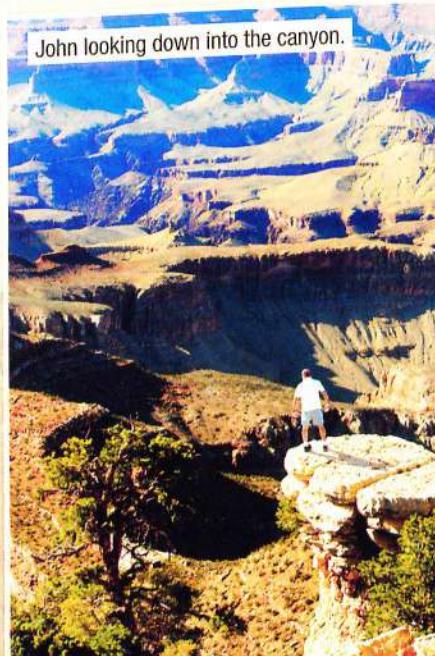

Driving up to the Grand Canyon was an experience in itself. On the historic Route 66, we passed through the heart of the Mojave Desert, which is a huge, flat, salt desert – it was the first time we had seen salt plains. We stopped off at a small town called Williams, where we saw cowboys and a re-enactment of an old shootout that had taken place here in the 1800s.

It was late when we finally found a restaurant, where they let us put up our tents behind the building. To our horror, the airbed had a hole in it, so we had another uncomfortable night's sleep. I could feel stones pressing into my back all night! In the morning, we woke and drove the final 20 kilometres to the Canyon. It was literally breathtaking ... it's hard to describe in words the grandeur and beauty of this natural phenomenon – it was the experience of a lifetime. We drove around the South Rim, which has superb views down into the canyon itself, until we found a campsite. Luckily we found a spot even though it was peak season. We ate, then went to the Desert Drive Watch Tower to watch the sun going down – just amazing.

At 4.45am, we woke and took a walk to watch the sun rise, which was a whole new experience as the light and the shadows made everything look different. After breakfast, we headed up to the village where a bus service took us round the other part of the South Rim. We took a short walk and we were very lucky to see a condor, as their numbers have declined and there are now only about 30 left – they are huge and very impressive. We watched it circling right above our heads. Again, the scenery was fantastic and we saw the canyon from a few different viewpoints.

After that we drove to Lake Mead for a few days to relax before the madness of Las Vegas. Vegas – here we come!

This is me walking in the salt desert (or trying to – it was 35°).

3 WRITING SKILLS Using descriptive language

- a Kirsten says the sunset was amazing. Find five other adjectives in the blog that mean very beautiful or very big.

- b Look at the adjectives and phrases in the box. Which of them have a positive meaning and which have a negative meaning?

disappointing fabulous awesome uninspiring mind-blowing ordinary unbelievable out of this world dull awe-inspiring unforgettable

- c Which adjectives/phrases in 3b can be used to complete these sentences?

- 1 The scenery was absolutely _____.
2 The scenery was very _____.

Can you think of adverbs to replace absolutely and very?

- d Change these sentences to make the meaning stronger. Use adjectives and phrases from 3a and 3b.

- 1 Manhattan was good and I thought the buildings were very nice.
2 The Niagara Falls were beautiful. We went on a boat below the Falls – it was very good.
3 People say that Las Vegas is a nice place to visit, but I thought it was not very good.

- e Kirsten also uses three expressions with experience to describe the trip. Find the examples in 2a and complete the expressions below.

- 1 It was an experience _____.
2 It was the experience _____.
3 ... which was a whole _____ experience.

 - 3 Modern life is bad for our health.

Quick – slow down!

Speed worship

We love speed. When it comes to doing business and connecting with people, speed is important. We need to get our work done faster. We worry that we're too slow, that we aren't efficient enough or productive enough to succeed. We need to get there first. How do we do this? We speed up. Why? Because we seem to associate 'slow' with failure, inefficiency and perhaps worse: laziness.

City life

Many people complain that they don't have enough time. They have too much work to do every day and there are always too many things that they haven't done. There is pressure to be available 24/7 – to colleagues, clients and friends. We spend around 13 hours a week on emails and an average of three hours a day on social networking sites. RULES FOR SLOWING DOWN

- 1 Put your feet up and stare idly out of the window. (Warning: Do not attempt this while driving.)
- 2 Think about things, take your time. Do not be pushed into answering questions. A response is not the same as an answer.
- 3 Yawn often. Medical studies have shown that yawning may be good for you.
- 4 Bright lights and screens before bed will make sleeping difficult. So avoid gaming and social networking late in the evening.
- 5 Spend more time in bed. When it's time to get out of bed in the morning, don't. Sit there for half an hour and do nothing. Then get up slowly.
- 6 Read long, slow stories.
- 7 Spend more time in the bath.
- 8 Practise doing nothing. (Yes, this is the difficult one.)

life looking for a parking space and up to three days a year in traffic jams. We have less time to relax, and this makes us more impatient and less polite. Even birds are affected by the pace of urban living – blackbirds in cities get up earlier and go to sleep later than rural blackbirds.

b Read Quick – slow down quickly and check your ideas.

c Read the article again. What connection does the writer make between ... ?

- 1 speed and business
- 2 slowness and laziness
- 3 time and city life
- 4 relaxing and our mood
- 5 work and sleep
- 6 'sleep debt' and alcohol
- 7 tiredness and health

d How could you live more slowly? Compare your ideas.

e Read Rules for slowing down. Were they the same as your ideas in 2d? Which ones are ... ?

- things you do already
- things you don't do, but you think are a good idea
- things you think are a bad idea

Time poverty and sleep debt

Economist Juliet Schor calculated that people in most jobs now work the equivalent of a full month more each year than they did two decades earlier. In addition to this, scientist Russell Foster says that people get about two hours less sleep than they did 60 years ago.

This results in 'sleep debt', in other words people have so little sleep over such a long period of time that they are permanently tired. Studies done on doctors who hadn't had enough sleep showed that they had the same reaction speed as people who had drunk two glasses of beer. Being so tired can also seriously affect your health – scientists have discovered a link between sleep debt and cancer, heart disease, diabetes, infections and obesity.

Slow seeing

We are in such a hurry that we are creating big problems for ourselves. The answer to this is simple: slow down! Slowing down gives us the opportunity to see things more clearly and make the right decisions, and in the end it may help us to have better ideas and a healthier life. Einstein, one of the greatest scientific minds of all time, spent a lot of time daydreaming, and psychologists agree that this helps us to be more creative. So sit back and do nothing for a little while – your brain and body will thank you for it.

3 GRAMMAR too/enough; so/such a Put too, too much, too many or enough in the correct place in each sentence. Then check your answers in the article Quick – slow down!

c Discuss the questions.

- 1 What kinds of reality TV programmes are there in your country?
- 2 Do you enjoy these programmes? Why / Why not?

d Read the article quickly. What is the main point the critic wants to make about reality TV? Choose the correct answer.

- 1 We no longer need stories for entertainment. Real people are more interesting.
- 2 Reality TV is in danger of creating unreal expectations about life.
- 3 A lot of the 'reality' in reality TV programmes is invented.

e Read the article again. In what way does the writer think reality is managed in these kinds of TV programmes?

- survival
- cooking
- home renovation
- garden makeover

f If what the writer says is true ... ?

- does this make the programmes less enjoyable
- are TV producers and directors being dishonest

WHO PUTS THE 'REAL' IN REALITY

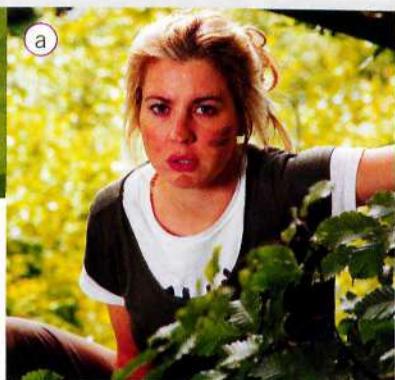

These days we like our entertainment to be real. We watch people go off to extreme environments to see who's the most successful survivor. We can't get enough of chefs fighting it out to prove they're the best. Then there are the people who transform their homes, their gardens or even themselves in front of a TV camera. But what's really going on in these programmes?

Let's imagine someone called Julie. She isn't a real person – I've made her up – but she could be real. She's the kind of person who might appear on a reality TV show. You know, she's someone who lives a quiet life in a small town somewhere but then she decides to do something really extreme and dangerous on TV. Of course, it helps that she has got one or two big fears hiding under that quiet exterior – the type of thing that's going to come to the surface when, like the woman in the picture above, she's lost in the forest with no map ... But, of course, we tend to forget the film crew that's filming all this. I'm sure they're very helpful. It's also possible that the director asked Julie to crawl through the bushes more than once – just so he could get a better shot.

What about those cooking programmes? They're all good cooks, aren't they? Well, yes, they are. But that's not always why they get chosen. TV producers want drama so they need a range of personalities on the show. Imagine a cooking competition where the cooks all got on really well and co-operated. In other words, no conflict. Is that the kind of reality we want to watch on TV?

A NEW LIFE IN 5 MINUTES

And then there's the makeover programme – you know, the new home, the new garden or the new-look you. Haven't you ever stopped to wonder how people on these programmes miraculously have a new kitchen after just one weekend? Remember your family's kitchen renovations? They took forever. On these programmes they like to speed up reality just a bit. While many of these programmes use professional tradespeople, others claim the renovation is all the work of the contestants. But did Julie really manage to repaint those walls between morning tea and lunch by herself? No, the director had some of it done by a professional painter. It probably would have taken Julie all weekend.

And wasn't Julie clever coming up with such a beautiful design for her garden? It's so good you would almost think that a landscape architect had done it. The chances are that's exactly what happened – the TV company got the design done by an expert.

DISASTER STRIKES ... OR DOES IT?

Finally, let's not forget those little crisis moments along the way. Julie would love to be able to buy that designer fridge because it would make all the difference to her home makeover. But no, she's only got so much to spend and this just might blow her budget. Don't panic, dear viewer, the TV production company has got lots of money, and there's nothing to stop them increasing Julie's budget. The production company can afford to let Julie buy ten designer fridges without stopping to think about it.

TV production companies would like us to believe that what we see on TV actually happens. Well, it does, but only sort of. What we're really seeing is a kind of managed reality. Real reality on TV would probably be like real life – a bit slow and boring.

2 READING

a Read Ryan's email to his friend Rosie about the planned shopping mall. What does he say in the email that he didn't mention in 1b?

Hi Rosie,

Thanks for your message. Great to hear from you. I'm glad your trip's going well.

The big news here is a shopping mall – would you believe it? Last Monday the local government released their urban development plan and it shows that a shopping mall's going to be built just across the road. My parents think it's a great idea, but I think it's going to be a disaster. It'll just mean a whole lot of the same horrible chain stores. And there'll be so much traffic!

But the thing that really makes me angry is that they aren't going to discuss this with people who live in the area. It looks like they're planning to just go ahead with building the mall. I'm sure they're not allowed to do that. Actually, I'm going to write an email to the local government and complain. I think a few people are planning to do that – maybe we can get them to change their minds.

I'd better get on with it. Hope you keep having fun!
All the best,
Ryan

- b Read Ryan's email to the local government. What is the main reason for his complaint?
- 1 The problems the local community will have when the mall is built.
 - 2 The way the local government has communicated the plan for the mall.

Subject: Planned Riverway Shopping Mall

Dear Sir/Madam,

^aI am writing regarding the intention to build a shopping mall which was outlined in the urban development plan.

^bIn my neighbourhood there is a great deal of concern about the effect the mall will have on our local community. However, what worries us most of all is the fact that there has been no discussion with local residents. We understand that before a change of this nature can become part of a plan, a proposal needs to be sent out so residents can give feedback on it.

^cIn the past few days, I have tried to contact different local councillors to find out how the plan was agreed, but no one has returned my calls. I also visited your offices and asked to see the minutes of the meeting where the plan was discussed. I was told they were not available. The person I spoke to suggested that I should write this email.

^dI believe that what you are doing is against the law and I would formally like to request that local government withdraws the plan and puts out a proposal that can be discussed with local residents.

^eIf I do not hear from you within two days, my next step will be to get in touch with the media. This will ensure there is a discussion of the plan in local media and also online.

I look forward to a prompt reply.

Yours faithfully,

Ryan Fitzgerald

IS IT TIME TO GIVE UP ON CASH?

¹If I asked you to put down this article and take out your wallet or purse, what would you find inside? There would probably be quite a few plastic cards there, but how many of you have got any cash?

²For years now, economists have predicted a gradual move to what is called a 'cashless society'. Most payments are already made by putting a plastic card into a machine and entering our pin code, or by simply waving the card in front of the machine.

⁵And it's certainly still possible to cheat and steal in a cashless society. If you manage to cheat someone and you never have to look them in the eye, then it's easier to take the payment. In a psychological test, people were twice as likely to accept a dishonest digital payment as a dishonest cash payment. Once again, psychologists suggest that the sense of being remote from payment in a cashless scenario increased the likelihood of dishonesty.

⁶So, while we might laugh at the idea of our grandparents with money hidden under the mattress, maybe the joke is on us. In our bright, shiny, plastic, cashless society maybe things are not as wonderful as we think they are. Perhaps it's a society that's not quite as honest as we'd like to believe. Without doubt, it's a world where we feel distanced from the consequences of the purchases we make. Reality arrives in the form of a large credit card bill at the end of the month. So perhaps we're more efficient in our cashless society, but are we any happier?

2 Would you buy tickets for a big event like this? Why / Why not? Would you go if someone bought you a ticket?

- b Read the article Honest London? What did the newspaper want to find out?

- 1 if people wanted to go to the Closing Ceremony
- 2 if the Olympic Games had made people more honest
- 3 if people in London are friendly

- c 3.21 Listen to four people saying what they would have done. Which person would have ... ?

- 1 opened the letter and used the tickets
- 2 opened the letter, then posted it
- 3 taken no notice of the letter
- 4 posted the letter without opening it

- d 3.21 Listen again. What is the main point that each speaker makes? Choose a or b.

Speaker 1

- a You shouldn't open letters that aren't addressed to you.
- b The person who lost the letter was very careless.

Speaker 2

- a It must be great to go to the Closing Ceremony at the Olympics.
- b You can't enjoy an event if the tickets are stolen.

Speaker 3

- a If you find a ticket, it's OK to keep it for yourself.
- b You can't be sure what's in an envelope, so it's better to check.

Speaker 4

- a It can be dangerous to pick up an envelope in the street.
- b Someone else might want the ticket more.

- e ► Communication 8B Go to p.133 and find out what people in London did. Then answer the questions.

- 1 How honest were Londoners during the Olympics according to this test?
- 2 In what way was Julia 'not only nice but also rather smart'?
- 3 Do you think it was a reliable test? Why / Why not?

HONEST
LONDON?

What do you think people in London are like? Do you think they're kind, friendly and helpful, or are they busy and stressed out? If you travel on the underground, do you think people will smile at you or will they stare straight ahead?

In fact, like most big cities, London doesn't have a reputation as being a very friendly place, nor a particularly honest one. If you drop your wallet in the street, you shouldn't expect someone to run after you and give it back. But when the Olympics were held in London in 2012, people said that having a major international event in their city made people not only prouder of their city, but also friendlier and more honest.

A major London newspaper wanted to see how kind and honest Londoners really were during the Olympics, so they dropped 50 stamped envelopes around the city addressed to 'Jeremy Fingham' with a London address. A note was written on the back which said 'Closing Ceremony tickets for Jeremy'. Inside were two pieces of blank card that would feel exactly like Olympic tickets. Some were left on café tables in folded newspapers, some on the Underground and some were dropped in the street near postboxes.

Would people be tempted to take the tickets for themselves, or would they put the letter in the post to Mr Fingham?

3 SPEAKING

- a Work in two pairs. You are going to read about two 'moral dilemmas'. Pair A: Go to 1 below. Pair B: Go to p.132.

- 1 Read the story and answer the questions.

- a Why was George stopped?
- b Why did they want him to sit in the police car?
- c Why did he pay them?

THE BRIBE

George Manley, his wife and two children were driving home late at night from a winter holiday. They were in a hurry to get home because their four-year-old son had a high temperature, so George was driving over the speed limit. Suddenly he saw the flashing blue lights of a police car behind him. The police car stopped them and as it was a cold night the officers asked him to bring his papers and come and sit in the police car. Then, to his surprise, they told him he would need to go to the police station to pay the fine and this would take several hours as the police station was about 50 km away. Instead, George could simply pay them in cash and he could drive on with no delay; they would fill in the forms at the police station the next day. He knew he was being asked to pay a bribe. Yet there was his young son, feeling sick and increasingly desperate to get home to bed. Quickly, he paid the money and drove on. He said nothing about it to his wife, because he knew she wouldn't agree with what he had done.

- 2 What do you think George should have done? Why?
- 3 What would you have done?

- b  Work with a student who read about the other dilemma. Take turns talking about your stories. Do you agree with each other's ideas?

DID THE DOCTOR DO IT?

¹If you enjoy a classic ‘whodunit’ and you want a great read, you can’t do better than The Nursing Home Murder. This is my absolute favourite, old-fashioned crime story, which I read on my last summer holiday. The Nursing Home Murder was written by Ngaio Marsh in 1935 and one of the things I love about it is the authentic 1930s atmosphere of the story and characters.

²The main setting is a private hospital (these were called ‘nursing homes’ in the 1930s) in London. In the home, a famous politician, Sir Derek O’Callaghan, dies after an operation. At first, it seems that his death is the result of complications associated with surgery. However, his wife is suspicious and we eventually discover that he was deliberately poisoned during the operation. All the doctors and the nurses in the operating team had a motive for killing Sir Derek. It’s up to Chief Detective Inspector Alleyn of Scotland Yard to find the murderer.

³What makes this a classic whodunit is the fact that the murder takes place in an enclosed space with a limited number of suspects. Clues are gradually revealed as the story continues, and the detective’s approach to solving the crime is highly original. It’s an example of very imaginative crime fiction. The other thing I loved is that the characters are all very clearly described, and they’re all a bit eccentric in one way or another, including the detective.

⁴*The Nursing Home Murder* is a hugely entertaining read and I really recommend it if you want to escape into a mystery story set in a completely different place and time. I couldn’t put it down and it kept me guessing all the way through.

1 READING

- a Read about inventions in medical science. Do you think they are fact or fiction?

MEDICAL SCIENCE OR SCIENCE FICTION?

- 1 Blind people can see with a video camera that transmits images to the back of their eyes.
- 2 A person's genes can be changed, so they stop eating food that makes them overweight.
- 3 Hospital patients can wear electronic skin to send radio waves from their body to machines.
- 4 During an operation, it's likely that a computer tablet will care for you.
- 5 Medical scientists are close to finding a vaccine against the common cold.
- 6 It'll soon be possible to prevent people from suffering from food allergies.
- 7 Electronic devices placed in the chests of asthma sufferers can permanently cure the illness.
- 8 A small electronic device put in the brain of an epilepsy sufferer can stop them from having seizures.

- b Read the article Too good to be true? Which of the inventions in 1a are facts?

Too good to be true?

We're always hoping for the next medical miracle – like a simple pill that can cure cancer. Often we hear of breakthroughs in medical science that sound almost too good to be true. However, sometimes they really are as good as they say they are. Here are five inventions from the world of medical science. If they sound like science fiction, that just means that the future is here – now.

1 Black and white

Wouldn't it be great if people who had lost their sight could see again? This is already happening for some blind people. A small device is put in the back part of a blind person's eye. They then wear special sunglasses with a camera, which transmits images to the device. It isn't a perfect system, but it's enough for them to be able to walk down a footpath or to know the difference between black and white socks.

c Read the article again. Are the sentences true or false?

- 1 Anyone who's blind is able to get some sight back with the new glasses and almost see perfectly.
- 2 Electronic skin can be used to monitor patients and speed up the healing process.
- 3 The tablet now means that the anaesthetist can leave the patient once the operation begins.
- 4 Scientists hope that it will be possible to turn off other allergies in the future.
- 5 The epilepsy device has two functions: prediction and prevention.

2 It's all about comfort

In hospital, patients often complain about all the uncomfortable cables and wires that connect them to monitors. It's now possible to get rid of all this wiring simply by putting on electronic skin. This piece of 'skin' is very small and very thin. It's about the size of a postage stamp and as thick as a piece of human hair. It's made of silicon and is attached using water in the same way that a fake tattoo is. Despite being extremely small and thin, the skin contains electronic circuits that can receive and send radio waves to and from monitors. It can also be used to help heal wounds by sending out heat that speeds up the repair process.

3 Under the care of three

During an operation, there's always a surgeon in the operating theatre and an anaesthetist, whose job is to check the patient constantly. In the past, the anaesthetist had to watch the patient carefully, but these days they are also likely to use a touchscreen computer like a tablet. This tablet monitors key functions like breathing and heart rate, but more importantly, it can send the anaesthetist warnings and suggest how medication should be altered during the operation. It also keeps a record of everything the surgeon does. So these days, when you have an operation, you're under the care of three 'professionals': the surgeon, the anaesthetist and the tablet.

4 Sometimes a matter of life and death

It's surprising how many people are allergic to different kinds of food. Sometimes this can be life-threatening, for example for people who are allergic to peanuts. Scientists at Northwestern University in Chicago have found a way to turn off an allergy to peanuts. They attached some peanut protein to blood cells and reintroduced them into the body of someone suffering from the allergy. This makes the body think that peanuts are no longer a threat and there's no allergic response. Scientists think this approach could be used with a wide range of food allergies.

5 Warning signs

People who suffer from epilepsy never know when they are going to have an attack. This lack of certainty can be very stressful. Researchers have now created a device that makes an epileptic seizure predictable. These very small devices are planted in the brain. They're able to tell if an attack is about to happen and they can then send out electrical signals to other parts of the brain that can stop the seizure.

d Discuss the questions.

- 1 Which of the inventions do you think is the biggest breakthrough in medical science? Why?
- 2 Imagine a medical invention you would like to exist. What would it do? Why would you like it to be real?

2 VOCABULARY Health

a Underline the medical verb in each example. Then match the verbs with definitions 1–3.

... simple pill that can cure cancer.
It can also be used to help heal wounds ...
... a computer tablet will care for you.

- 1 treat a disease and make healthy again
- 2 look after
- 3 treat an injury and make healthy again

b Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verbs in the box.

get develop strain come treat

- 1 I feel terrible. I've _____ down with the flu.
- 2 His doctor _____ his throat infection with antibiotics and that helped.
- 3 I can't stand up for very long, because I've _____ my back.
- 4 I don't want to go out yet. I'm still _____ over a heavy cold.
- 5 People who eat too much fatty food are likely to _____ heart disease.

UNIT 9

- C Match verbs 1–5 with the pictures. Two verbs describe one picture.

- 3 What does Rosie suggest that Toby does to reduce crop production?
- 4 What does Rosie say about the taste of the meat?
- 5 Why does Rosie think it's strange that Toby's worried about global warming?

- c Whose point of view do you agree with more, Toby's or Rosie's?

4 GRAMMAR Relative clauses

- a Look at these examples from the conversation. Underline the relative clause. Decide if it adds information about a thing (T), a person (P) or a place (PL).

- 1 Yeah, there's this laboratory where they're growing meat.
- 2 There was that scientist who made his own hamburger and ate it online.
- 3 But all these tiny pieces of meat that they have to push together just to make one burger
- 4 And the end result is something which costs €250,000.
- 5 There's no fat or blood in it, which means no flavour.
- 6 I mean, these scientists, who are sort of like Dr Frankenstein, how can they justify that?

- b Answer the questions about the clauses you underlined in 4a. Which clauses ... ?

- 1 add extra information that is not necessary to the overall meaning of the sentence
- 2 are necessary for the sentence to make sense

1 READING

a Discuss the questions.

- 1 What kind of music do you like?
- 2 Who are your favourite singers?
- 3 Do you know any music from before the 1990s?

b Look at the picture of Sixto Rodriguez. What kind of music do you think he played? What do you think his life was like?

c Read the article The rockstar who wasn't about the first part of Rodriguez's music career. Which of these sentences describes Rodriguez when the two producers first met him?

- 1 He was well known as a brilliant musician.
- 2 He was almost completely unknown and playing in small nightclubs.
- 3 He was quite well known in Detroit, but not very successful.

d Read the article again. Are the statements true, false or we don't know?

- 1 The Sewer was a luxurious nightclub in Detroit.
- 2 It took them some time to see who Rodriguez was.
- 3 They were surprised by the way Rodriguez played.
- 4 Rodriguez made two successful albums.
- 5 Rodriguez wasn't talented enough to become famous.
- 6 Rodriguez carried on recording music after he left the record company.

e Does the article give us any idea why Rodriguez wasn't successful? What do you think could be the reasons? Why do you think he was becoming famous in South Africa?

THE ROCK STAR WHO WASN'T

Sixto Rodriguez was a Detroit singer-songwriter, an "inner city poet" who looked like he would become a star. But his breakthrough album failed to sell, his second album didn't do any better and his record label dropped him. That's when his story became very strange indeed; a story of talent, bad luck and a happy ending many years later.

In 1968, two record producers, Dennis Coffey and Mike Theodore, heard that a singer called Sixto Rodriguez was playing in The Sewer, a rundown nightclub on the edge of Detroit. They were told that he was 'as great as Bob Dylan', but no one knew who he was. So, one evening, they decided to drive down to the nightclub and have a look for themselves.

The nightclub was so dark and smoky that at first they couldn't see anything. For a moment they weren't sure if they had come to the right place, but then they spotted him. He was playing the guitar in a corner with his back to the audience singing quietly, almost to himself. His music was amazing and they knew immediately that they wanted to record him.

A few days later they asked him if he wanted to sign a contract and he agreed. Over the next two years he made two brilliant albums, but hardly any copies were sold. Steve Rowland, producer of the second album, often wondered why Rodriguez didn't succeed. 'This guy was like a wise man, a prophet, I've never worked with anyone as talented.' Two months after his second record came out, the record company told Rodriguez that they had dropped him from their label. Rodriguez vanished from the music scene. He went back to his life in Detroit and to his old job, doing building work and renovating old houses to make ends meet and raise his three daughters. He never recorded another album.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the world, in South Africa, Rodriguez was becoming a star.

2 GRAMMAR

Reported speech; reporting verbs

- a Look at these examples of things people said or thought.

Sixto Rodriguez is playing in The Sewer tonight.

We definitely want to record this guy.

Sorry, we've dropped you from our label.

These statements or thoughts are reported in the sentences below using reporting verbs. Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verbs above.

Then check your answers in the text.

- They heard that a singer called Sixto Rodriguez _____ (play) in The Sewer.
- They knew immediately that they _____ (want) to record him.
- The record company told Rodriguez that they _____ (drop) him from their label.

- b Complete the rule with the correct answers.

Because the reporting verbs (heard, told, knew) are in the present / past, what the people said moves 'one tense back' into the present / past.

- c Look at these examples of questions people asked or thought.

Do you want to sign a contract?

Who is he?

Have we come to the right place?

Complete the reported questions with the correct form of the verbs above. Check your answers in the article.

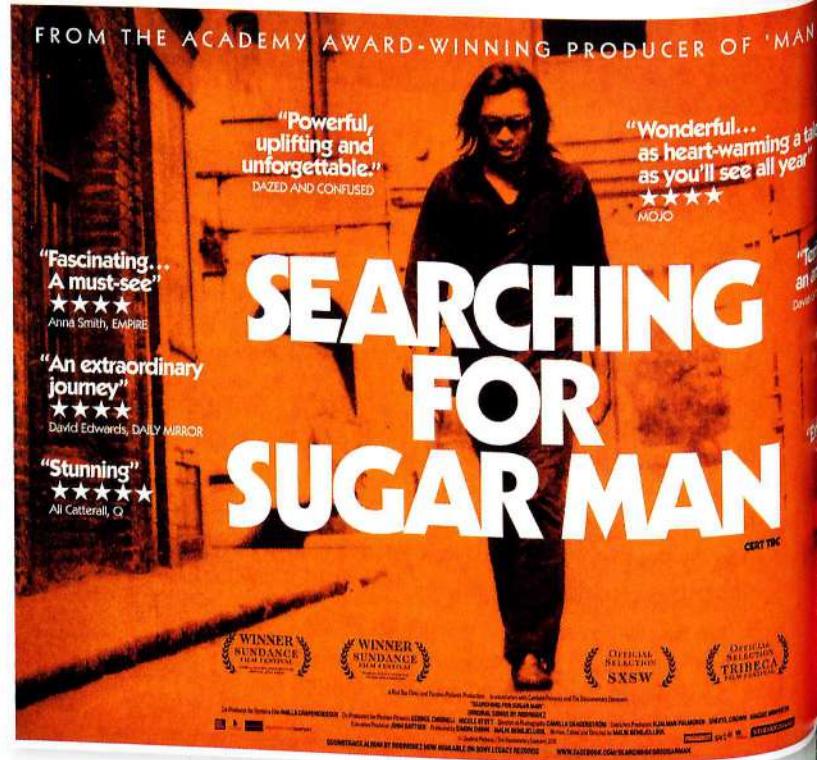

- No one knew who he _____.
- For a moment they weren't sure if they _____ to the right place.
- A few days later they asked him if he _____ to sign a contract.

Choose the correct word to complete the rule:
In reported questions use / don't use question word order.

- d Now go to Grammar Focus on p.150

- e Correct the mistakes in these sentences.

- They weren't quite sure if they came to the right place.
- They asked him if he can meet them the next day.
- They didn't understand why does no one want to buy the album.
- They wondered will the second record be successful.

3 READING

- a Look at these key phrases from the final part of the story of Rodriguez. What do you think happened? Try to make up a story using as many phrases as possible.

- b Look at the exchanges. Which are social situations? Which are work situations? Underline the expressions in B's replies used to clarify misunderstandings.

- 1 A I'm off to the movies now.
B I thought that you were going to go to a football game.
- 2 A Our next meeting's in two weeks.
B I understood that we were going to meet once a week.
- 3 A Here's your ticket. It's £50.
B Did I get this wrong? I thought it was free.
- 4 A By the end of this month, you'll be able to take a week's holiday.
B Have I misunderstood something? I thought I could take two weeks holiday.
- 5 A How about if I make the starter and you make the dessert?
B Didn't we say that I'd make the starter?

1 SPEAKING and LISTENING

a Discuss the questions.

- 1 Do you think alternative treatments really work or do you think people just imagine that they work?
- 2 What kinds of alternative medicine are common in your country?
- 3 If you were ill, would you try alternative medicine? Why / Why not?

Alternative medicine Kinds of medical treatment that use different methods from standard Western medicine (also called conventional medicine). Examples of alternative medicine are homeopathy, herbal medicine and acupuncture.

b 3.50 Listen to people talking about four alternative treatments. What treatment does each person talk about? Match them with the photos.

c Listen again and answer the questions for all the speakers.

- 1 Why did the person try this treatment?
- 2 What did the doctor/therapist do?
- 3 Does the speaker feel positive or negative about it?
- 4 Do we know if the treatment worked?

2 READING

a Read Aisha's essay The value of alternative medicine. Which sentence best summarises her argument?

- 1 Conventional medicine is more effective but alternative medicine may be useful sometimes.
- 2 Alternative medicine is often more effective than conventional medicine, so it should be used more widely.
- 3 Conventional and alternative medicine work in different ways and both of them are important.

The value of People often have extreme points of view about alternative medicine. People who believe in conventional medicine often argue that alternative medicine is of no use at all and supporters of alternative medicine sometimes claim that it can replace conventional medicine completely.

There are several good reasons for taking alternative medicine seriously. Firstly, many forms of alternative medicine, such as acupuncture and herbal medicine, have a very long tradition and are widely used in many parts of the world. It's important not to ignore traditional knowledge that has been developed over centuries.

b Look at the points that Aisha makes in her essay. Which are about conventional medicine and which are about alternative medicine? Write C or A.

- 1 It has been used for a very long time and in many different countries.
- 2 It is usually cheaper.
- 3 It may have harmful side effects.
- 4 We can't show scientifically that it works.
- 5 People who use it often say it works.

3 WRITING SKILLS

Presenting a series of arguments a Aisha's essay in 2a has five paragraphs. What is the purpose of each one? Complete the sentences.

- 1 In the first paragraph, she outlines ...
- 2 In the next three paragraphs, she presents ...
- 3 In the final paragraph, she summarises ...

b Find six expressions in Aisha's essay which introduce arguments and points of view.

People often argue ...

c Aisha uses linking words and phrases to show how her ideas join together. Find words and phrases that mean:

- 1 also (x2)
- 2 but
- 3 so
- 4 although
- 5 finally

d Choose one of the topics below and think about your point of view. Write three sentences about the topic, using expressions from 3b and 3c.

- Are zoos cruel to animals?
- Does dieting make people fat?
- Is democracy the best system for all countries?
- Is love a good basis for marriage?
- Should smoking be made illegal?

4 WRITING

a Think again about the topic you chose in 3d. Plan an essay using the structure in 3a. Think about:

- how you will introduce the topic
- what arguments you will present and what examples you will give to support them
- what conclusion you will give.

b Write the essay in around 200 words.

c Swap essays with your partner. Read the essay. Does it ... ?

- have a clear introduction and conclusion
- present the arguments clearly, with a separate paragraph for each main idea
- include examples to support the arguments
- use appropriate expressions to introduce the arguments

d Work in new pairs. Read another student's essay. Then say if you agree with his/her viewpoint and why.

alternative medicine

One argument against alternative medicine is that there is very little scientific evidence to prove that it is effective. Yet, in spite of the lack of scientific evidence, people who use alternative therapies generally say that they work. This suggests that alternative therapies may perhaps work in ways that we do not yet fully understand. Furthermore, people are often prepared to spend a large amount of money on alternative treatment, despite the fact that conventional medicine is usually much cheaper.

In addition, unlike the drugs and antibiotics used in conventional medicine that can be harmful to the human body, most alternative therapies are completely harmless. Homeopathic treatments, for example, have few or no side effects and consequently the worst that can happen is that they have no effect at all.

In conclusion, I believe that conventional medicine and alternative therapies should exist side by side. They work in completely different ways and are often effective for different kinds of illness, so they should both be seen as a useful way to keep us healthy.

1 READING

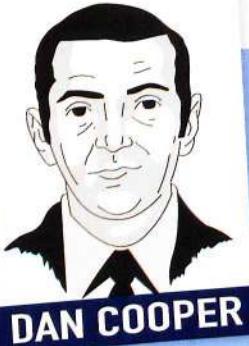

- a You are going to read a story about Dan Cooper, who mysteriously disappeared in 1971. Look at the pictures of people and events in the story. Can you guess what happened?
- b Read The man who disappeared quickly. How similar is it to your ideas?

c Find sentences in the story which show that:

- 1 the flight from Portland to Seattle was a short one
- 2 we're not sure if Dan Cooper was the man's real name
- 3 the passengers didn't know about the note or the bomb
- 4 Cooper told the pilots to fly towards Mexico as slowly and as low as possible
- 5 the pilots didn't want to leave the rear door open
- 6 the pilots knew when the rear door was opened

d Discuss the questions.

- What questions would you like answered that are not explained in the text?
- Do you think Cooper survived? What would you prefer to believe, that he survived or that he didn't survive? Why?

The man who DISAPPEARED

Flight attendant Florence Schaffner was sitting in her seat during take-off. A man in a seat near her passed her a note. It read: 'I have a bomb in my briefcase. I will use it if necessary. Sit next to me.'

It was 2.50 pm on 24 November 1971 on flight 305, a 30-minute flight from Portland to Seattle in the north-west of the USA. And it was the beginning of one of the strangest stories in the history of plane travel – a mystery that remains unsolved to this day. The man's name – or at least, the name he gave when he bought the ticket – was Dan Cooper. Of course, this might not have been his real name; no one really knows for sure.

Schaffner quietly got up and sat next to the man. He opened his briefcase slightly and she glimpsed eight red sticks inside before he closed it again. Then Cooper made his demands: $200,000 (a huge amount of money in 1971), four parachutes and a fuel truck ready at Seattle Airport to refuel the plane. The attendant told the pilot, who passed the demands to the airline company and they agreed to them. The other passengers were told there was a 'technical difficulty' and the plane circled for almost two hours over the sea to give the airline time to get the money and parachutes ready.

Cooper was told that his demands had been met and the plane landed at Seattle-Tacoma airport at 5.45 pm. The money (in $20 notes) and the parachutes were delivered and the passengers and Schaffner left the plane. Cooper talked to the pilots and ordered them to fly towards Mexico at minimum speed and altitude, with a refuelling stop in Reno. The plane, a Boeing 727, had a door at the back which opened downwards – Cooper ordered the pilots to leave it open all the time. They objected, so Cooper said that he himself would open it when they were in the air.

After refuelling, the plane took off at approximately 7.40, with Cooper and four crew members on board. After take-off, Cooper told the lone flight attendant to go to the cockpit. As she went, she saw him tie something around his waist, which may have been the bags of money. At eight o'clock, a warning light went on in the cockpit, so they knew that he must have opened the rear door. The plane landed in Reno at 10.15, with the rear door still open. Police searched the plane immediately, but they quickly confirmed that Cooper was gone.

Cooper was never seen again, dead or alive. No one has even found out if he really was Dan Cooper. And many people say that he can't have survived the jump (if indeed he jumped – he could have hidden on the plane and then escaped later) but no body, or parachute, was ever found. A bag with almost $6,000 of the money was found in a river, but the rest never showed up. The money might have belonged to Cooper, but even that wasn't certain.

Over 40 years later, the crime remains unsolved – and it will probably remain that way for ever.

2 GRAMMAR Past modals of deduction a Match sentences 1–5 with meanings a–d.

- 1 He tied something round his waist, which may have been the bags of money.
 - 2 Many people say that he can't have survived the jump.
 - 3 It might not have been his real name.
 - 4 He could have hidden on the plane.
 - 5 A warning light went on in the cockpit, so they knew that he must have opened the door.
- a It seems certain that this was the case.
 b It seems certain that this was not the case.
 c It's possible that this was the case. (x2)
 d It's possible that this was not the case.

b Look at the examples in 2a again.

- 1 Complete the rule with the modal verbs in the box.

To speculate about things in the past:

- we use _____ or _____ + have + past participle to talk about things we think are certain
- we use _____, _____ or _____ + have + past participle to talk about things we think are possible.

2 Choose the correct answer, a or b.

- must and can't mean a) the same b) the opposite
- may, might and could mean a) the same b) the opposite

3 In the examples have is:

- a part of the present perfect tense
- b an infinitive form which always stays the same.

1 Renato Nicolai was in his garden in the south of France when he heard a whistling sound and saw what he thought was an experimental aircraft. He watched as it dropped out of the sky, hovered about two metres off the ground, then rose into the sky and disappeared. When experts studied the place where it had come down, they found a ‘black material’ on the ground that was not oil.

2 A ship called The Joyita disappeared in the Pacific without sending a call for help. It was found a month later floating in the ocean with no one on board. The lifeboats and the food were missing. There was a hole in the side, but it wasn't serious and the engines weren't damaged. The crew was never found.

10 Ten amazing coincidences

The Wreck of the Titan
by Morgan Robertson

Morgan Robertson writes about the Titanic ... 14 years early!

A hundred years before James Cameron made the film Titanic, American author Morgan Robertson wrote a rather unsuccessful book called The Wreck of the Titan about the sinking of an ocean liner. It's a story that's been told lots of times and 13 films have been made about it.

The incredible thing is ...

Robertson's The Wreck of the Titan was published in 1898, that's 14 years before the Titanic was even built.

The similarities between Robertson's work and the Titanic disaster are really improbable. The Titan, like the Titanic, was described as "the largest craft afloat", "like a first class hotel", and "unsinkable". Both ships were British-owned steel vessels, they were both around 800 feet long and they both sank after hitting an iceberg in the North Atlantic, in April, "around midnight".

What's even more unbelievable

In the novel, the Titan crashed into an iceberg 400 miles from the coast of Canada at 25 knots. The real-life Titanic crashed into an iceberg 400 miles from the coast of Canada at 22.5 knots. If you think of the size of the Atlantic, about 40 million square miles, that's such a close guess it seems impossible that Robertson didn't know in advance what was going to happen.

The weirdest thing of all

But maybe the weirdest thing about the Titan were details that were irrelevant to the story, but match what happened to the Titanic. For example, both the Titan and the Titanic had too few lifeboats to take every passenger on board. But it's an odd point to mention in the book when you consider that lifeboats had nothing to do with the story. In the book, when the Titan hit the iceberg the ship sank immediately – so why did Robertson mention the lifeboats? Was it just coincidence or did he somehow know what was going to happen?

GOLDEN DREAMS AND GOLDEN GIRLS!

Too many people never realise their dreams, listing instead all the reasons why they cannot achieve them. Not so for three remarkable American women who never gave up on their dreams. Their stories tell us that you should never give up and you're never too old to make your dream come true.

DIANA NYAD – DON'T STOP SWIMMING!

On September 1, 2013, Diana Nyad became the first person to swim successfully the treacherous Florida Straits, a 177 km passage from Cuba to Florida, without the protection of a shark cage. She was 64 years old.

When she was in her twenties, Diana was already a famous long-distance swimmer, but she retired in 1979. During her early career, Diana had one unsuccessful swim: her attempt to swim from Cuba to Florida in 1978 ended after 42 hours in the water. Although she got on with her life, this unrealised dream remained in the back of her mind.

In early 2010, she turned 60 and decided it was time to pursue her dream again. She began training and, in August 2011, she entered the water to try again 33 years after she first tackled this challenging swim. However, she faced strong winds and sea currents and had to give up after 29 hours in the water.

She tried again a month later, but still wasn't successful. She waited until the following year for her fourth attempt, but pain from jellyfish stings forced her to give up. Her fifth attempt began on 31st August 2013. After 53 hours in the water, she reached Florida and set a new world record.

It was an incredible achievement, not only physically, but emotionally and mentally as well, but in the words of Diana, 'Find a way. Never, ever give up.'

BARBARA JOE – PEACE GAVE HER A CHANCE

At 73, Barbara Joe still remembers hearing President Kennedy announcing the creation of the Peace Corps, a volunteer programme to provide economic and social aid to people in developing countries. Barbara Joe was 23 years old and the idea immediately appealed to her. But she was already married, completing a degree, and she would soon have her own family.

Over the years, Barbara did occasional volunteer work and visited many developing countries in South America. However, it wasn't until 1998 that she told herself it was now or never. She finally became a full-time volunteer and joined the Peace Corps. She was 60.

The Peace Corps has no upper age limit, but volunteers are often young. The selection process is rigorous and only one applicant in ten is accepted. Barbara was by far the oldest person on her training course.

Barbara was a Peace Corps volunteer in Honduras for three and a half years and in that time she taught locals about Aids prevention, handed out medications and even helped deliver a few babies. Her daughter went to visit her during her stay. She was surprised to see how happy her mother was and how well she coped with the primitive living conditions.

Barbara has since written a book about her experience. She thinks you're never too old to volunteer. 'You are never too old to follow your dreams,' she says. 'It's never too late to reinvent yourself.'

- e The three people in this article all changed their lives to follow their passion. How important do you think it is to do that? What kind of person does it take?

JULIA CHILD – FRENCH FOOD AFFAIR

During World War 2, Julia Child met her husband, Paul, in Sri Lanka, where he worked for the US government. After the war, Paul became a diplomat, and he and Julia were sent to Paris, France. Julia was in her thirties, and it was then she discovered her real passion in life.

She described one of her first meals in France as a 'revelation', and so her love affair with French cooking began. She attended the Cordon Bleu cooking school and had to overcome the negative attitude of her all-male class. She then joined a cooking club and met two French women who were working on a French cookery book for Americans. They asked Julia to help them write the book.

It took ten more years to work on the book. Julia left France and moved around Europe with her husband. When Julia was 49 years old, the English edition of Mastering the Art of French Cooking was finally published and became a bestseller. The book led to a career as a TV chef on American television. This was in the 1960s, and Julia Child was one of the first celebrity TV chefs. By then, she was in her fifties.

Julia died in 2004, but lived again in the 2009 film Julie & Julia, where she was portrayed by Meryl Streep. Julia's advice to others was to work hard, be creative and enjoy what you're doing.

A tangled web

... The pain exploded in my ear, sending shockwaves through my body. When I saw the blood on my hand, I knew it was a bullet. Someone had shot at me from the hillside. I immediately fell forward and swam underwater further up the river. Far above me, the green and yellow light of the surface seemed out of reach. But I had to swim as far up river as I could. They might fire at me again if I showed my head above the surface. When I felt as if I could swim no further, I came up under some trees by the riverbank. Here I was safe. No one could see me from the hillside.

My heart was racing. Someone had tried to kill me. Why would anyone want to kill me? Where were they now? What would they do next?

I forced myself to be calm. All the old spy training came back to me – stop before you act, decide on the most important thing to do, take one thing at a time. Above all, don't panic, never lose your cool and always stay calm.

Whoever had shot me would probably come to check that I was dead. I decided to find a place to hide and wait there. Slowly and carefully, I crept on hands and knees along the riverbank, keeping my head as low as possible, until I could see the rock clearly again. I sat down behind some bushes and waited, trying not to move. I pressed my wet shirt against my ear to try and stop the bleeding. Only five minutes later, I heard the sound of someone coming down the path from the hillside.

He was a tall man about my age. He had his back to me, so I could not see his face. But when he looked in my direction, I saw that it was ... Heid! He turned and walked down the path.

Jurgen Heid – a friend. Why had he tried to kill me? I didn't understand. We had been on the San Cristobal operation together: Heid, Nina, Cas and me. We were a team until the operation failed. We had all been sent to 'safe' houses after that. We were all told to disappear – to start new lives, to become other people. Above all, we were told never to meet each other again. That was five years ago. So how had Heid found me? Someone must have sent him. But who? And why? What had happened to bring him here?

As I watched, Heid came back to the riverbank. He put his rifle against a tree and took out a pair of binoculars. Slowly he looked along the other bank of the river. He was obviously looking for my body. I suddenly felt angry. He had been my friend and he had tried to kill me. And now he was looking for my body. I had to find out why he had tried to kill me and who had sent him.

2 READING

- a Read the first paragraph of A tangled web. Were your ideas in 1d correct?
- b Read the whole story. Tick (✓) the things the man did and put them in the correct order.

- 1 He swam up the river under water.
- 2 He swam back to the rock.
- 3 He fell into the water.
- 4 He hid on the riverbank under some trees.
- 5 He walked carefully back to the rock.
- 6 He swam down the river.
- 7 He came out onto the bank further up the river.
- 8 He went back along the bank to a place where he could see the rock.

- c Think about the story so far. What do we know about ... ?

- 1 the man's past life
- 2 the people he worked with
- 3 how he has spent the last five years

3 WRITING SKILLS Making a story interesting

- a The writer uses various ways to make the story interesting. Find one more example of these in the story.

- 1 short sentences to describe what the man saw, thought and felt Here I was safe. No one could see me from the hillside.
- 2 questions to describe the man's thoughts
Why would anyone want to kill me?
- 3 phrases with verb + -ing to describe actions and events
The pain exploded in my ear, sending shockwaves through my body.

- b Look at these sentences from other stories. Complete the beginnings in A with endings in B. Are some endings more likely than others?

A

- 1 She sat in a corner of the café,
- 2 She ran up the stairs,
- 3 She drove at top speed down the motorway,
- 4 He stood on the bridge,
- 5 A man stood in the doorway,

- a singing at the top of her voice.
- b staring thoughtfully into the water.
- c blocking my way out of the room.
- d reading a book.
- e gasping for breath.

- c Choose one of the beginnings in A. Continue the story, using a new phrase with verb + -ing.

- d Read out the phrase you added. Can other students guess which beginning in 3b you chose?

- e Look at these examples. What verb tenses does the writer use?

When I saw the blood on my hand, I knew it was a bullet.
Someone had shot at me from the hillside.
My heart was racing. Someone had tried to kill me.

Which tense does the writer use ... ?

- 1 to tell the main events of the story
- 2 to refer to an earlier event that explains what happened

- f Continue these sentences with your own ideas, using the past perfect tense.

- 1 When I looked in my wallet, I saw that it was empty.
- 2 I jumped to the side of the road as the car flashed past me.
- 3 When I saw Nina again, I hardly recognised her.
- 4 I put my hand in my coat pocket. The letter was still there.

4 WRITING

- a Look at the sentence below, which continues the story A tangled web.

I picked up a piece of wood lying near my hiding place ...

In pairs, imagine how the story could continue. Write two or three more paragraphs. Use the techniques in 3a–f to make your story interesting.

- b Read another pair's story. Did they use ... ?

- short sentences • direct questions • verb + -ing

Did they use different narrative tenses to explain the background to actions?

- c Compare your story with other students. Which was ... ?

- the most exciting • the most unusual

- d  Now listen to the rest of the story. Whose ending was most similar to the real story?

a Read the texts and check your answers to 1f on p.24.

Wolf

If you see a wolf before it sees you, walk away silently. If the wolf sees you, back away slowly and avoid eye contact. Wolves see eye contact as a challenge. If the wolf runs towards you, don't run away, as wolves are faster than you. Instead, turn to face the wolf. If the wolf attacks you, curl up in a ball, or defend yourself with a stick. A wolf's nose is very sensitive, so if you hit it on the nose it will probably run away. Wolves are also easy to distract with food, so if you have some food, throw it to the wolf, then move slowly away, still facing the wolf.

Shark

Don't lie on the surface of the water in areas where there are sharks, as this makes you look like a seal. Instead try to keep vertical in the water. Sharks normally won't attack unless they smell your blood or they think you're food. So if a shark comes towards you, keep still or swim slowly towards the shark. As long as you don't panic, it will probably swim away. If the shark bites you, hit it in the eye.

Bear

In bear country, always wear a bell or hit trees with a stick to make a noise. This will make any bears that are near go away. If a bear comes towards you, lie on the ground and 'play dead'. Provided you stay absolutely still, the bear will lose interest. If you are on a hill, run away downhill, going from side to side. Bears find it hard to run fast downhill because they are so heavy and they can't turn quickly.

- 4 Who did she give money to? (family, rent, friends)
- 5 What's her life like now? (house, bike, work)
- 6 Why is she happier now? (lifestyle, kids)

Sharon Tirabassi

Nine years after her huge lottery win, Sharon Tirabassi is catching the bus to her part-time job. Tirabassi, one of this city's biggest lottery winners, has gone from being very rich to living from pay day to pay day with just enough money.

Before her win, Tirabassi used to live in a small apartment with her three children and couldn't afford a car. But in April 2004, she won $10.5 million from a Lotto Super Seven ticket. She was unprepared for the change to her lifestyle. She would take friends on wild shopping trips and pay for everything herself. She and her husband bought a huge house in the wealthiest part of town and owned four cars. Besides the house and the cars, a lot of the cash went to family and friends – too much, as she admits now. She bought several houses in the city, renting them out at affordable rates to families. A lot of friends suddenly appeared when news broke of her win – and a lot of them she never heard from again.

But all that has changed. Today, Tirabassi is living in a rented house on a quiet industrial street – not far from where she started. She no longer has the expensive cars. These days, she rides an electric bike when she's not taking the bus.

But she says she's happier now than she used to be and she lives life more fully than she did before. 'When I had lots of money, I used to spend all my time shopping, but now other things are more important to me.' Tirabassi's now concentrating on raising her children with good family values. 'I'm trying to get them to learn that they have to work for money,' she says.

- a Read about Ihsan Khan. Use these questions and keywords to help you focus on the main points.
- 1 What was Kahn's life like before his win? (job, money)
 - 2 What was his dream? (diamonds, number)
 - 3 How much did he win?
 - 4 What did he do then? (taxi, car, houses, Pakistan, mayor)
 - 5 Then what happened? (earthquake, medicine, school)
 - 6 Why isn't he satisfied? (money, greedy)
 - 7 What happened later? (parliament, votes)

Ihsan Khan

Before he won the lottery, Ihsan Khan used to work as a taxi driver and security guard in the USA – first in Chicago and then in Washington. He would usually send most of what he earned back to his family in Pakistan. ‘It was the worst job in the world,’ Khan says now. And then, one night, he had a dream in which he saw diamonds and also a number: 246 1725. He played those numbers on the lottery for 10 years. Then one day he struck lucky. Ihsan Khan won the jackpot and found he had $55 million. He immediately gave up his job as a taxi driver and bought an expensive car and two luxury houses.

But then he did something surprising. Instead of living in the USA and spending the money on luxuries, he went back to his hometown of Battagram and ran in the election to become mayor. He saw it as a way to pay back some of what he’d gained. Khan believes that it’s wrong to save money for yourself and that we have a responsibility to help others who are not so well off as ourselves. Although he was competing against a candidate whose family had been in local politics for 35 years, Khan was elected mayor. Then, just after he was elected, the region was hit by huge earthquake which killed 3,000 people in Battagram. Mayor Khan took the opportunity to use his lottery money to help people directly. He spent $300,000 on medicine and on repairs to homes, and he also gave money to build a new school.

But Khan isn’t fully satisfied with what he’s done and feels that simply giving people money is never enough. He used to think he could use his money to fix everything, but he no longer believes that. He has discovered that people are often greedy and they never seem satisfied with what they are given.

In 2008, he resigned as mayor and ran for election to the Pakistan parliament, but this time he wasn’t a winner. The winning candidate received over 22,000 votes. Ihsan Khan only received 5,000. It seems his luck had run out.

a Are you an optimist or a pessimist? Read the descriptions below to find out.

Mostly a) answers:

You're an optimist. You expect things to turn out well for you, and when you encounter problems you believe you can overcome them. When things go well, you usually see it as the result of your own ability or hard work. When things go badly, you see it as just bad luck and expect it to be better next time.

Mostly b) answers:

You're a bit of a pessimist. You don't always expect things to turn out well for you, and when you encounter problems you believe you are generally unlucky. When things go well, you usually see it as the result of chance or what other people have done. When things go badly, you see it as a result of your own weaknesses.

a Read the final part of the story about Rodriguez.

Rodriguez's songs, which were about protest and overcoming hardship, caught the imagination of young people in apartheid-era South Africa and everyone was listening to him. But no one in South Africa really knew who Rodriguez was. People thought he was dead; there were even rumours that he had committed suicide while performing on stage.

Then, one day in 1995, a South African reporter, Stephen 'Sugar' Segerman, became curious about the rumours of Rodriguez's death and decided to trace Rodriguez and find out how he had really died. 'First of all, I tried to find out where the money for his albums had gone. The money never reached Rodriguez and no one knows to this day where that money went or why he was never told about it. I was astounded that no one knew anything about him. When I made enquiries people kept on being very vague.'

This made him even more determined to find Rodriguez. Using words from his songs (the only clues 'Sugar' had), he traced Rodriguez to Detroit, where he managed to get in touch with Rodriguez's producer from the 1970s. He discovered to his amazement that Rodriguez wasn't dead at all – he was alive and living in Detroit, completely unaware that half-way round the world he was a huge success.

Stephen Segerman went to meet Rodriguez and told him about his fame in South Africa. He invited Rodriguez to give a concert there and Rodriguez agreed. In 1998, after years of living from hand to mouth, Rodriguez went on his first South African tour, playing six concerts in front of thousands of fans and being treated like a superstar.

a Prepare for a discussion. You believe that it's important to stop languages dying out. Every time we lose a language we lose part of our culture.

Use these arguments or prepare your own:

- There's no reason why people shouldn't speak several languages: their own language and one or two 'bigger' languages.
- Languages die out because people feel ashamed of them. It's important to educate people to respect and value minor languages.
- The world needs variety – the world would be very boring if people all spoke one language.
- Many tribal languages contain knowledge about plants, medicines and the environment which could be very useful. We need to preserve this knowledge.

Antarctica is the fifth largest continent in the world and is completely surrounded by the Southern Ocean. It is approximately the size of the USA and Mexico. About 98% of Antarctica is covered by ice that averages 1.6 km in thickness. It is the coldest, driest and windiest continent in the world. Temperatures reach minimums of between -80 °C and -90 °C in the winter. The landscape is considered a kind of desert, because there is very little rainfall. There are mountains, glaciers and rivers, but no trees or bushes. There is a variety of animal life on the continent, but the two most well known are penguins and seals. The continent is positioned around the southern-most point of the planet, the South Pole. The first person to reach the South Pole was the Norwegian Roald Amundsen.

The art teacher

A school was looking for a new art teacher. They had received several applications, including one from a well-known local artist who also had many years' teaching experience. He made a good impression in the interview, so they offered him the job.

On his CV, he had listed an MA in art history. After the school had employed him, they discovered that he had started an MA course but never finished it. His CV was clearly wrong.

The principal called him into her office and asked him about it. He explained that he hadn't finished the MA because he'd had to spend a year in the army. He had intended to write 'Course work completed for MA' – it was just a simple mistake.

The principal of the school was faced with a difficult decision. She didn't believe the art teacher, but he had already started working and he was doing his job well. However, after thinking it over, she decided to sack him.

- A lot of tribal languages are not adapted to modern life. They belong to a way of life which is dying.

Of the 50 letters dropped, only 20 found their way to Mr Fingham. The next day staff from the newspaper were sent to check the places where they had left the envelopes and they had all disappeared. This suggests that many people opened the envelopes and looked inside, and if the envelopes had contained real tickets they would probably have used them. It seems that some Londoners weren't so honest after all!

On the positive side, four Londoners were so keen to show how honest and considerate they were that they didn't post the letter they found – they ran after our letter-dropper to return it.

One of London's good people was 18-year-old Julia Dalrymple, from Notting Hill, who found a letter in a Starbucks café. Not only nice, but also rather smart, Julia wrote her number and a message on the envelope before posting it:

"Dear forgetful Mr Starbucks, as I am an honest person I will go on to post this letter that I found ... If you have any more where these came from and you're feeling generous, let me know."

Grammar Focus

1A Review of tenses

1.2

Present simple

We use the present simple:

- for habits, repeated actions, facts and things which are generally true

*I usually do my homework in the evening.
She writes crime stories.*

- with state verbs for short-term states, verbs of preference and verbs of the senses.

I want to go home.

Present perfect simple

We use the present perfect simple:

- for experiences in our life without saying when they happened
I've seen this film three times.

- to focus on present states which started in the past and have continued up to the present
I've lived here since I was a child.

- to focus on past completed actions which are recent (often with just) or which have a connection with the present.
I've posted your letter.

Present continuous

We use the present continuous:

- for actions in progress now (at the moment of speaking) or around now

*Sorry, I can't talk now – I'm doing my homework.
She's writing a book about her life.*

- for temporary situations.

I'm studying English in Cambridge this semester but normally I work in Milan.

1B Question forms

1.13 Positive and negative questions

Most questions have an auxiliary verb (e.g. be, do, have or modal verbs) before the subject. The auxiliary verb can be positive or negative:

How do you spell that? Why isn't my computer working?

Prepositions usually come at the end of questions.

Where are you from? NOT From where are you?

In very formal questions they can go at the beginning.

Tip We can make short questions from who / what / why + preposition:
A: I'm going to a party tonight. B: Who with?
A: Can I borrow your phone? B: What for? (Why?)

We use negative questions to express surprise:

Haven't they finished yet? (I'm surprised)

When we ask about the subject of a sentence the word order doesn't change and we don't use an auxiliary verb.

Somebody wrote this book. → Who wrote this book?
NOT Who did write this book?

Past simple

We use the past simple:

- to talk about completed past actions and states. We often specify the time in the past with the past simple:
I lost my phone last week, but then I found it in my car.

Past perfect simple

We use the past perfect simple:

- for actions and events that happened before a particular moment in time

- for reasons (after because).
I decided to walk home because I had forgotten my bus pass.

Past continuous

We use the past continuous:

- to describe actions that were in progress at a particular moment in the past

- for actions or events in progress at the time of a shorter, past simple action.
He phoned while I was doing my homework.

Tip We can also use indirect questions in sentences starting with:
I'm not sure... I know / don't know... I wonder... I can't remember... etc.

1.14 Indirect questions

We use indirect questions to sound polite. Start indirect questions with Can you tell me... / Do you know... We don't use an auxiliary verb and the word order doesn't change: Use if in indirect yes / no questions.

Why did she become famous? → Do you know why she became famous?

Do you like foreign films? → Can you tell me if you like foreign films?

We can also use indirect questions in sentences starting with:

I'm not sure... I know / don't know... I wonder... I can't remember... etc.

Is this answer correct? → I'm not sure if this answer is correct.

Where have they been? → I wonder where they've been.

Tip We use which + noun when there is a limited number of options and what + noun when there are many possibilities:
We can have our meeting at 10.00, 12.15 or 14.30. Which time would you prefer?

I'm free all day. What time do you want to meet?

1A Review of tenses

a Correct the mistakes in the sentences. Think about spelling, tense and form.

2A Narrative tenses

We use narrative tenses to tell stories about what happened in the past. The most important narrative tenses are: past simple, past continuous, past perfect simple and past perfect continuous.

1.30

We use the past simple for completed past actions and states which happened at a specific time in the past:

We spotted them on the mountain so we rescued them and took them to hospital.

We use the past continuous for actions (not states) that were in progress at the time of the main events in the story:

When we spotted them, they were standing next to some stones. They were waving their arms but we couldn't hear what they were shouting.

We use the past perfect simple / continuous for events and activities that happened before the main events in the story and to give explanations or reasons. It often occurs after because.

We spotted them because they had built the word help out of stones.

We finally spotted them after we had been searching for over a week.

Past perfect simple or continuous?

We use the past perfect simple:

- To focus on the results of an earlier completed action:

We spotted them (result) because they'd built a big sign (earlier action).

- To talk about 'time up to then' with a state verb (e.g. know, have, be):

When we found them, they'd been on the mountain for a week.

We use the past perfect continuous:

- before a result in the past to show the effect of an earlier activity:

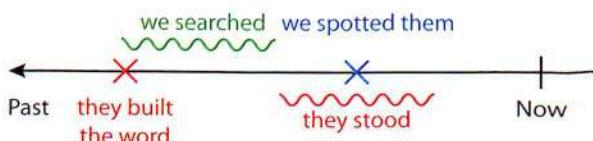

They were tired (result) because they'd been building a big sign (earlier activity).

- To emphasize the duration of time with an action verb (e.g. wait, search, drive):

We found them after we'd been searching for a week.

After we'd been searching for them for over a week, we finally spotted them on the mountain. They were standing next to the word 'Help', which they'd built out of stones.

2B Future time clauses and conditionals

We use future time clauses to talk about future possibilities, future plans or to give advice. We can normally use will, be going to, or the imperative in the main clause.

We normally use a present tense in the subordinate clause with words like if, when, as soon as, unless, as long as, provided, in case, etc. We can also use the same time clauses to talk about facts and things which are generally true. In these sentences we often use a present tense verb in the main clause.

When we go hiking next weekend, we'll try a new path.

If you see a bear, don't run.

It won't attack you provided you're standing still.

Unless you know the way well, bring a map.

Always bring a snack in case you get hungry.

As soon as it gets too cold, we'll go home.

Tip

When if means whether, we normally need will or going to to refer to the future:

*I don't know if / whether I'll see any wild animals when I'm on holiday.
NOT: ... if I see ...*

1.33 if, unless, as long as, provided and in case

Unless means if not. The verb after unless is usually positive:

You won't see any animals unless you stay quiet.
(You won't see any animals if you don't stay quiet)

As long as and provided are similar to only if.
We'll be safe provided / as long as we stay here.
(But only if we stay here).

You can go out tonight as long as you're back by 10.
(But only if you're back by 10).

We use in case to talk about preparations for possible future situations:

Take your keys in case we're out when you get home.

Don't worry! She won't attack you unless she thinks you're scared.

1.32 as soon as

As soon as shows that something will happen immediately after another thing:

As soon as I get home, I'll email you.

Tip

We can use present perfect or present simple after words like as soon as or when to talk about completed processes in the future. There is little difference in meaning:

We'll leave when / as soon as I've finished my work. (Or: ... I finish ...)

2A Narrative tenses

a Complete the sentences with the past simple or past continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

- 1 While he was walking (walk) in the forest, he tripped (trip) and cut (cut) his knee.
- 2 I _____ (not / notice) what the thief _____ (wear) because I _____ (hide) under the desk the whole time.
- 3 When I _____ (get) home, everyone _____ (watch) TV. Nobody _____ (even / say) 'hello'.
- 4 A: Where _____ (you / be) when you _____ (hear) the news?
B: I _____ (be) on the bus – I _____ (travel) to work.
- 5 Fortunately, I _____ (not / hurt) myself when I _____ (fall) because I _____ (wear) a helmet.
- 6 A: What page number _____ (the teacher / just / say)?
B: Sorry, I _____ (not / hear) anything. I _____ (not / listen).

b Choose the best verb form.

- 1 She was out of breath because she'd run / she'd been running.
- 2 It was sad to sell my old car – I'd had / I'd been having it since I was a student.

3A Multi-word verbs

1.45 Multi-word verbs consist of a verb and one or two particles:
We came up with some good ideas, and decided to try them out.

Sometimes the meaning of the multi-word verb is clear from the meaning of the verb and the particle (e.g. sit down), but often you have to learn the meaning of each multi-word verb.

Transitive and Intransitive multi-word verbs

- Transitive multi-word verbs need an object. The object can come before the particle (e.g. throw sth away) or after the particle (e.g. look after sb), depending on the type of multi-word verb.
- Intransitive multi-word verbs don't have an object, e.g. go away
NOT go somebody away

Type 1 has no direct object (intransitive): verb + particle	wake up; go away; fall over; stay up; break up; sit down; take off; calm down
Type 2 has an object (transitive): verb + noun / pronoun + particle OR verb + particle + noun / pronoun	wake up; fall over; take off; calm down; try sth out; figure sth out; make sth up; throw sth away; pick sth up; let sb down
Type 3 has an object (transitive): verb + particle + noun / pronoun	look into sth; focus on sth; believe in sth; live for sth; be into sth; look after sb
Type 4 has two particles and always has an object: verb + particle 1 + particle 2 + noun / pronoun	come up with sth; look down on sb; look up to sb; run out of sth; fall out with sb; go on about sth; get away with sth

Tip Many multi-word verbs are both transitive and intransitive (e.g. wake up; fall over; take off; calm down):
When you wake up (intransitive), try not to wake the dog up (transitive) too!
After the plane took off (intransitive) / took my shoes off (transitive). Use a dictionary to find out if a multi-word verb is transitive or intransitive.

Type 2 multi-word verbs

When the object is a long noun phrase, it normally comes after the particle:
Please throw away those old shoes that are nearly falling apart!

When the object is a pronoun (e.g. it, me, sb), it almost always comes before the particle:

Those shoes are really old. Please throw them away! NOT: Please throw-away them!

When the object is a short noun phrase (e.g. up to three words), it can come before or after the particle:

Please throw those old shoes away! / Please throw away those old shoes.

3B Present perfect simple and continuous

1.50 We use the present perfect simple:

- to talk about experiences without saying when they happened
He's tried to run a marathon four times in his life.
- for experiences during any present period of time
What have you learnt so far this year?
- with superlatives
She's the nicest person I've ever met.
- for recent completed actions which have a result in the present.
Oh no! I've broken my key.
- with already, just and yet
I've already done the shopping, I've just put the food in the oven, but I haven't laid the table yet.
- to talk about how long with state verbs (with for / since)
I've known them for years but I haven't seen them since January.
- with how many, how much and how often to talk about experiences
How many essays have you written?

We use the present perfect continuous:

- when a recently completed action has a result now
She's tired because she's been training hard.
- to describe repeated activities which started recently
I've been going to the gym a lot recently.
- to talk about unfinished activities using how long and for / since
We've been walking since the sun came up.

3A Multi-word verbs

a Tick the correct sentences. Sometimes more than one sentence is correct.

| 1 a <input type="checkbox"/> I'm really proud of myself because ... | 1 ... I've been building a wall in my garden. |
| 2 b <input type="checkbox"/> I'm exhausted because ... | 2 ... I've built a wall in my garden. |
| 3 a <input type="checkbox"/> They've been on holiday ... | 1 ... three times this year. |
| 4 b <input type="checkbox"/> They've been going on holiday ... | 2 ... to the same place for 20 years. |
| 5 a <input type="checkbox"/> I've written ... | 1 ... six emails already. |
| 6 b <input type="checkbox"/> I've been writing ... | 2 ... emails all morning. |
| 7 a <input type="checkbox"/> She's been playing ... | 1 ... tennis twice this week. |
| 8 b <input type="checkbox"/> She's played ... | 2 ... a lot of tennis recently. |

b Tick (✓) the correct sentences. Correct the mistakes.

- 1 How long have you worked here?
- 2 Please don't come in – we haven't been finishing yet.
- 3 Have you ever been sailing?
- 4 We've been giving three presentations this week.
- 5 This room has been empty since our son left home.
- 6 I've been watching a lot of films lately ... maybe too many.
- 7 I haven't been hearing that old song since I was a child.
- 8 Those people have been calling me five times today.

<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	incorrect	haven't finished

c Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verbs in brackets. Use the present perfect simple or the present perfect continuous.

- 1 I 've just spent (just / spend) over £100 on football classes for you, and now you're saying you don't like football!
- 2 Can you hurry up? We haven't been waiting (wait) for ages!
- 3 How long you / study (you / study) to become a doctor?
- 4 She not / say (not / say) a word all day – I think she's angry with me.
- 5 you / clean (you / clean) the car yet, or is it still dirty?
- 6 A: Your eyes are red. you / cry? (you / cry) B: No, I (chop) onions!

4A used to and would

► 2.2 used to and would

We often use used to to describe past situations. In general, these situations continued for a long time and are not true now. They can be states (e.g. like, live, have) or habits (= repeated actions): When I was a child, I didn't use to like vegetables, but now I love them.

When we were students, we used to go dancing every week.

We can also use would to describe past habits. Don't use would for past states:

When we were students, we'd go dancing every week.

We often use a mixture of used to, would and the past simple when talking about our past:

When I was young, we never used to go on holiday. Instead, we'd spend the whole summer playing in the fields near our house. We loved it.

Tip Don't use used to or would for things that happened only once, or when we say how many times something happened in the past:

*I read that book once / a few times when I was a teenager.
NOT + used to read ...*

► 2.3 no longer and any more

We use no longer before a positive verb or after be:

We no longer go to the old forest. It's no longer there.

We use any more at the end of a sentence with a negative verb:

We don't go to the old forest any more. It's not there any more.

► 2.4 be / get used to

Don't confuse used to with be / get used to. They have very different meanings. After be / get used to, we use a gerund or a noun phrase:

I used to study for many years. (This was my habit in the past.)

I'm getting used to working in an office. (It's becoming normal for me now.)

I'm used to the job now. (It's normal for me. It's not difficult.)

Tip We can also use usually + the present simple to talk about habits in the present tense:
I usually get up at 6.30 am.

4B Obligation and permission

► 2.11

	The speaker is making a rule	The speaker is describing somebody else's rule
	Present	Past
Strong positive obligation	You must wear a helmet. I won't let you ride without it.	We have to / need to wear a helmet. It's the law.	We had to / needed to wear a helmet to go on the motorbike.
Strong negative obligation	You must not / mustn't remove your helmet. It's far too dangerous.	We're not allowed to / can't remove our helmets. The instructor will get very cross with us.	We weren't allowed to remove our helmets.
Positive obligation	I think you should give / ought to give the money back.	I'm supposed to give the money back, but I don't want to.	I was supposed to give the money back, but I forgot.
No obligation	You don't have to / don't need to / needn't buy a ticket.		You didn't have to / didn't need to buy a ticket.
Permission	Yes, it's OK, you can go home.	I can / I'm allowed to go home now.	I could / was allowed to go home before 5pm.
No permission	No, I'm sorry. You cannot / can't go home yet.	I can't / I'm not allowed to go home yet.	I couldn't / I wasn't allowed to go home early.

- must and mustn't are very strong. In most situations, it's more natural to use have to, need to, needn't, can't, be not allowed to, etc. Questions with must are very rare.
- should is much more common than ought to. Questions and negatives with ought to are very rare.
- Need to is like have to whereas need (usually found in the negative) is a modal.

► 2.12 make and let; be forced to and be allowed to make and let are special because they are followed by an object + infinitive without to:

They made me pay extra. NOT They made me to pay extra.

They let me come in for free. NOT They let me to come in for free.

We often use the verbs force and allow in passive constructions. Both are followed by to + -infinitive:

I was forced to pay extra. (Less common: I was made to pay extra)

I was allowed to come in for free. NOT I was let come in for free.

4A used to and would

a Tick (✓) the possible forms in each sentence.

- 1 She _____ good at maths when she was little.

- 5 I'll never forget the time I _____ my leg. I couldn't walk for weeks!
a used to break b broke
- 6 We _____ a dog but he died about five years ago.
a used to have b would have

b Choose the correct form.

- 1 I used to / would be really good at football when I was young, but now I'm terrible at it.
- 2 I didn't use to / didn't used to like jazz, but now it's my favourite type of music.
- 3 I'm used to / used to living on my own. It was strange at first, but now it's fine.
- 4 I don't think I'll ever get used to / get use to writing on a tablet computer – it's much easier on a laptop.
- 5 Where did you use to go / used to go on holiday when you were a child?
- 6 How long did it take you to get used to / used to working from home?

b Look at the rules for a computer training course. Andy explains the rules to his friend Dan. Complete the conversation with one word or a contraction (e.g. mustn't) in each space.

- All users must change their passwords after first logging in.
- You are not allowed to access the computer system without a new password.
- You can choose your own password.
- Your new password must be at least 20 characters long.
- Your password should be easy to remember but it shouldn't be easy to guess.
- You must not tell anyone else your password.

Dan: So how was the course?

Andy: It was OK, but the security was really tight. We had / needed to change our password straight away.

Dan: Why?

Andy: They said we ²_____ access the system without a new one. We were ³_____ to choose our own passwords, but it ⁴_____ to contain at least 20 characters?

Dan: Wow ... that's long!

Andy: Yes, but it was ⁵_____ to be something that's easy to remember.

Dan: OK, so the name of your football team then?

Andy: No, it was ⁶_____ to be something that's not easy to guess.

Dan: So what was it?

Andy: I ⁷_____ tell you! We're not ⁸_____ to tell anyone else!

c ► Now go back to p.49

5A Future probability

We use a wide range of modal verbs, adverbs, adjectives, etc. to describe what we think is the probability of future events:

Degree of probability	Modal verbs	Other expressions	Adjectives
100% high	We will go. We will certainly go. We will probably go	I'm sure we'll go.	It's certain that we'll go.
	We could well go. We may well go. We might well go.		It's (very) likely that we'll go.
50% medium	We could go. We may go. We might go.	There's a (good) chance that we'll go.	It's possible that we'll go.
	We probably won't go	I don't suppose we'll go. I doubt if we'll go. I shouldn't think we'll go.	It's (very) unlikely that we'll go.
0% low	We won't go. We certainly won't go	There's no chance that we'll go. I can't imagine that we'll go.

► 2.25 Positive and negative forms

We can make negative statements of probability with might not or may not. Don't use couldn't in this way – it refers to the past ability, not future probability:

We could go out on Friday. (= it's possible that we'll go out next Friday).
We couldn't go out on Friday. (= we weren't able to go out last Friday).

Adverbs like certainly and probably increase or decrease the level of certainty and come after will, but they come before won't:

It'll probably be a nice day today but it probably won't be nice tomorrow.

► 2.26 Adjective + to + infinitive

With the adjectives sure / likely / unlikely / certain / bound we can use the pattern: be + adjective + to + infinitive:

They're sure to be late. (= I'm sure that they'll be late.)
He's certain / likely / unlikely to see you.

There's bound to be someone who knows the answer.
(= I'm sure someone knows the answer)

5B Future perfect and future continuous

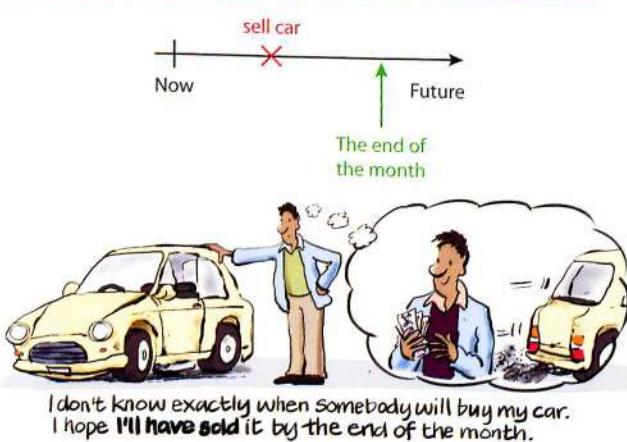

► 2.28 Future perfect

Positive	Negative	Question	Short answer
We'll have left.	She won't have left.	Will they have left?	Yes, they will / No, they won't.

We use future perfect to describe what we expect to happen before a specific time in the future:

I don't know exactly when somebody will buy my car. I hope I'll have sold it by the end of the month.

Tip We often use future perfect with by.
We'll have finished by Friday / by the time they get here.

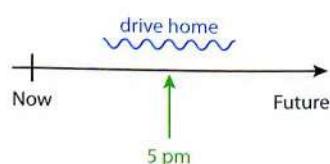

► 2.29 Future continuous

Positive	Negative	Question	Short answer
He'll be driving.	We won't be driving.	Will you be driving?	Yes, I will / No, I won't.

We use future continuous for activities that will be in progress around a particular time in the future:

Don't phone me at 5pm. I'll still be driving home from work at that time.

We can also use future continuous for things that are already planned:

It'll be tough in my new job – I'll be getting up at 4am every day.

5A Future probability

- a Complete the sentences with one word from the box. Use each word once.

Christina: Yes, that's fine, but it'll only give us an hour. ⁵ I / leave about 15.00 to pick the kids up from school.

c Now go back to p.61

6A Gerunds and infinitives

► 2.41 verb + -ing

When verb + -ing functions like a noun it is called a gerund. We use gerunds:

- when a verb is (part of) the subject of a sentence:
Swimming is good for you. / Meeting you last week was a real pleasure.
- after prepositions (e.g. about, by, without, of, etc.):
I worry too much about making mistakes.
They escaped by digging a tunnel under the wall.

► 2.42 to + infinitive

We use to + infinitive:

- after adjectives (e.g. happy, pleased, easy, difficult, dangerous, safe, possible):
It's easy to find your way into the city centre, but it's very difficult to get out again.
- to express purpose (= what a person wants to achieve):
We're going to the beach to lie in the sun. (= because we want to lie in the sun)
To watch the clip again, press 'replay'. (= if you want to watch again)

Tip Be careful with verb forms after to. The word to is sometimes a preposition and sometimes part of to + infinitive.
I'm looking forward to seeing you.
I hope to see you. (NOT +hope to seeing)

► 2.43 verb + verb

There are many verbs which are followed by gerunds (e.g. I enjoy painting) and many which are followed by to + infinitive (e.g. I want to watch). There are also a few which allow both patterns with a change of meaning:

- try + to + infinitive*: I tried to talk to him, but he didn't answer his phone. (= I attempted to do it)
- try + gerund*: I tried talking to him, but he's still angry. (= I did it but it didn't work)
- remember / forget + to + infinitive*: Please remember / don't forget to buy some milk. (= a job for the future)
- remember / forget + gerund*: I remember / I'll never forget hearing that tune the first time. (= an experience in the past)
- go on + to + infinitive*: After explaining the theory I'll go on to describe some examples. (= stop one thing and start the next)
- go on + gerund*: The professor went on talking for over an hour. (= didn't stop)

Tip stop can be followed by a gerund, or an infinitive of purpose:
I stopped drinking coffee. (= I don't drink it now)
I stopped to drink coffee. (= I stopped because I wanted to drink coffee in a café)

► 2.44 Sense verbs

Verbs connected with senses can be followed by an object and verb + -ing. (e.g. look at / see / watch / notice / observe / hear / listen to / feel / smell / taste):

- I watched* the people walking around.
I could smell something burning.

6B The passive

► 2.52 We can use the passive:

- when we don't know who did something / what caused something, or when this is not important.
These words were written thousands of years ago.
- when the agent (the doer) is very obvious.
Which languages are spoken in your family?
- when the main thing we are talking about is the object of the verb.
I read a really interesting article today. It was written by someone who spent a year living in a jungle. (It = the article)

The passive is formed with the verb be in the appropriate tense + past participle.

	Active	Passive
Present simple	They use it.	It is used.
Past simple	They used it.	It was used.
Present continuous	They are using it.	It is being used.
Past continuous	They were using it.	It was being used.
Present perfect	They have used it.	It has been used.
Past perfect	They had used it.	It had been used.
Future	They will use it. They are going to use it.	It will be used. It is going to be used.
Infinitive (e.g. after modal verbs)	They can use it. They might use it.	It can be used. It might be used.

► 2.53 Prepositions after made

We can use a range of prepositions after passives with made:

- Made + by + method: These cakes are made by hand / by mixing cornflakes with chocolate.
- Made + with + tool: I think these marks were made with a knife.
- Made + of + material: The wings are made of very strong plastic.
- Made + from / out of + original object: Our table is made from / out of an old door.

Our table is made from / out of an old door.

6A Gerunds and infinitives

a Underline the correct verb form.

- 1 I was looking forward to hear / hearing your ideas.
- 2 We need to book an appointment to see / seeing them again.
- 3 I'm still getting used to be / being a manager
- 4 Riding an elephant is similar to ride / riding a horse.
- 5 He doesn't find it easy to talk / talking to anyone.

b Match the sentence halves.

- 5 The thief not / catch yet, but I'm sure they'll catch him soon.
- 6 By the time we arrived, all the best seats already / take (already / take), so we had to sit right at the back.

b Rewrite the sentences in the passive.

- 1 I wrote that report.
- 2 My sister told us about this restaurant.
- 3 We can only dream of the technology of 2100.
- 4 Someone had already built this bridge 1000 years ago.
- 5 You can't always depend on Martina.
- 6 I'm sure they'll look after you well.

That report was written by me.
 We
 The technology of 2100
 The bridge

c Complete the sentence with the correct preposition.

- 1 Jam is made out of fruit.
- 2 This toy car was made an old shoe box.
- 3 I can't believe this music is made computer.
- 4 If you want a perfect paper aeroplane, it must be made scissors and glue.
- 5 Windows in a plane are made special glass, so they don't break easily.
- 6 All our clothes are made local wool and local people.

d Now go back to p.73

7A too / enough; so / such

► 3.2 too and enough

We use too and not enough to explain problems, when something is more than the right amount or less than the right amount:

Oh no, there are too many people and there isn't enough food! What's everybody going to eat?

We often use enough to tell somebody not to worry:

Don't worry. We've got enough food. I bought lots of food this morning.

We use adjective + enough and enough + noun

	More than the right amount	The right amount	Less than the right amount
With adjectives	It's too warm to play tennis.	It's warm enough to go to the beach.	It isn't warm enough to have a picnic.
With countable nouns	There are too many people. I can't see anything.	There are enough people for a game of volleyball.	There aren't enough people for a game of football.
With uncountable nouns	I spend too much time in internet chat rooms.	I have enough time to bake a cake.	There isn't enough time to go shopping.

► 3.3

Tip After too and enough, we often use to + infinitive:

It's too late to walk home but I don't have enough money to pay for a taxi.

► 3.4 so / such

We use so and such to draw attention to the extreme quality of something. We can use so before an adjective and such before adjective + noun.

- so + adjective: Why are you so happy? (= why are you as happy as you are?)
- such + a / an + adjective + singular noun: *It's such a beautiful day! (= it's a very beautiful day)
- such + adjective + plural noun: *They're such friendly people!

Tip We can use such a + noun to express a positive or negative opinion:

It's such a pity / shame you missed the beginning! (= I'm so sorry / sad.)
You're such a genius! (= You're so clever!)
The meal was such a waste of money!
It's always such a pleasure to talk to you.

► 3.5

After so / such, we often use a that clause:

It was such a nice place that we decided to stay another week. (= we decided to stay because it was extremely nice)
I ate so much food that I felt ill.

7B Causative have / get

We use the structure have / get + object + past participle to talk about things that we arrange or pay for but don't actually do ourselves. Have is slightly more formal than get.

► 3.9

	have / get	Object	Past participle
They're	having	their kitchen	painted.
When are you going to	get	your hair	cut?
I've	had	my car	fixed.
She wants to	have	her book	published.

We can mention the agent (the person who did the action) after by:

She had her dress made by a top designer.

► 3.10

Tip We use a reflexive pronoun (e.g. myself, herself, ourselves) to emphasize that we didn't arrange or pay for somebody else to do something:

I wanted to get my trousers shortened, but it was too expensive, so I did it myself.

We can use the structure have + something + past participle to talk about experiences that are caused by other people. These experiences are usually negative:
He had his phone stolen. (= He experienced the situation where somebody stole his phone)

We can use the structure get + something + past participle to focus on the end results of an activity rather than the activity itself:

*I don't care how you do it – just get this work done!
 (= finish it or pay for somebody to finish it)

7A too / enough; so / such

- a Complete the sentences with one phrase from the box in each space. Use each phrase twice.

enough too too many too much

- 1 She speaks quite quickly but she makes too many mistakes.
- 2 Oh no ... we haven't got _____ milk. Can you go to the shop and buy some?
- 3 They're nice children, but they make _____ noise.
- 4 We wanted to go out, but it was _____ cold.
- 5 They spend _____ time watching TV. It's not healthy!
- 6 Your project isn't brilliant but it's good _____. You don't need to do it again.
- 7 You should take a bus – it's _____ far to walk.

7B Causative have/get

- a Match the sentences with reasons A–C for using causative have/get.

- 1 Have you had your hair done? It looks lovely.
- 2 My boss isn't very good at getting his team motivated.
- 3 I've had my heart broken too many times – I don't want to fall in love again.
- 4 I need to get my eyes checked. I can't see very well.
- 5 My neighbours had their car stolen last week.
- 6 I just want to get this work done quickly so I can relax again.
- 7 I had my portrait painted by a wonderful artist.
- 8 Last time I went to the dentist I had to have two teeth taken out.

A The subject arranges or pays for somebody to do something

B The subject has a bad experience caused by someone else

C The speaker focuses on the end result rather than the activity itself

- b Rewrite the phrases in bold with causative have/get. Don't include the words in brackets.

- 1 I'm going to (pay sb) to clean my flat.
- 2 I'll (arrange for sb) to install the new programs.
- 3 Can you try to finish the project as quickly as possible?
- 4 (sb) stole my email password last week.
- 5 Robert, would you like to start the meeting?
- 6 We really need to tidy the flat – it's such a mess.

- c Now go back to p.84

- c Rewrite the second sentence so that it means the same as the first. Use the words in brackets and so, such, too or enough.

- 1 They went by plane because they're rich. (that) They're so rich that they went by plane.
- 2 I'm so sorry that we didn't see you. (pity)
It's _____ that we didn't see you.
- 3 He's too young to be a doctor. (old)
He isn't _____ be a doctor.
- 4 I didn't go out because I was so tired. (too)
I was _____ go out.
- 5 That player's so good that he plays for his national team. (such)
He's _____ he plays for his national team.
- 6 It was such a serious situation that they had to call the police. (so)
The situation _____ they had to call the police.

8A First and second conditionals

► 3.20 We can use both first conditionals and second conditionals to talk about future possibilities.

The first conditional:

The first conditional describes possible or likely future events and the expected results of those events:

If + present simple, will + infinitive

If I save a little every month, I'll be able to afford a new car soon.

The second conditional:

We use the second conditional to talk about imagined events or states and their consequences. They can be about the unreal present or unlikely future events:

If + past simple, would + infinitive

If I had £1 for every time I've heard that, I'd be a millionaire.

If I saved £50 every month, I'd have enough for a new computer by the end of the year.

Tip We use the phrase if I were you to give advice:
If I were you, I wouldn't borrow so much money.

Tip We can use going to instead of will in first conditional sentences.
If I see her tomorrow, I'm going to tell her my news.

We often use other past / present tenses in the if clause:
If you've finished your test and you're waiting to leave, you should come to my desk.

We can also use imperatives in the main clause:
If you've finished your test and you're waiting to leave please come to my desk.

We often use other modals than will / would in the main clause (e.g. might, could, can, etc.):

If I weren't feeling so tired, I might go for a run.

8B Third conditional; should have + past participle

► 3.23 should have + past participle

We can use the structure should have + past participle to criticise other people's past actions:

You shouldn't have told them about the party – I wanted it to be a surprise.

Third conditional

We use the third conditional to talk about imagined past events or states and their consequences:

If I'd arrived five minutes earlier, I'd have seen the robbery. (But I arrived after the robbery, so I didn't see it.)

if clause	Main clause
If + past perfect	would + have + past participle
If you hadn't told me the answer,	I'd have checked on the internet.
If there had been more time,	we wouldn't have had to hurry.

Tip Be careful with 'd'. It's short for had in the if clause but would in the main clause. If I'd known earlier, I'd have told you.

We can use past perfect continuous in the if clause. We can also use might or could in the main clause:

It was a nasty accident. If I hadn't been wearing a helmet, I might have been very badly hurt. (But I was wearing a helmet, so I wasn't badly hurt.)

► 3.24 Mixed conditionals

We combine clauses from the second and the third conditional to talk about past conditions with a result in the present, or present conditions with a result in the past.

if clause	Main clause
If those burglars hadn't damaged that painting last year, ... [Third conditional – unreal past]	... it would be worth a fortune now. [Second conditional – unreal present]
If I didn't have such a good relationship with my family, ... [Second conditional – unreal present]	... I would have left the city years ago. [Third conditional – unreal past] a Complete the sentences with a first or a second conditional.

8A First and second conditionals

- 1 [likely] Be careful with my phone! If you lose (lose) it, I 'll be (be) very angry.
- 2 [unlikely] If somebody spoke (speak) to me like that, I 'd be (be) really angry.
- 3 [likely] It _____ (be) much cheaper if you _____ (come) by bus.
- 4 [likely] If you _____ (not spend) more money on advertising, your sales _____ (go) down.
- 5 [unlikely] I think you _____ (have) a great time if you _____ (study) abroad.
- 6 [likely] If Tony _____ (not finish) work soon, he _____ (not be) here on time.
- 7 [unreal] If you _____ (know) how to drive, I _____ (not have) to drive you everywhere.
- 8 [advice] If I _____ (be) you, I _____ (not say) anything about this to Ricky.
- 9 [likely] I'm sure they _____ (not be) angry if you _____ (tell) them the truth.
- 10 [unreal] She _____ (not have) a chance of getting that job if she _____ (not speak) English so well.
- 11 [likely] If it _____ (not rain) tomorrow morning, I _____ (walk) to work.
- 12 [advice] I _____ (not touch) that wire if I _____ (be) you.

b Look at the pictures. Write sentences using the prompts. Use the first or the second conditional.

- 1 OK, so I promise I'll give you 50p if you wash my car [give you 50p / wash / my car]

- 2 Sorry. _____
[love / go dancing tonight / not / have / so much work.]

- 3 _____
[if / I / you / buy / new shoes]

- 4 Watch out! _____
[if / fall / might / hurt yourself]

- 5 Wow – just imagine! _____
[if / we / find / that gold / rich]

- 6 Of course it's not working!
[it / not / work / if / turn it on]

c Now go back to p.93

8B Third conditional; should have + past participle

a Write sentences about each situation. Use the third conditional with the past perfect simple or continuous in the if clause.

- 1 I didn't take the exam because I didn't know about it.
I would have taken the exam if I'd known about it.
- 2 They went to the same university so they met and fell in love.
If _____
- 3 It was raining so we took the metro.
If _____
- 4 We didn't buy the picture because it was so expensive.
We _____
- 5 You didn't hear the phone because you were listening to music.
I _____
- 6 My parents gave me some money so I was able to buy a car.
If _____

c Match the sentence halves.

- 1 If we'd had more time, ...
- 2 I'm sure Walter would have lent you some money ...
- 3 If you hadn't driven me home, ...
- 4 They'd be a lot richer ...
- 5 I wouldn't have bought so much food ...
- 6 If Gloria wasn't so nice, ...

b Write sentences about these situations using should have + past participle. Use the words in brackets.

- 1 Oh no, they're going to be late again. [leave home earlier]
They should have left home earlier.
- 2 The customer was really rude. [he / not speak to me like that]

- 3 You've made the alarm go off! [not press that button]

- 4 I had no idea it was your birthday. [you / tell me]

- 5 That car drove across the red light. [it / stop]

- 6 She failed her driving test. [she / take / more driving lessons]

- a ... if they'd sold their flat when prices were still high.
- b ... I'd still be at the station now.
- c ... if you'd told me only four people were coming.
- d ... we wouldn't have invited her to stay with us.
- e ... we'd have done a bit more sightseeing.
- f ... if you'd asked him.

d Now go back to p.96

9A Relative clauses

► 3.38 Defining relative clauses

Defining relative clauses give essential information about a noun.

They've invented a car. The car stops people crashing.
They've invented a car that stops people crashing!

- who describes a person, and which describes a thing. In defining relative clauses, you can use that instead of both who and which:
This is the work which / that has to be finished today.
The man who / that I needed to talk to wasn't available.

When who / which / that replace the object of the clause, we can omit the relative pronoun:

You're applying for the job (= object)

What's the job (which / that) you're applying for?

- where describes a place:
There's a new shop in town where you can buy furniture.
- whose describes possession:
The woman whose flat was burgled is called Mrs Plater.
- when describes times (e.g. day / year / time):
The days when I have to collect the children are stressful.

We sometimes use who and which with prepositions. The prepositions usually come at the end of the sentence:
There is a place nearby which we can stop at.

► 3.39 Non-defining relative clauses

Non-defining relative clauses give extra information about a noun. The clause is not necessary for the sentence to make sense. A non-defining clause has a comma before it and either another comma, or a full stop after it:

My new doctor, who I had my first appointment with on Thursday, recommended the medicine to me.

In non-defining clauses, which can relate to a single noun, or to the whole main clause:

I'm going to Thailand next week, which is very exciting.

There are two main differences between defining and non-defining clauses.

- we cannot use that in a non-defining clause:
Revolutionary technology, which is rare, usually costs a huge amount to develop. NOT Revolutionary technology, that is rare...
- we can never omit the relative pronoun in a non-defining clause:
*Jane, who I have always trusted, was the only person I told about the situation. NOT Jane, I have always trusted...

Tip Be careful when you describe places with which and where.

- which replaces a noun or pronoun:
I grew up in the house (which / that) you're buying!
(you're buying the house)
- where replaces there or preposition of place + noun:
I still live in the house where I grew up.
(I grew up in the house / there)

9B Reported speech; reporting verbs

► 3.40

When we report what people said or thought in the past, we usually change the tenses, pronouns, possessives and references to time and place:

Anna: 'I won't go out tomorrow'.

Anna told me she would not go out the following day.

present tenses → past tenses past tenses → past perfect tenses will, can and may → would, could and might.

Past perfect, would, could and might don't normally change.

When the reporting verb is in a present tense, we don't change the tenses:

'I've never seen them in concert.' → She says she's never seen them in concert.

When we report questions, the word order is the same as in sentences. Use whether or if to report yes / no questions.

Whether is more formal than if:

'Where do you live?' → They asked me where I lived.

NOT *They asked me where did I live.

'Are you famous?' → They weren't sure if / whether I was famous.

Reporting verbs

After some reporting verbs there are different verb patterns:

Verb + (that) + clause	agree, believe, complain, discover, find out, insist, promise, realise, say, state, ...	He stated that he would stay with us.
Verb + sb + (that) clause	inform, tell, warn, assume, ...	We informed them that it was ready.
Verb + to + infinitive	agree, promise, refuse, ...	They refused to speak with us.
Verb + sb + to + infinitive	ask, order, tell, remind, ...	She ordered me to leave.
Verb + gerund	admit, apologise for, deny, regret, suggest, ...	He admitted taking the money.
Verb + (sb) + reported question	ask, discover, know, realise, wonder, ...	I wondered where they were.

Tip With negatives use not to + infinitive or not + gerund.

We agreed not to go.

He apologised for not stopping at the red light.

9A Relative clauses

a Complete the sentences with the correct relative pronoun. If no word is needed, put (-).

- 1 This is my best friend, Kim, _____ I've known since we were tiny.
- 2 There are three things _____ I need to tell you about today's event.
- 3 Everybody congratulated the team, _____ hard work had won the contract.
- 4 The receptionist recommended the restaurant _____ we ate.
- 5 We never worried about money until the year _____ we bought our first house.
- 6 Who are the people _____ arrived late?
- 7 My job, _____ I love, is also really demanding.
- 8 They discovered a treatment _____ had no side-effects.
- 9 I wish I could move to a seat _____ I could see out of the window.
- 10 The singer, _____ voice I have loved all my life, seemed to be singing directly to me.

b Correct one mistake in each sentence.

- 1 This is the book what I was telling you about.
- 2 There's a new machine at the gym I think you would really like it.
- 3 We're travelling to Dubai, where I've always wanted to visit.
- 4 I was worrying about my luggage, that I'd forgotten to weigh before we left.
- 5 Chris, who his father owns the company, always works really hard.
- 6 I've finally had to replace my old car, I've had since I passed my test.

c Rewrite the two sentences into one making all necessary changes to punctuation and word order. Remember to cut unnecessary words.

- 1 The band didn't come on stage until nine o'clock. They were supposed to start at eight-thirty.
- 2 The rail company refunds passengers. The passengers' trains are delayed.
- 3 I looked in all the places. I thought I might have left my phone there.
- 4 The idea worked wonderfully well. We came up with the idea together.
- 5 Morocco is my favourite place for a holiday. We spent our honeymoon there.
- 6 The neighbours get back from holiday tomorrow. I'm looking after the neighbours' cat.

d ► Now go back to p.106

9B Reported speech; reporting verbs

a Look at the direct speech in the left-hand column. Complete the reported speech or thoughts in the right-hand column.

- 1 'I don't understand what you want.'
- 2 'Harry can't ski.'
- 3 'You may feel a little sleepy after you take the tablets.'
- 4 'The exam will be really easy.'
- 5 'No, I wasn't walking past the bank when I heard the alarm.'
- 6 'We've been trying to call you since we heard the news.'
- 7 'Margaret won't be happy when she finds out.'
- 8 'I couldn't open the door because I'd forgotten my key.'

- He told me ... that he didn't understand what I wanted.
 I didn't realise ...
 The doctor warned her that ...
 I assumed ...
 The witness denied ...
 They informed us that ...
 I warned you ...
 He discovered that ...

b Look at the questions from a job interview in the left-hand column. Complete the reported questions.

- 'What do you know about this company?'
 'Do you have any experience of this sort of work?'
 'How fast can you type?'
 'Why did you leave your last job?'
 'Are you good at dealing with customers?'
 'Have you ever managed a team?'
 'Why have you applied for this job?'

They started by asking me ¹ what I knew about the company. Then they wanted to know ² any experience of that sort of work. They even asked me ³ type! Then I had to explain ⁴ my last job! The worst question was when they asked ⁵ good at dealing with customers. They also wanted to know ⁶ a team – I didn't know what to say! By the end, I wasn't sure ⁷ for the job!

c Complete the reported speech, thoughts and questions with one or two words in each gap. Contractions (e.g. didn't) count as one word.

- 1 'I promise that I'll be really careful.'
- 2 'You must explain what you're doing here.'
- 3 'Yes, OK. I told somebody about the accident.'
- 4 'How did they find out?'
- 5 'I'll pay for the meal – no discussion!'
- 6 'I'll send you a postcard.'
- 7 'We're really sorry that we lost your order.'
- 8 'OK, I can give you the money.'

- I promised to be really careful.
 The guard ordered explain what we were doing there.
 Amanda admitted sombody about the accident.
 I wondered how found out.
 Robert insisted for the meal.
 Sam told send me a postcard.
 They apologized our order.
 Patricia agreed us the money.

10A Past Modals of deduction

We can use modal verbs to show that we are making a deduction, not stating a fact. We use the modal verbs must, may, might, could and can't + have + past participle to make deductions about the past.

▶ 3.52

Deduction	Meaning
They are late.	I know for certain that they are late.
They are never late. They must have got lost.	I believe they've got lost.
They may / might / could have gone the wrong way. They might not have found the right street.	I believe it's possible that they've got lost.
They can't have got lost. They have a satnav.	I believe they haven't got lost.
They haven't got lost. I can see them coming up the street now.	I know for a fact that they haven't got lost.

The opposite of must for deductions is can't.

We can also use may not have or might not have / mightn't have: Try calling them at home. They might not have gone out. (= It's possible that they haven't gone out).

10B Wishes and regrets

▶ 3.58 When we make a wish, we imagine an unreal situation in the past, present or future.

Wishes about the future	We use would to make wishes about the future. Don't use would to make a wish about yourself – use could instead.	I wish it would stop raining. I wish I could get a better job but I haven't got enough experience. (= if I had more experience, I would be able to get a better job.)
Wishes about the present	We can use the past simple to make wishes about the present. We can also make wishes about the present with could + infinitive .	I wish I had more time. (= I would like to have more time.) I wish I could speak French – it's such a beautiful language. (= I wish I was able to speak French, but I'm not.)
Wishes about the past	We use the past perfect to make wishes about the past.	I wish I hadn't been so lazy at school. (I was lazy when I was at school, and now I regret it.)

Tip To talk about something that we see as realistic, possible or likely in the future use hope, not wish:

I hope you get better soon. NOT I wish you would get better soon.

I wish ... / if only ...

If only ... means the same as I wish ..., and we use it in the same way.

Tip When making wishes about I / he / she / it, we can use were instead of was. Were is preferred in formal English, but in normal spoken English, both versions are common: If only it were that simple. (Or: ... it was that simple.)

▶ 3.59 should have + past participle

We use should have + past participle to express regret about our own past actions:

It's my fault. I should have locked the door.
(But I didn't lock it so the burglars got in.)

10A Past Modals of deduction

a Tick (✓) the correct sentences. Correct the mistakes.

Vocabulary Focus

1A Character adjectives

- a Read the descriptions of people's characters. Which is personal and which is more formal?

Fred currently works as a researcher here at Bio-Tech. He's been a very loyal member of our staff, and has worked here for over ten years now. He's passionate about alternative energies and this can be seen in the energy and enthusiasm he puts into his work. He's also self-confident, so he is never afraid to work independently or to work on difficult tasks. Finally, he's always optimistic, even when he comes across problems in his work.

We've got this new colleague at work, Sheila. She's only been here for two weeks and already I don't like her very much. She's one of those ambitious people who's got lots of plans, but she's so arrogant about it all. She thinks she's better than everyone else. But if you try and suggest a different idea, she gets really upset. So she's a strange mix of being very sure of herself, but incredibly sensitive at the same time. She told me that she wants to be our team leader. If she thinks that's going to happen overnight, she's really naïve!

- b Match the bold character adjectives in a with the definitions.

- 1 when you don't have much experience of the world and believe things too easily
- 2 when you easily get upset by what people say about you
- 3 when you believe or behave as if you know more or are more important than other people
- 4 when you feel sure about yourself and your abilities
- 5 when you like something and have strong feelings about it
- 6 when you have a strong wish to be successful, powerful or rich
- 7 when you always support something or someone, even when other people don't
- 8 when you always think good things will happen

- c ▶ 1.7 Complete the sentences with the adjectives from the texts in a. Listen and check.

- 1 He's very _____. If I give him any negative feedback, he gets angry and shouts at me.
- 2 I'm sure he won't be nervous when he gives the speech. He always seems very _____.
- 3 I feel quite _____ that this project will be successful – everything is going according to plan.
- 4 They both think they're fantastic and everyone else is stupid. I've never met a couple who are so _____.
- 5 She's helped and supported me since we were at school. She's a very _____ friend – I know I can always rely on her.
- 6 Phil is really _____ about being a doctor. He loves the job and looks forward to going to work every day.
- 7 She works really hard because she's _____ and wants to do well in her career.
- 8 Martin is a little _____ – he honestly thought his boss would listen to his suggestions but of course in the end he didn't. He really is very young.

- d ▶ 1.8 Think of three family members or friends. Make notes on their character. Tell your partner.

My father's very passionate, particularly about his work.

I really like my aunt. She's a very successful lawyer. Some people think she's arrogant, but I don't.

2A Expressions with get

- a Read what Emma and Martin say. Who did they have a problem with?

Emma:

Last year I decided to join the social club at work. I always thought the social club was a bit boring and I wanted to improve it. I talked to some other people in the club and we tried to work out a way to get rid of the man running the club – the secretary – because we really thought he was the problem. Everyone liked this idea and we all got a bit carried away and decided a direct approach would be the best one. At the next meeting, we were about to say something when all of a sudden he said, ‘Look, I’ll get straight to the point. I think the social club’s getting a bit boring and we need some fresh ideas.’ We couldn’t believe his sudden change. Now the club is much more interesting and lots of new people have got involved.

Martin:

My son’s really getting on my nerves at the moment. He won’t study at all. I can’t get across to him the importance of doing well at school. He just won’t listen and it’s getting me down. The problem is he got through his exams very easily last year without studying. He thinks he can do the same thing this year, but I’m not so sure.

- b Match the get expressions in bold in a with definitions 1–8.
- to say something important immediately and in a direct way
 - to make someone understand something
 - to take part in an activity or organisation
 - to be successful in an examination or competition
 - when something annoys you
 - to become excited about something so that you are no longer careful
 - when something makes you feel sad or depressed
 - to send or throw someone or something away

- c 1.26 Pronunciation Notice the linking between get and the word after in this example.

Lots of new people have got involved

Listen to these examples. In which sentences is there linking between get and the word after? What does that tell you about linking?

- We tried to work out a way to get rid of the man running the club.
- We all got a bit carried away.
- I’ll get straight to the point.
- I can’t get across to him the importance of doing well.

- d Think of examples of these things.

- a time that you got rid of something you didn’t want
- something that gets on your nerves
- a time when you got through an exam, test or interview
- a situation where you got a bit carried away
- a club or organisation you got involved in

- e Tell each other about your examples in d.

Unit 1

► 1.4

CHLOE What's that book you're reading?

AMELIA It's about astronomy – black holes, planets, the big bang ...

C Hmm, not exactly a light read, but I suppose you like that sort of thing. Me, I like to relax when I read.

A It's just I read this article online the other day.

C Uh-huh?

A It was about this physicist. She discovered these things called pulsars which are like ... well, they're an incredible kind of star.

C Uh-huh ... She?

A Yeah, yeah, her name's Jocelyn Bell-Burnell. She's a respected physicist. Well, that's the thing, that's what got me interested. There aren't many women working in that area.

C But hang on, she discovered these stars?

A Yeah, she was a postgraduate student at the time, but the guy who was her supervisor got all the credit.

C You're kidding?

A No, he won the Nobel Prize.

C So who did you say this woman was?

A Jocelyn Bell-Burnell.

C But I've never even heard of her.

A Well, no. That's the point. On this website it talks about ... well, it's got a whole lot of information on people like her ... you know, people who work behind the scenes and don't get the credit or don't become famous. It was really interesting.

C Yeah, I bet there are a lot of people like that.

A I mean, she really is an inspiring woman. Even when she was at high school, they weren't going to let her join the science class ...

C When was this?

A Back in the fifties.

C Really? Even in the fifties?

A Yeah. And then at the end of the year, she came top of her class! And when she was doing her PhD and made her amazing discovery, she had a young child and was having to manage a whole lot of things in her private life, too. I mean, she was really determined, but in a quiet way. And then, when the newspapers wanted to interview her, they didn't want to know about her research, they just asked a lot of stupid questions about her height, her clothes, that sort of thing.

C That's terrible, isn't it? So is that a biography of her that you're reading?

A Well, no, it's just a book about astrophysics.

C Astrophysics? Just? So you're going to become ... what? A rocket scientist or something?

A Well, no ... I don't know. The thing is ... after I read the article, I found an interview with Jocelyn Bell-Burnell online. And she was talking about how even today there still aren't many women who go into science and become scientists.

C So now you want to go back to university and do a physics degree?

A Maybe. But, you know, why not? I've always been good at science and I used to really enjoy physics.

C But are you really prepared to study and put in all that effort?

A Yeah, I think I am.

C Well, you've always been motivated, that's for sure. And stubborn ...

A But I'm still thinking about it ... doing some reading, that kind of thing.

C Well, actually ... good on you. Why not make a change – take a risk? I admire that.

A Yeah. Actually that's what she says in the interview: 'Be prepared to take a risk – you'll probably surprise yourself.' And she said something else very simple about women wanting to be scientists: 'Go for it!' And I thought, yeah, why shouldn't I?

INTERVIEWER So Alison, you went to find out about the 30-day challenge. What is it and how does it work?

ALISON Yes, I went to a one-day seminar about it. The basic idea is that, according to psychologists, 30 days is about the time it takes to really develop a new habit because that's how long it takes for our brains to shift to a new direction. So often if we try something new, we give up after about a week or two because our brain hasn't adapted. So the idea of the 30-day challenge is, you choose something you want to do, like drink less coffee, for example, and you keep going for exactly 30 days.

I So, if you manage to do it for 30 days and you feel good about it, you'll probably keep to it, is that the idea?

A That's right, yes. But the other thing about it is that 30 days isn't a very long time. 30 days goes past quite quickly anyway. So if you decide to do something completely new – let's say you decide to get up at dawn every day and see the sunrise – maybe you wouldn't want to keep it up for your whole life, but it might be fun to do it for just 30 days. So it's also a chance to try something different, and if you're successful it's great, but if it doesn't work out it doesn't matter too much.

I I see, so it's not just about giving up bad habits. The idea is really that you try out something new.

A Yes, very much so. There were people at the seminar, for example, who'd written a short poem every day for 30 days, and someone else had tried to eat something new every day for 30 days. So it's a chance to do something you've always wanted to do or maybe something new that you'd never thought of doing.

I I sounds a lot of fun, if you've got time for it.

A Yes, well you can either do something that doesn't really get in the way of your life, like writing a poem – you can do that in your lunch break, it's easy. Or you can take time out and have a go at something you've always wanted to do, like paint a picture or climb mountains or something. Obviously to do something like that you need to make an effort and, of course, you have to give yourself a time limit of 30 days.

I So, it sounds like you think it's a good idea.

A I think it's a great idea, yes. I came away convinced!

I So, are you planning to try the 30-day challenge yourself?

A Yes, in fact I already am. I decided to put my car keys in a drawer and I'm going to cycle everywhere for 30 days, even if it rains.

I And how's it going so far?

A Really well. I'm finding it much easier than I expected.

I And when did you start?

A Erm ... this morning.

I Well, good luck with that, Alison. Now, Alison's only just started, but next up on the Life and Style podcast we're going to talk to a few more people who've been doing the 30-day challenge. They're all about half-way through, and they've done it successfully so far ...

INTERVIEWER What made you decide to become vegetarian, Farah?

FARAH Well, for quite a long time now I've been trying to eat less meat, partly for health reasons. I think vegetables are better for you.

I But didn't you ever think of being vegetarian before?

F Yes, but I always thought I'd miss meat too much. But the idea of being a vegetarian for 30 days was really good, because I could give it a try and then see how I feel.

I And how do you feel? Are you finding it difficult?

F No, I feel really good. Actually, I don't miss meat at all, so I think I'll easily manage the 30 days and I might try carrying on longer. I certainly think I'm a bit healthier than I used to be.

I Mona, why did you decide to draw something every day?

MONA Well, I've never been very good at drawing, but I've always thought I'd like to start drawing things around me. It's one of those things that you think about doing, but you never get round to.

I What have you drawn pictures of so far?

M All kinds of things. At the start I drew objects around me at home. Then I went out in my lunch break and started drawing things outdoors, like yesterday I drew a duck in the park – that was really difficult!

I So do you feel it has been worthwhile?

M Oh yes, definitely. I'm still not very good at drawing, but it's been lots of fun and it's very relaxing.

I Steve, what language did you decide to learn?

STEVE Well, I thought I'd choose a language that isn't too different from English, so I decided to try Italian.

I Isn't it difficult to keep going with it?

S Yes, it is. I've had to be very strict with myself. I'm using a book with a CD, so I usually try to cover one lesson a night.

I And who do you practise with? Or are you just working alone?

S Well, there's an Italian restaurant just round the corner and I'm friends with the owner, so I go there and I chat to him. That's one reason I chose Italian.

I And do you think you'll carry on after the 30 days?

S Maybe, or I might try a different language every month. I'm thinking of trying Japanese next.

► 1.15 PART 1

BECKY That was a really interesting lecture. There's so much to learn, though. I'm going to try and get all my homework done tonight.

TESSA Oh, I'm going out tonight. Can't be bothered with homework. I'll do mine later. You always study too much! Do you want a coffee?

B Sorry, I can't. I've got to go to work. It's my first day!

T Oh, of course, at your cousin's café. Well, good luck! Oh, by the way, when is that assignment due?

B Friday. Really must go now, I'll be late. See you tomorrow.

T Bye!

► 1.16 PART 2

BECKY Hi, Tom. I'm just on my way to the café.

TOM Oh OK ...

B I'm late.

T Look, this evening ... do you want to come over? I wanted to talk over a few things ... about the wedding ...

B I'd love to but I've got to study tonight.

T OK. Never mind. Well, good luck with your first day at work.

B Thanks. I'm sure it'll be fine.

T Don't spill coffee over anyone!

B I'll try not to. Oh, must run. Here comes my bus. No time to talk now. See you tomorrow. Bye.

► 1.19 PART 3

SAM OK, so what was I showing you? The food. The sandwiches are all here. The most important thing is, don't touch the food. Remember to always use these tongs to pick food up. And what else? Oh, the espresso machine. Uh, the coffee goes in here, the cup there, and you press this button. Is that clear?

BECKY OK, I'll remember that.

S Another thing to remember is the tables – they're all numbered. So it starts with one over there and goes round to fifteen. OK, have you got that?

B Yes, sure. I think I can count to 15!

S Hah – I still get them mixed up myself. Oh, say hello to Phil. He's our most regular customer. This is my cousin Becky. She's just started here.

PHIL Hi, nice to meet you.

B Hi,

S Phil's writing a novel.

B A novel! Amazing.

P Well, it's just a science fiction story. Haven't got very far yet.

S He comes to the café to write. We call him JK. You know – like JK Rowling. She wrote the first Harry Potter book in a café.

B Oh, right!

EMMA Oh, there you are. Lovely to see you, Becky. We're really pleased you're working here.

B Me too. I'm going to enjoy it, I'm sure.

E Is my husband looking after you and explaining everything?

B Oh yes, I'm getting the hang of it – slowly.

P She's doing really well.

E And I see you've met Phil. He's going to make the café famous one day, you'll see.

► 1.20 PART 4

TOM Large cappuccino please, with extra milk.

BECKY With extra m – oh Tom! Sorry. Wasn't expecting you.

T I was just passing by. How's it going?

B There's a lot to learn, but I think I'll be OK. Is it OK if I take my break now?

SAM Yeah.

B I'll make a coffee for both of us.

T Sure that's OK?

B Yeah, it's fine. You came at a quiet time. So, what was it you wanted to talk to me about tonight?

T Er, the wedding?

B The wedding?

T Yes, our wedding!

B Of course. We need to start thinking about it.

GITTA Most people at work think my boss, Michaela, is an inspiring woman who's had an amazing career – we work for a public relations company. She always looks very busy and people find that impressive, but I find her a bit arrogant, to tell you the truth. The other day, we were having a performance review meeting – she was reviewing me – and in the middle of the meeting her mobile phone rang. She answered the call and just ignored me! When she finished the call, she then spent a long time writing an email on her phone whilst I was just sitting there – waiting. When she'd finished, she didn't apologise or anything and just said, 'OK, what were we talking about?' Maybe I'm being too sensitive, but she didn't seem to care about our meeting – or me – and was far more interested in her phone call and email. I really think people should switch off their phones during meetings. I was really upset, to be honest.

DEREK For years, I resisted getting a mobile phone. Don't get me wrong – I'm not a techno-phobe. I've been using a computer for years; in fact, I have two: a desktop and a laptop. It's just that mobile phones annoyed me. I didn't want to be available all the time and I thought the language people used in text messages was a bit silly. However, my niece, Emma, was determined that I should get a mobile phone. I run a small firm of accountants and she felt someone in my position needed to be 'more connected', as she put it. Emma has a smartphone and she explained to me how they were just like mini computers that you carry around in your pocket. And, of course, she was right. She let me borrow hers for a weekend. I didn't actually phone anyone, but she had a lot of clever apps on her phone and I found out that I could go online and check email really easily. Of course, I went out and bought a smartphone the following week. Emma was delighted – she had finally managed to convince me. I haven't told her that I still don't ring anyone or send text messages, but now she thinks I'm more connected. For me, it's a great new toy – lots of fun.

ABBY So, when are you off to South Africa?

ROB End of next week. I can't wait to get away.

A I absolutely loved it when I went there last year. So, what have you got planned?

R You know – the usual things – Cape Town first. I'll definitely go to Robben Island.

A Great.

R And one thing I want to try while I'm there is surfing. Apparently, there are some really great schools you can go to.

A Yeah, there are loads.

R I've always wanted to learn how to surf and I'll finally get to do it – you know, with proper waves! Cool!

A That's a great thing to do – I went to one of those schools.

R And was it good? Did you learn a lot?

A Yeah – yeah I did. But ... but you've got to be a bit careful in the water there. Actually, I got into a bit of trouble once.

R What, in the water?

A Yeah, when I was first learning to surf I went out one time by myself. I was trying to catch this wave, but I came off my board, and stupidly, I'd forgotten to attach a leg rope from my ankle to the board.

R So you lost the board?

A Yeah, I tried to get hold of it, but it got swept away by the wave.

R So what did you do – just swim to the shore?

A Well, sort of. I started swimming and I soon realised that I wasn't getting anywhere. Then very gradually I got the feeling I was being pulled out to sea.

R You were caught in a current?

A Yeah, and when I realised this, I began to panic a bit. So I waved to get someone's attention. Luckily a life-guard had already seen that I was in trouble. And he came to rescue me in his lifeboat.

R Bet you were pleased to see him!

A Yeah! But the idea of being carried right out to sea is really frightening. I don't think you could survive very long. I'm quite a strong swimmer, but even so ...

R Yeah, I think you'd start to really feel the cold in the water.

A Well, I was wearing a wet suit. But they say if you get caught in a current you shouldn't try and swim against it. The thing is, the water there is ocean, not sea. The waves are really powerful.

R Hmm, maybe I'll have another think about it.

A About surfing you mean?

R Yeah.

A No, honestly you'll love it. It really is the most amazing feeling. I just had a bad experience. I got myself a new surfboard, and as soon as I'd had some lessons and knew what I was doing, it was fantastic. It's just you and the board, and you have this incredible sense of freedom. And when you catch the wave at the right time ...

R Yeah, you're right, it sounds amazing.

A Yeah, it's fantastic. Oh, but, just watch out for sharks.

R Yeah, I'll ... watch out for what?!

INTERVIEWER Miles, tell us about the story. What happened?

MILES Well, one day in the winter of 1997, in eastern Siberia, one of the wildest and most natural habitats on Earth, a hunter came across a Siberian tiger. He shot the tiger and wounded it and then took part of the dead animal that the tiger was about to eat. Of course, the tiger wasn't happy. It attacked and killed Markov but it didn't do this immediately. It waited 48 hours before attacking. In other words, it remembered what had happened and carefully planned the attack. So while Markov was away hunting, the tiger found its way to his hut in the forest and broke in through the door. The tiger then took Markov's mattress outside and laid on it, waiting for him to return. When Markov finally appeared, the tiger dragged him into the forest and ate him, leaving only his boots. They found the boots later and figured out what had happened.

I So these are very dangerous animals, obviously.

M Yes, very dangerous if you make them angry, certainly. They're also not just any tiger, they're the largest species of cat walking on earth. The Siberian Tiger is a very impressive animal. They can be up to four metres long and they weigh more than 250 kilos. They can jump about ten metres if they need to. So imagine a creature that's as active as a cat and has the weight of an industrial refrigerator – that's what a Siberian tiger's like ...

► 1.35

INTERVIEWER ... So what happened then?

MILES Well of course, a group of men hunted the tiger down and killed it.

I I suppose they had to really.

M But did they?

I What do you mean?

M Well, when you read the story, you're not sure whose side you're on, the tiger's or the humans'. As Vaillant says, the tiger's response is quite 'logical' and the tiger is 'just trying to be a tiger', and it's a human who interferes with that.

I So in a sense, it's the humans who are dangerous, rather than the tiger?

M In a way, yes. What's interesting is that humans and tigers hunt the same animals and share the same environment, and they've done this in Siberia for years but they don't normally disturb each other. But if you make the mistake of attacking a tiger, you're in trouble. People who live in the area say this has never happened before. There is no record ever of a tiger hunting a human being.

I So is that the message of the story – leave tigers alone?

M Well, yes, don't make a tiger angry, certainly, or it will take revenge. But also it makes you ask the question, 'Which is the dangerous animal, tigers or humans?' We think of tigers as dangerous, but of course we're not at risk because of tigers, they're at risk because of us. There are 40 million humans but only 500 tigers, so they really are an endangered species, and that's mainly because of us hunting them and living in their habitat and taking away their natural food.

I Miles, thank you. You heard Miles Holman talking about the book The Tiger by John Vaillant ...

► 1.37 PART 1

BECKY Could you give me a hand with this please, Tessa?

TESSA Sure.

B I just, I just can't get the right height.

T OK.

B Great, thank you.

T No problem.

B Good shot?

B Not really. I think I need to be closer. It's quite difficult.

T Yeah, it's hard, isn't it? ... Do you need all this equipment?

B I find it helps.

T Do you?

B Usually. Ah, this is fun.

T Yeah, much better than sitting in a lecture at college. All that theory!

B Well, that can be interesting ...

T I'd really like to take a photo of something a bit more exciting – maybe a squirrel.

B A squirrel? That'll be good ... if we can find one ...

► 1.39 PART 2

TESSA Nice daffodils.

BECKY Gorgeous, aren't they?

B Can I have a look? Wow, what a great shot!

T It's all right.

B You know just how to get a really good shot. The light is amazing.

T Thanks. Guess it's not bad. Can I have a look at yours?

B It's pretty boring.

T Don't you want me to?

- B No – I mean it's not a problem. I just feel it's a pretty ordinary shot. You know, just ... nothing special. Compared to yours.
T Have you ever worked as a photographer?
T Me? No. It was just something I kind of got into. Kind of a hobby. How about you?
B No, never. I used to have this job working in HR, but I've just given that up.
T Too stressful?
B Sort of.
T Or too boring?
B Well ... both! My café job's enough to pay the bills – just. You?
T I'm just studying at the moment; I haven't got a job ...
B Oh right ...
T Shhh!
B What?
T Squirrel. Over there.
B Oh right. Great.
T We'll need to get a bit closer. But quietly.
B You go first.
T No, no. You go.
B No, really – you should go.
T It's fine. This is your shot.
B Sure?
T Yeah.
B OK. Oh no! It's run away. Ah, this is a really bad shot. The light's all wrong. I need a reflector.
T Can I have a look?
B I don't like it.
T This is great.
B Really?
T Yeah, it's your best shot.
B But I didn't have a chance to set it up.
T Maybe sometimes you don't need to.
B Hm. OK. Maybe not. You know, one thing I don't like about this assignment.
T What's that?
B It's so cold!
T Yeah, it's freezing, isn't it?
B My flat's not far away. Do you fancy a nice warm cup of coffee?
T OK. Yeah. Why not?
B Great. Let's go.

1.41

LUIZA I spent a year in Vancouver in Canada. I loved the National Parks there – they're very special environments full of rare and protected plants and animals. This one particular day I'd been exploring in the Pacific Rim National Park when I got in trouble in the forest. I'd been to see this waterfall. It was a very easy walk from the main track – less than an hour. On the way back I saw what I thought was a short cut that would get me back to the main track more quickly – a big mistake. After a couple of hours I realised that I was going round in circles and I wasn't getting anywhere. I'd got completely lost. I was beginning to get worried – that's for sure. All I had to eat was an energy bar and I had nothing to drink. Well, I waited until later in the afternoon because then I knew the sun would go down in the west and I knew roughly I should be going in an easterly direction. And I had a bit of luck – I came across a stream with fresh water. I followed the stream for a bit and I came to an open area – a kind of a clearing. I knew that eventually people would start looking for me – I'd told the forest ranger when I would be back and I was more than four hours late. And I knew it's better to sit in one place where you can be seen. So I was sitting quietly and thinking about how I could spend the night in the forest and I suddenly had this strange feeling I was not alone.

LUIZA I looked around the clearing and on the edge of it I saw a bear looking at me. I knew that you shouldn't run away or show fear. I stood up and said in a clear voice "I have a right to be here" and moved slowly backwards without looking at the bear in the eyes. I could sense the bear watching me. I tried to keep calm but inside I was really panicking. I was terrified. Suddenly, it started moving – thankfully it was away from me. It just disappeared back into the forest. I didn't know if I should stay where I was or keep moving. But then I could hear a helicopter in the distance coming towards me, I thought it might be looking for me. I jumped up and tried to see it, but it flew away before I could get its attention. It was so frustrating. But about fifteen minutes later it flew back and I was ready. I took off my jacket and turned it inside out – the lining was red and easy to see. This time they saw me and waved back. About a half an hour later rescuers arrived and guided me out. What I couldn't get over is the fact that I was only 10 minutes away from the main track.

Unit 3

1.43

NARRATOR My teacher will get angry if I make mistakes.

TEACHER I don't really think that's the case. Teachers really do prefer students who try hard, you know, make an effort. It doesn't matter if they make mistakes. In fact, it's better if they do because if we know what their mistakes are, we can help fix them.

N Children learn faster than adults.

T I guess you could say that children aren't as busy as adults – they probably have a bit less going on in their lives. And that helps. They're less distracted and, you could say, a bit more open to learning. But adults – well, they often have really good motivation. They're often quite focused and they're really keen to learn. So this motivation can make them faster learners than children.

N I must practise every day in order to make progress.

T Well, in my experience you can practise too much! It's actually better to take two or three days off each week. The thing is our brains need a bit of a rest. It's like muscles when you're doing physical exercise – you need to rest them. So we need to rest our brains when we're learning and practising something new.

N If something seems very easy, I must be doing it wrong.

T Yeah, a lot of people believe this, but I think the opposite is true. In reality, if it's easy, it probably means you're doing it right. But if something's difficult or it's a physical activity that's causing you pain, then you're probably doing something wrong. Learning doesn't always need to be hard!

N Long practice sessions are best.

T It's much, much better to have shorter practice sessions. You've got to remember that most people get tired after about fifteen minutes and they need a short break. The thing is, though, during the fifteen minutes of practice, you really want people to concentrate on what they're doing – really focus. They'll get more benefit that way.

1.44

SEAMUS Ever since I was first able to read I've loved comic books. I just think it's a brilliant way of telling a story. I've read literally thousands of them. But, at the same time, I discovered I was quite good at drawing. When I was about eight years old I started copying some of the pictures in comics and even my parents were surprised by how good my copies were. It wasn't long before I started making up my own stories. All of my friends were also really into comics, but none of them tried coming up with their own stories. But they quite liked reading mine, so I'd share the comics I wrote with them. This was helpful because it gave me a good idea of what worked and what didn't. I studied design at university and then got a job as a graphic designer. But all the time I was writing and drawing my own comics – comics for adults and children. I've just signed a contract with a major comics publisher in the USA and I can now give up my job as a graphic designer. I think my career in comics is beginning to take off ... well, I hope to do really well. Ten thousand hours? You bet. I've probably spent more time than that, but I loved every minute of it.

FIONA I'm a chemist and I've been lucky enough to get a research position at a university. I love chemistry because it's all about the things that make up the world we live in. I find it fascinating. It's funny, whenever I say that I'm a chemist, one of the first things people mention is the table of elements – you know, all the symbols for all the different metals and gases. They can never figure out all those symbols. Well, I have this system where the letter or letters remind me of the name of a person, and that reminds me of a face and something about the way he or she looks reminds me of the element. One colleague pointed out that this wasn't a very scientific way of remembering these elements. In fact, some scientists look down on this kind of thing, but it works for me. I find all these ways of making your memory stronger really interesting and I think making associations to help you remember is really useful. I have to remember so much information in my research work, so I want to look into these techniques in more depth.

HENRY I'm a musician – I play saxophone in a band. We're just about to go on a tour so we're practising full-time to get ready. We've got so much to do before the tour – so much that it's getting us all down a bit. Apart from needing to practise playing together, we've got to write some new songs and learn some others. I read about this idea of learning different things at different times of the day, so we decided to try it out and see if it'd help. So now we focus on writing new material in the morning, and we also use that time to learn the words and music of some classic songs we want to play – actually studying the notes and remembering the words of songs. After lunch we play together – you know, do the physical learning. And I have to say it's working pretty well. We're putting in a lot of work and we feel we're using the time well. The songs are getting easier to remember and I think our playing in the afternoon is tighter – we're producing a better sound. The only problem is that some days we get a bit carried away in the afternoon and keep playing into the evening, which means we stay up late and aren't so good in the morning!

PETER This week on The Book Show we're talking about David Epstein's The Sports Gene, in which he claims that many sports professionals are so good simply because they're lucky enough to have the right genes. According to him, top athletes and other sportsmen are simply different from the rest of us. With us is athlete Barbara MacCallum, who is a professional runner and trainer. Barbara, you've read the book. Do you think Epstein is right – is it all about having the right genes?

BARBARA Well, I think he's right that genes are important. And, of course, we all know that many Kenyans are tall and thin and so on, and also as the book says they live at a high altitude – 1,000 metres – so they have more red blood cells. So these things are important. But I think there's much more to it than that.

P You've lived in Kenya yourself.

B Yes, I've lived in Kenya myself and I've trained with Kenyan runners, I've also worked with Kenyan children. And there really are lots of very good runners in Kenya. But it's not just about having long legs. They also have a culture of running, everyone runs, even small children, so they have this background, they all see themselves as runners, as good runners. And if you're poor in Kenya, becoming an athlete is a way to change your life, so everyone wants to be a runner.

P And they run in bare feet. Does that help?

B Yes, it does. It gives you a much better running technique, so that's important, too. So yes, I think it is partly genetic, but it's also to do with lots of other factors, like having lots of practice, lots of encouragement to run, believing in yourself, and also learning to run in the right way.

P So could I run as fast as a Kenyan?

B Well, yes, you could, but you'd have to start early in life and you'd have to get very fit.

P Well, I haven't run anywhere for years, so maybe it's a bit too late to start.

B Absolutely not, it's never too late. Start training now and you'll be amazed at what you can achieve.

▶ 1.49

PETER Thank you, Barbara. Well, also with us now is Marta Fedorova. Marta, you've been playing tennis since you were a child and you've been a professional player for ten years.

MARTA Yes.

P You've also read the book. Do you think he's right? Are some sports people naturally better? Or is it a question of technique and practice, as Barbara says?

M Well, yes, I've been thinking a lot about this recently. I used to think that it was mainly practice and technique that were important. You know, if you practise a lot, if you get fit, if you improve your technique, then you'll win. But after reading this book I'm not so sure. For example, I've played maybe 50 serious matches this year. And I've won about half of them. If I think about the people who beat me, they all have certain things in common physically. Short bodies but longer arms, for example.

P Like you.

M Well, yes, I suppose so! And very good eyesight, obviously. And mostly aged 18 to 25. And these are things that you can't really change. So yes, there is something in it.

P So sport isn't as fair as we like to think?

M That's right, and that's really what he's saying in this book. When we watch the Olympics, for example, we think it's a fair competition between equals, but it isn't. We're watching a competition between very different types of people who have different natural advantages. So there will be people who need to train very hard to get where they are and others who don't need to train so much, and there will be some people who can naturally finish 40 seconds ahead of all the others, and so on. So fairness in sport doesn't really exist.

▶ 1.51 PART 1

BECKY So when are you going to tell your parents about your promotion?

TOM This weekend, I think. We're seeing them on Saturday, remember?

B Oh yes. Anyway, as I was saying – about Tessa ...

T Tessa, yes, your classmate ...

B She's just got this amazing natural ability.

T So have you.

B But I've been taking photos for years ...

T Very good ones too ...

B ... and I've gradually got better, but Tessa ...

T Maybe she's been practising for years, too. In secret! ... So what's for dinner then?

B Well, I got some cheese, some chicken and some salad.

T Cheese? You mean the one on offer?

B Yeah. Two for one – bargain.

T Yes, it was a bargain. That's why I got some.

B Well, I guess I know what we are having for dinner.

T Cheese on toast?

B Cheese on toast.

▶ 1.52 PART 2

TOM Anyway, as I was saying ... about the wedding. I was thinking we should start making some decisions if we want to get married in June.

BECKY Yes, you're right.

T So what do we need to think about?

B Well, the usual things ... guests, a venue for the reception, the cake.

T So maybe the first thing to decide is ...

B ... who should we invite?

T I mean, do we want a large wedding with lots of guests or just a small one?

B How about ... how about we invite no one?

T What?

B We can just have a secret wedding. You know, go to Las Vegas in America – or something like that.

T Seriously?

B It's an idea ...

T Seriously Becky – don't you think it's a good idea to set a limit? Say, no more than 80 guests?

B Yes, I suppose it is.

T OK.

B And ... Tessa!

T Sure – we can invite her.

B ... well, yes ... but I was thinking ... we'll need a photographer.

T Well, yes.

B But don't you agree that Tessa would be perfect as the photographer?

T Um ... Becky ... that's kind of an unnecessary detail right now.

B Yes. Of course.

T To go back to the guests ...

B OK, so how many relatives, how many friends?

▶ 1.55 PART 3

TOM So, if we just invite close family and friends ...

BECKY We'll have to invite Aunt Clare.

T Your mad Aunt Clare?

B We have to invite her.

T Of course, we could sit her next to my Uncle Fred.

B But he never says anything.

T Exactly – the perfect pair.

B Who else? What about the people you work with?

T Hmm – I don't know about that.

B We could always invite them to the evening reception.

T Don't you agree that it'd be easier not to invite them?

B But I would like to invite Tessa.

T As I said – that's fine. Anyway, I think we need to limit it to close friends and family members. Even the scary ones.

B I sort of get both excited and nervous when I think about it.

T It'll be fine. So the next question is where?

B Well, there's that lovely old hotel ... you know, near where my cousin lives.

T Oh ... 'Regent's Lodge'.

B Actually ... thinking about where ... after we're married. Where are we going to live?

T Hm. Good question.

B What you might call a necessary detail?

REPORTER This is Marco Forlan reporting from the multi-million-pound Market Street Sports Complex. It's huge – it's got so many different courts for different sports – tracks for athletics and cycling. It's even got its own indoor snow slope. It's been up and running for a year now, so I've come down to see just how much use it's getting. So, Lizzie, you haven't been doing this long, have you?

LIZZIE No, just over six months.

R And before that?

L Well, nothing. I was one of those people who was pretty hopeless at sport at school. In basketball I could never catch the ball very well and I couldn't throw it far enough. And I've never been a fast runner.

R So you were always last to be picked for a team?

L Yeah, that was me! Everyone else was so much more talented and they looked down on me. But I wanted to do some kind of exercise, and, to be honest, I almost don't consider this a sport – it's just something I used to do to get to school. I train four days a week now and I do a mix of track and open road. It's my favourite part of the day.

R And in the future?

L Next month I'm going to compete in a race. It's just a small local one, but it gives me a goal to aim for. I've been training quite hard for the past six months now. I train here on the track, but also on the open road.

R Good luck with your race.

R Hey, Barry – that was quite an impressive jump.

BARRY Thanks.

R So how long have you been doing this?

B Just over a year. I took it up after I recovered from a foot injury. You see, I used to run marathons, but now I find it really uncomfortable to run long distances.

R And did you get started here at the centre?

B Yeah, that's right. In the beginning I was just having fun – you know ... And then I realised I was quite good at it. What I enjoy is ... it's mostly about skill and the way you use your whole body – it's not just about strength.

R And have you ever tried it out in the open?

B Yeah, last winter I went to France and had my first go on real snow. I met a lot of amazing people there including a few professionals. They told me that I've got a naturally good style.

R Any plans for the future?

B I'm going to compete in some championships this winter and I've just bought myself this new board. I just wish we had real mountains in England.

R That's a great-looking board. Have fun! That was a pretty energetic game, Patricia.

PATRICIA Yeah, it was fun.

R So you're new to the game?

P Yeah, I started about nine months ago.

R How did you get into it?

P I took it up because I wanted a sport for myself. You see, I've spent the past six or seven years taking my two children to different sports events. They're older now and can get to sports practice on their own. So I had to figure out what I'd like to do.

R How did you decide?

P Well, I was always quite good at basketball, but I wanted to try something new. And I wanted a sport that would get me fit, and this certainly does. Once I'd looked into a range of options – the choice was easy.

R This is a fairly new sport in the UK ...

P Yeah.

R So how is it different from basketball?

P Well, you can actually take three steps with the ball – so long as you do it in three seconds.

R That's not long. And how often do you practise?

P Once a week and then we have a friendly game. I enjoy the social side of things as much as the competing. Next year my team's thinking about entering some championships.

R Well, I hope you continue to enjoy it.

1

A Oh no. There's glass all over the floor.

B Well, you dropped it so I think you should clear it up.

A I can't, I've got to go. Couldn't you do it? Please?

2

A What does 'potential' mean?

B Um, I don't know. I'll have to look it up. I'll tell you in a minute.

3

A Did you manage to learn Spanish?

B Yeah, it was easy. I picked it up in about six months. But I never really learned the grammar.

4

A I think we should talk about having longer lunch breaks. Thirty minutes is much too short.

B Yes, I agree. Why don't you bring it up at the meeting?

Unit 4

▶ 2.5

PRESENTER Monica, we often hear stories about lottery winners who were unhappy or who spent their money unwisely.

MONICA Yes, that's true, you often read about lottery winners whose lives turned bad. For example, the Griffiths family recently – that was a big story. They won £1.8 million on the lottery and they spent it all on houses and cars and I don't know what else. And they ended up losing all their money, and soon after that their marriage broke up – it was a very sad story. And you do certainly hear stories like that.

P So does suddenly having a lot of money really influence people's behaviour? Or are these just isolated or unusual cases which make a good story?

M They're just isolated cases; in fact winning doesn't usually have a negative influence on people. Of course, people like to believe that winning money leads to disaster because that makes them feel better about not winning. But the idea that winning a lot of money causes misery is actually a myth, it's simply not true.

P There have been studies done on this, haven't there?

M Yes, that's right. According to most studies, suddenly having a lot of money is just as likely to have a positive effect on you as a negative effect. And most people don't in fact spend all their money.

P Can you give us some examples?

M Yes. For example, a recent study in Britain looked at how much of their money people spent if they won the lottery. And it found that people spent a lot in the first five years, but very few people spent all the money in their lifetime, only about 2–3%. So most people do spend a lot, but they save a lot as well. And then there was an interesting study in California, and they measured how happy people are as a result of winning the lottery. And they found that people get very happy when they win, which isn't surprising, but as they adjust to the idea of being rich and go back to normal again after a few months – they end up feeling just the same as before. So over the long term, getting richer doesn't actually affect how happy you are, you just stay the same ... but with more money, of course.

P So, if you're happy anyway, you'll stay happy even if you get rich, is that the message?

M Yes, that's right. Money won't make you happy, but it won't stop you being happy either. And studies have also shown that it depends on how you spend the money. So people who buy lots of things, like clothes or houses or cars, are often not very happy. As soon as you've got a car you want a better car and so on, so that doesn't make you happy for long. But spending money on experiences usually results in longer-term happiness.

P Experiences?

M Yes, for example, going on the holiday of a lifetime or doing something you've always wanted to do. That'll make you happy while you're doing it, and it'll make you happy later because you also have good memories of it. So it's a better way to be happy.

P OK, so there we have it. When you win that £5 million, forget the cars and the new house, and go for a long holiday instead.

ALPHONSO For me, the thing that's changed my life most is having a baby. Things are just completely different now. We used to go out a lot, we used to travel as well, we'd go somewhere different every year, and we didn't use to care much about money, we both had good jobs and we had a small flat in town so we didn't need to care about money very much. But now of course the baby's the most important thing, so I'd say I've become a bit more cautious than I used to be. I used to be quite an adventurous person, I used to take all kinds of risks without thinking much about it. Whereas now I think more about having a family, having a home, having a steady job, things like that. Sounds terribly boring, doesn't it, but it doesn't feel boring!

DRAGANA A very big change in my life was going abroad to study. I grew up in Croatia in a fairly small town and I went to university there. But then I had the chance to go to Berlin for a year to study. And of course I had a good time there and I made new friends, but I think it also changed the way I look at life. Before I went I was quite shy and not very self-confident and I had quite a protected life, I suppose, and then in Berlin I had to look after myself and also adapt to a new culture, of course. And as a result of being there, I think I no longer see everything from a Croatian point of view but more internationally, so I'm much more open to different ideas than I used to be – I hope so, anyway.

MIRANDA I think the hardest part of drama school was actually getting into it. The audition process took for ever. First of all we had to perform two scenes from plays – one modern, one Shakespeare. Then we got called back to do the scenes again. I was supposed to prepare a song as well, but they forgot to let me know. So I just sang the first song that came into my head – can't even remember what it was. After that, there was a workshop for a day where they made us work on new scenes from plays and do movement and voice classes. After all of that I felt really lucky to get selected. There's no doubt the training was very thorough, I mean, we did everything – the usual voice and movement classes, but also specialised things like learning how to pretend to fight on stage. I really enjoyed those classes. The tutors were all very different – some were really strict and tough. For example, we had a movement teacher and in her class we weren't allowed to talk or use our voices in any way. That was really difficult. But our voice teacher was really relaxed – she was cool. During my second year I went through a bit of a difficult time because I wasn't sure if acting was what I really wanted to do. I mean, drama school is a huge sacrifice. The training sort of swallowed my life – like, I lived it every single moment of the day. I kind of felt like I wasn't having what you'd call 'a normal life' for a 20-year-old. The school was really flexible about this and they let me take a couple of weeks off to make up my mind. I decided to keep going and I'm glad that I did. I graduated last year and I've got an agent and I've just got a small part in a production at the Royal Shakespeare Company. So I guess you could say I'm on my way ...

FRED I got into a football academy when I was eleven years old. I was playing at my local club and a scout from a professional club saw me and invited me to play in a trial match. I was really excited about this. My parents had their doubts – they were worried about me not having a normal childhood – but they could see this was a pretty unique opportunity, so they let me do it. Dad was really pleased about one thing – we were allowed to see all the club games for free. But I don't think any of us really understood just how difficult a commitment it would be. Mum and Dad were more or less forced to act as my chauffeurs and they had to drive me to practice three times a week and then to a match every Sunday. I had to do this and keep up with my school homework at the same time. And that meant I often wasn't allowed to go out and play with my friends when I wanted to. Still, in the academy we had the best coaches and there's no doubt that my playing got so much better. We also used to watch videos of matches all the time and analyse the strategy of the different players. I enjoyed this a whole lot more than I thought I would. In fact, one of the coaches once told me that this is one of the reasons why I stood out from some of the other boys in the academy. It's a really competitive environment and at the end of every year, there were some boys who were forced to give it all up because they didn't get invited back for the following year. I had one mate, Jack. We started at the same time, but when we turned 16, and it became possible for some of us to earn a salary, Jack wasn't selected. And it was like the previous five years were all for nothing. And he was like my best mate and I really missed him. I did get selected though, and now I've got a full professional contract, so things are pretty good. Did I have a normal childhood? No, probably not. I kind of regret that, but then I've been given an opportunity, haven't I? I guess you can't have it both ways.

BECKY Now let's have a look at some of the most successful ones. Tessa took this one.

TESSA We really like the way the light is hitting the tree.

B And here's a similar shot, but from a different angle with a plane crossing the sky. We got some close-ups of flowers. We managed to get some good shots of daffodils.

T The light was really good for this one.

B And we were lucky and managed to get a couple of wildlife shots. Here's a shot of a swan that Tessa took. And finally ... my shot of a squirrel.

B Thank you for listening.

TUTOR OK, thank you, Becky ... and Tessa. Some very good work. There were some interesting close-up shots there, very sharp details and clear colours.

Yes, a very good first assignment. Well done both of you. OK. Now for your next assignment – Bridges. Pick a bridge that you like. Photograph it and then write an essay to go with it. OK? We'll see how you get on. You've got one month.

► 2.14 PART 2

BECKY That went quite well.

TESSA Yeah.

B It was fun. So, bridges for the next assignment.

T Yes, bridges. So boring.

B Oh, I don't know, it's not that boring. All that fantastic architecture. That could be quite interesting.

T Yeah, maybe you're right, I'm not sure. But there's all that theory for the essay. I didn't take any notes in yesterday's lecture.

B Don't worry, I took loads of notes. You can borrow mine.

T Can I?

B Sure. Come round to the café later and I'll give them to you.

B Must go now. Bye!

A I thought the goalkeeper was useless. He was the weakest player in the team.

B Really, did you think so? I thought he played quite well.

2

A £60 for fish and a salad! That's far too much.

B I'm not sure about that. It doesn't seem that expensive.

3

A Did you see that bank managers earn an average of £100,000 a year? It's crazy!

B I know what you mean, but on the other hand it's a very responsible job.

4

A She's having a fancy dress party on her birthday. How boring!

B Oh I don't know. I think it could be quite good fun.

BECKY Here you are. My lecture notes.

TESSA Ah great, thanks.

B And these...

T Thank you.

B And here are some other notes I made earlier.

T Ah, OK, thank you. Plenty to read here.

B It's not too much, is it?

T Um, well ... no, thank you. You've saved my life.

B Don't worry, that's OK. I'm more into the theory than you are.

T You can say that again. I hate it.

B By the way, Tom and I were sorting out details of the wedding last night.

T Oh yeah?

B And well we thought – if you're interested – we'd love you to take the photos.

T Me? Are you serious?

B Yeah, why not?

T Well, I'm not ... I don't think I'm good enough.

B Oh don't be silly. Of course you are. Oh, will you?

Please?

T Well, yes, if you want me to. I mean ... I'd love to.

B Great. Better get back to work.

PHIL Oh no, No!

B What is it, Phil?

P I've just deleted the whole chapter. I only meant to delete the paragraph.

B Oh no.

T Who's that?

B That's Phil. He's always here. He's writing a book. Well, trying to, anyway. When he isn't accidentally deleting his work!

T A writer ... that's interesting.

B See you later.

T Hi.

P Hi.

T Becky tells me you're writing a book.

P Sort of.

T That's great. I like books.

P Mm.

T I'd like to see what you've written, anyway. I'm sure it's really good.

P Thanks. I haven't written much yet.

T Ah well, I'd better let you get on, bye. ...

P Bye ...

EVA I got a chance to go to Toronto in Canada for a year to work for my company – I didn't have to go there, but I chose to go because I thought it would be interesting. And it was a great experience. And, of course, at the start it was all new and exciting, and there was so much to see, so many places to go out. I'm from quite a small town in Colombia, so it was a huge difference. The most difficult thing, I think, was getting to know people. I think in a big city everyone's busy with their own life, you know, everyone's in a hurry. It was really hard to meet people and make friends. Also, because it's really cold in winter, nothing goes on outside in the street, everyone does things indoors in their own homes and that's quite a big difference. Sometimes you walk down a street and you think, where is everyone? And it was so cold, that really affects your mood, it makes you just want to stay indoors and as a result I felt quite lonely sometimes. So yes, it was a good experience, I'm very glad I went there, but I was quite glad to come back home again and see all my friends.

NICK I got a job teaching English in a town called Katowice in Poland. When I first went there I was very lucky, because I stayed with a family who didn't speak English, so I was really forced to speak Polish. It was very difficult at first, I couldn't understand a word. But because I learned Polish, I very quickly got to know lots of people. I think a key to understanding a country is to learn the language – without that you only ever meet the people who speak English and you can't ever get to know the culture. Another thing is that people often go to places that are beautiful to look at, and that's fine if you're a tourist. But to live in a place, I think what it looks like is the least important thing. People are much more important. For example, I come from a very beautiful old town in England – it looks great in photographs, but there's not much going on there. Where I was in Katowice, it's just a big industrial town, nothing special about it, but the people were very friendly and welcoming, so I very quickly felt at home there and I had a really good time. I was supposed to stay there for three months but I ended up staying for a year!

JEAN I work for a large engineering company and I went to work in Oman, in the Gulf, for a year. And I had a very good time there. I had a good salary so I ate out a lot and, at weekends, I went diving and swimming and went on trips into the mountains or the desert. It's a very beautiful country. So, as I say, I had a good time there, but I don't feel I ever really got to know the culture. I never got under the surface of it, so as a result I remained an outsider. People were very friendly, very hospitable, and I spent some time with the local employees who worked with us – we often went out together. But I suppose because the culture is very different and you're working hard every day, it's easier to spend your time with other foreigners, so my friends were mostly Europeans. I know it's not a good excuse, but it's what most foreign visitors do – they end up in a group of expatriates and have their own lifestyle, and that results in them being like a separate community. Maybe I should have tried harder to learn Arabic, I did try to learn a bit, but I never learned to speak it well enough to have a real conversation with people.

Lots of people get scared when they fly and they're sure the plane's going to crash, but in fact it's one of the safest ways to travel. The odds of a plane crashing are only about one in a million and obviously they're much less if you use an airline with a good safety record. It's very unlikely that your plane will crash, but even if it does you'll probably be fine, because 95% of people in plane crashes survive. If you sit at the back of the plane or over the wing, near the exit, your chances get even better. So, if you're worried about getting on that plane, don't be, because you'll almost certainly survive the journey. You're more likely to have an accident in the car going to the airport – your chances of having a road accident are 1 in 8,000. So the safest way to travel is to take a train to the airport and then fly.

More good news is that you have quite a good chance of living to be 100, especially if you don't worry too much. According to a recent report, in richer countries of the world, women who are 25 now have a 1 in 4 chance of reaching their 100th birthday – men of 25 only have a 1 in 6 chance, not quite so good. But the chances are getting better all the time, so a girl born now has a 1 in 3 chance of living to 100 and a boy has a 1 in 4 chance. Of course, this depends on what country you're in. In some countries like Japan the chances are even higher and modern medicine may well make the chances higher still during your lifetime.

So, that's the good news. You probably won't die in a plane crash and you, or at least your children, could live to be 100. But the bad news is, you almost certainly won't win the lottery. The chances of winning a big prize in the lottery are only about 1 in 18 million – so that's extremely unlikely.

2.27

JOE So, when are you off?

MARTHA Monday of next week.

J Exciting.

M Sure is – this time next week I'll be settling into my accommodation.

J So, I mean, what is it you'll be doing? From what I understand ... well, you're going down there to keep your eye on some penguins. Is that it?

M Well, I suppose that's one way of looking at it!

J Yeah, but, you know, what will you be doing on a daily basis?

M Well, I'm not entirely sure, but I think I'll be doing similar things every day. It's more or less a question of observing the penguins – counting them, taking photos, checking tags on some of them – that kind of thing.

J OK – so, just kind of standing around in the cold?

M Yes, well, that's the downside of the job. That and the attacks.

J What? From polar bears?

M Erm ... at the South Pole? No, from penguins.

J You mean those sweet little birds attack you?

M Oh yes, they're full of attitude – if you get too close.

J And will they be waiting for you when you get there?

M Well, of course – they know I'm coming.

J Very funny. So, there they are – Mr and Mrs Penguin about to play happy families and ...?

M Yeah, so, by the time I arrive the penguins will already have got into pairs and then, by the middle of November, each pair of penguins will have laid two eggs.

J You just watch them sit on their eggs? That must be ... 'really interesting'.

M I'm sure they'll do something to keep me entertained.

J And then?

M Well, by the end of December, most of the chicks will have arrived and then after about three weeks we put metal tags on them.

J Unless you get attacked by those nasty, aggressive parents.

M We have our methods of defence.

J Sounds scary. OK, this is all very interesting, but, I mean, why? Why's it useful to know what these penguins do? It sounds like they kind of do the same old thing year after year.

M Nothing wrong with predictable – we scientists like that – but sometimes there can be changes, like maybe there are fewer chicks or maybe the parents aren't able to feed the chicks and not as many survive. This can tell us a lot about what's happening in the Antarctic ecosystem.

J Like what exactly?

M Ah, I'm a scientist – I never jump to easy conclusions.

J That's no fun.

M But, in a general sense, if there are changes in the number of penguins or changes in their behaviour, this can tell us that there has been a change in the climate of some sort. It's part of the evidence – the bigger picture, if you like. The work I'll be doing is just a small part in a big project that's been going on for some time. But because Antarctica is such an unspoilt environment the changes that take place there can tell us a lot about what's happening on the rest of the planet.

J And you get to hang out with those cute little penguins.

M Yeah, well ... it's just one big penguin party.

J Sounds pretty cool to me.

2.30 PART 1

BECKY Phil? We're closing.

PHIL Nearly done. I'm just finishing this chapter. That's it – done. See you tomorrow, then. What's wrong, Sam?

SAM The usual. Not enough money coming in. I need to do something to get more customers.

P Hmm. You could stay open longer? In the evenings? You could serve meals. I'd eat here.

B You practically live here anyway. But it's an idea, why not?

S It'd be a long day.

B You could do just Friday and Saturday to start with.

S Hmm, I'd need to hire a cook. Set up the kitchen properly. On the other hand, the extra money would be good ... I don't know.

B Anyway, time to go. Are you ready, Phil?

P Yeah, coming. Bye Sam.

S See you.

P Umm ... that friend of yours ... curly hair ...

B Tessa?

P Tessa. Is she at college with you?

B Yeah.

P OK.

B Bye Phil.

2.31 PART 2

EMMA Bad day?

SAM The café. We're not making enough money.

E Come on, you're doing fine. Mid-week, it's bound to be slow.

S I'm just worried. We've put all our money in this. I don't want to lose it.

E No, of course you don't. I can see that.

S Phil had an idea today.

E Yeah?

S Stay open Friday and Saturday evenings and serve food.

E Interesting.

S Of course, the trouble is we'd have to invest even more money – money that we haven't got.

E Yes, but the good thing about it is, it might be a way to get more business.

S Well, we'd need to put in a proper kitchen, and that'll probably cost a fortune. And we'll have to hire someone to cook. People do often ask if we're open in the evening, so there is a demand ... I don't know, it's a big risk ...

E I think it's a lovely idea. I know the perfect person to do the cooking.

S Who?

E Me.

S You? Seriously?

E Why not? Promise I won't charge much!

► 2.36 PART 3

EMMA And maybe we could do a few other things.

SAM Such as?

E Well, how about entertainment? We could have live music, get locals to play at the weekend.

S Hmm, that might be worth a try ... if they didn't cost too much. In fact, we can probably get some students to do it for free.

E No!

S If we give them some food or something.

E Sam! You should pay them. That's not fair!

S Hmm, maybe you're right.

E Or display paintings or photos.

S That's not a bad idea. Becky could help with that ... or Tessa.

E I know what you're thinking.

S What?

E Look, if you want to use Tessa's photos you should pay her for them. What I mean is, that she can display them and we can sell them.

S Hmm ...

E Or readings. Have poetry readings.

S Hmm, that's a possibility ... I know who you're thinking of BOTH Phillip!

S And he'd definitely do it for free.

E [sighs]

S What?

More rain is expected, so river levels may rise further over the next few days and there is a chance that larger towns will be affected ...

2

Temperatures around Boston dropped to -25°. Drivers on the main Boston to New York highway had to abandon their vehicles and several small towns were entirely cut off. Residents were warned not to go out unless absolutely necessary. Temperatures are likely to remain below -20° at least until the weekend, with further heavy snow expected. ...

3

March is normally one of the wettest months in the region, but this year's rainfall was the lowest ever recorded, with only three days of rain in some parts of the country. Emergency supplies of water were brought into areas most badly affected. According to a government statement, if the dry weather continues the rice harvest could be severely threatened.

Winds of over 150 kilometres an hour are expected to strike the coast on Tuesday evening, and residents in coastal areas have been advised to leave. Centres have been set up in towns further inland to provide food and shelter for families who were forced to abandon their homes.

DI Because I was travelling on my own, I decided to book myself on a coach tour. I thought it'd be fun and, you know, it would be easy to meet people and hang out with them in the evenings. Well, that was true – I made friends quite easily. But the tour itself ... well, I'd never do it like that again – not ever. The problem is the people organising these tours try to include too much in the timetable. It's madness. Some days you have to be up, packed and ready to go by about 7.30am. And all the time they'd say, 'Remember to do this, remember to be back at such-and-such a time.' I mean, I was on holiday – this felt like being in the army! And they never allowed enough time to visit places. Like, I remember visiting this really beautiful palace just outside Vienna – the Schönbrunn Palace, it's called. In the gardens they have this really cool maze – you know, where they plant a whole lot of trees and hedges and it feels like you're getting lost. Anyway, we were all having a great time in the maze, but no, we had to get on the bus and go to the next thing. Before arriving in Rome, I became friendly with a woman, Sue – she was travelling alone too. We decided to leave the tour – didn't care about the money – and we found our own hotel to stay in. It was just a small place near a market. Every morning when I woke up I could hear the sellers setting up their market stalls. So Sue and I spent a week in Rome and then went on to Florence and Venice. Visiting these cities was a real highlight. And one of the reasons why it was great to do things in our own time. It was like getting out of school.

BERNIE I worked in London over the winter months and then I got together with three other mates and we bought this van from a South African couple and we took off together to travel around Europe. We had a great time and there were just a couple of times when we sort of disagreed about what we'd do. The only thing is finding your way round these European cities and getting from one place to another; it's ... well, it's a bit of a nightmare really. I mean, we had guidebooks and maps and things, but often what you read about didn't really match reality. And there are just so many cars and so many people. Driving in Paris was really hard work. It was the first really big city we went to. On the second day there, we were driving down a road and I noticed all these people waving their arms at us. We were driving on the wrong side of the road! It was difficult to get used to that. We were only there for three days and we didn't really know where to begin. We went to the Louvre to see the Mona Lisa and all that. But the painting's in this room and there were all these people there with their phones taking a photo – without looking at the painting. And, actually, I couldn't really see it at all. Sometimes I'd see other tourists on some kind of tour and it all looked nice and organised for them, so I guess you get to see a bit more that way and you don't waste a whole lot of time trying to work things out. Next time I go away I might try going on a tour of some kind.

ANNIE Last year we wanted to get away for a couple of weeks so we decided to go trekking in the forests of Malaysia. We thought it would be cheaper to catch a train to the airport rather than go by taxi. But we were a bit upset to discover that the trains weren't running on time. We turned up at the check-in desk very late and just managed to catch our flight. The flight took 17 hours because we stopped over in Dubai for a couple of hours. By the time we got there we were exhausted and not really in the mood for trekking.

INTERVIEWER With us this week is Professor William Barnett, who is a specialist in dying languages. Professor Barnett, first of all, how many languages are there in the world? It must be more than the number of countries in the world?

PROFESSOR Oh yes, much more. There are about 200 independent countries in the world but we think there are around 7,000 different languages.

I 7,000?

P Yes, more or less. We don't know exactly, because there may well be languages in areas like the Amazon that we haven't even discovered yet. In fact we only have detailed knowledge of about 15% of the world's languages.

I And some of these are very widely spoken.

P Yes, that's right. Spanish, for example, is spoken by over 400 million people as a first language, English has about 500 million native speakers, Arabic has about 300 million. And the language with the most native speakers is Mandarin Chinese. It's spoken by over 900 million people; that's 14% of the world's population. So these languages are very big, and they're doing fine. In general, the languages that are widely spoken are increasing while the languages that are spoken by smaller groups of people are declining.

I And is this something to worry about?

P It certainly is, yes. The number of languages in the world is decreasing very, very quickly, roughly one language every two weeks – that means that about 30 languages are lost every year. The situation is deteriorating because of globalisation – people have more contact with each other, and they start to speak English or Spanish or Chinese instead of their own language, and their own language dies out. We think that over the next 100 years about half of the world's spoken languages will die out. That means 3,500 languages will disappear completely in just a hundred years.

I Yes, that's serious. Is there anything we can do about it?

P Well, one thing we can do is record the languages and find out more about them. Most 'small' languages are spoken in certain regions of the world – we call these 'language hotspots'. These are areas which have a lot of different languages but each language is spoken by very few people. In one small part of Northern Australia, for example, there are around 135 different tribal languages, but they're all in danger of disappearing. So we're focusing on areas like these, and we're writing the languages down and recording the voices of the last remaining speakers. So it may not be possible to revive the language, but at least we can try and preserve it for future generations.

► 2.54

INTERVIEWER Professor Barnett, your job is to try to preserve endangered languages. Does it really matter if small languages die out and bigger languages take over? Why is it so important?

PROFESSOR Well yes, it does matter, it matters very much. First of all, of course it matters to the people who speak that language. Your language is part of your identity. Imagine if English died out and no one spoke it any more, how would you feel?

I OK, that's on a personal level. But what about for the wider world? Is it really important?

P Well, yes. If we lose a language, we're losing a part of human culture, there's all that knowledge that the language contains. It's like losing a painting or a building. Every language has its own way of seeing the world.

I How do you mean? Could you give an example of that?

P Well, one example, it's very well known, is a language called Inupiaq, it's spoken in northern Canada. Now they have over 100 different ways to describe sea ice. It's unique to that language, you couldn't translate that into English. And you can find examples like this in every language – every language has a different way of looking at the world.

I OK, I can see that, but isn't it a good idea if everyone learns a global language, say English or Spanish or Chinese, or whatever? Then they can talk to other people. That's what language is for, surely?

P Yes, of course it's a good idea, but that's not the point. People often think you have to give up your own 'small' language to learn a 'big' language, and in the past that often happened, but in fact you don't have to do that. You can keep your language and learn the big language – in other words, teach children to be bilingual.

I So, do you think it's really possible to stop languages from dying out?

P Yes, I think it is if we want to enough, and it's already being done by people all around the world. One important thing we can do is change attitudes, especially in children, make them feel proud of their own language, because unless children want to speak their own language, the language dies. And another thing is we can use technology, and this is quite new. We can record people speaking the language, and we can create apps so kids can practise the language, for example. I think that's really important because it gives a feeling that the language is something modern and fun, and something for young people to learn.

EMMA So, if we leave late afternoon on Friday ...

SAM I need to check with Becky though.

E Do you think it'll be a problem?

S Well, it's asking quite a lot.

E She knows what to do, doesn't she?

S Yeah, but it means she'll have to look after the café for a day and a half by herself. Open up, set things up, deal with the cash, clean up – everything.

E True.

S That doesn't seem very fair – she has only just started. Becky?

BECKY Yeah?

E Do you mind if we ask you a favour?

B Of course not. What is it?

S Feel free to say no, but we – that is, Emma and I – we were hoping to get away ... on Friday afternoon ... for the weekend.

B Oh, lovely! Where?

S Paris, actually.

B Fantastic.

S So we were wondering ...

B Do you want me to look after the café?

E Would you?

B Of course. I can close up on Friday and sort everything out on Saturday. Just tell me what you need me to do.

S Are you sure?

B Of course. I'm happy to help.

S Thanks. That's really nice of you.

E Yes, thanks, Becky. It's just ... Sam hasn't had a weekend off for more than nine months.

B My pleasure – it's about time you two had a break together. And I know how everything works now – it's no trouble at all.

E We really appreciate it.

B And if I don't know what to do I can always ask Phil. Can't I, Phil?

PHIL What's that?

B You know all about the café.

P Do I?

S Don't worry, JK. Go back to your book.

E Yes, make us all famous.

S I really am very grateful.

B It's not a problem.

B Fantastic.

S So we were wondering ...

B Do you want me to look after the café?

B Of course. I can close up on Friday and sort everything out Saturday. Just tell me what you need me to do.

BECKY Hi there.

TESSA Hi. Just returning your notes.

PHIL Great!

T Great?

P Yes.

T Great what?

P I've just had this great idea. For the story.

B Great!

T So ... um ... What is it you're writing?

P A science fiction novel.

T Oh. I'm quite into science fiction.

P Oh. Really?

T You must tell me about it – I mean, your story ... your ideas. One day.

P Oh right. Yeah. Sure. One day. Love to.

B So ... my notes.

T Oh sorry. Thanks for the loan.

B No problem.

T Hey, I was thinking. You know this project – photographing bridges. We should probably make a start soon. I know somewhere great we could go.

B Good idea. When were you thinking?

T How about this weekend?

B Sorry, I can't. I've just told Sam I'd look after the café.

T No problem – how about the weekend after then?

B It's a date.

T Do you want a hand on Saturday?

B Here?

T Yeah. I could help clear tables and ... things like that.

B Great, thanks. That's really kind of you.

T I'm more than happy to help out.

B And if things are a bit slow ...

T What?

B Phil can tell you all about his book.

ALEX So where did you go?

KIRSTEN We went camping in the Grand Canyon.

It was amazing, a real experience. But before we drove through the Mojave Desert – that's a big salt desert, just salt for miles and miles.

A Wow, amazing.

K And we saw cowboys, didn't we, John? Where was that?

JOHN I don't know, some town near there. It was like a cowboy show, they had a shootout.

A You mean like a gun fight? For show?

K Yeah, that's right. Then we stopped for something to eat, and we were really lucky cos it was getting late and we had nowhere to stay, but the owner of the restaurant was really nice, wasn't he?

J He let us camp behind the restaurant.

K Yeah, the people were really friendly, weren't they?

J Yeah. It wasn't very comfortable, though.

A Why not?

K We couldn't blow up the airbed. It had a hole in it.

J So we slept on the ground. Really uncomfortable.

K Anyway, the next day we actually saw the Grand Canyon.

A Oh, that must be incredible.

K It is. It's breathtaking. I've never seen anything like it.

A Did you walk through it, or what?

K No, we just drove round it. Round the south rim, that's where the best views are. And we camped there too.

J We were lucky to find a place. It was peak season.

K Yeah. So, anyway, then we watched the sunset over the Grand Canyon. Pretty amazing. And the next day we got up at 4.45 and saw the sunrise. A 4.45!

J Oh, it was worth it. It looks completely different at dawn. Um, what else did we do?

K We saw a condor.

J Oh yes, they're really rare apparently. Only 30 birds left. Really impressive birds.

A Mm, sounds great.

K And then we went on to Las Vegas.

A Wow, Las Vegas? Hope you didn't lose all your money!

Unit 7

► 3.6

A So what exactly is a smart city?

B Well, it can be all kinds of different things, but there are two basic ideas. One is that the city uses technology to improve the quality of life of the local residents, so that they can live more slowly and with less stress. And the second one is that the city itself reacts to problems, rather like a living person would.

A Can you give me some examples?

B Yes, London is a good example. They have a system where they monitor cars driving into the centre and automatically charge the driver for the time the car spends there. So it cuts down traffic congestion and pollution, but it also means the driver doesn't have to stop and buy a ticket or look for money – so it saves time, too. And to use the public transport system you just need a single card and you can go everywhere with it. So you don't need to spend time queuing for tickets. Or in Dublin, in Ireland, they have a system which monitors traffic congestion, so drivers can avoid streets with traffic jams, and it also tells drivers where they can find a free parking space. Apparently 30% of traffic congestion in most cities is caused by people looking for parking spaces, so that's a huge saving in time and money.

A So the main point of smart cities is to improve the environment?

B Yes, but it can take many different forms, it's not just about traffic congestion. For example, there's a new city in the UAE called Masdar. It's in the middle of the desert and the whole city is powered by solar panels, and public transport is electric. So it's a 100% sustainable city – it uses zero energy and there's no air pollution. Or there's another new city in Korea called Songdo, which is planned around a central park. So from all the residential areas there's a fifteen-minute walk across the park to get to work and people can also use the park in their lunch break. I read a report recently that said that green spaces in cities really improve people's mental health, so the park sounds like a great idea.

A So it's not just about the environment. It's about urban development in general?

B Yes, exactly

A So do you think this is how cities will be in the future?

B Oh I'm quite sure of it. The technology is there already. We're all connected now on the internet, so the next step is to connect the people with the city – and it's already happening very quickly.

DANIELA I think it's a good idea to make cities better places to live because a lot of cities have developed on a kind of American model. In other words, the city centre is taken over by big companies so there are hardly any shops or people living there. Instead, most people live in big high-rise blocks around the edge of the city and they go to big shopping centres in their cars. So it's really good to change that balance and make the city centre a place for people to live. I live in Munich, in Germany, and in a number of ways I think it is a 'smart city', because it's been developed to suit the people who live there. The centre's a pedestrian zone, closed off to traffic, people cycle everywhere, and there are plenty of good cafés and parks and places to sit outside. So you can wander through the city and take your time, and it's nice and quiet. Also, there's a very good public transport system, so people don't need their cars as much.

RICHARD I don't think you have to design a city to make it a nice place to live. I live in Bangkok, the capital of Thailand, and it certainly isn't a planned city – it's just grown naturally. In some ways it's quite a chaotic city, there are cars everywhere, lots of traffic jams, a lot of noise, and there are very few green spaces where you can sit, so if you want a bit of peace and quiet, forget it! But I love living here. It's so full of life and there are people everywhere. In the street where I live, there are lots of ordinary apartments plus a few hotels, there's a very good vegetable market, there are quite a few restaurants, and there are people selling things in the street. So there's everything you need, plus lots of traffic, of course. So it certainly isn't a 'smart city', but it's very exciting to live here!

ANTONIA As with most things in life, I started small. Not long after I bought this apartment, I suddenly decided that the cabinet in the kitchen was ugly. It was modern and beige and I couldn't stand it. A few days later, I found this absolutely gorgeous, old, wooden cabinet from the 1920s in a second-hand shop. I pulled out the original cabinet and replaced it with the one I found. And then everything looked wrong. I also discovered that the original fireplace and chimney were covered up and underneath there were these lovely, old red bricks. The cover had to come off. Then the paint work looked just awful ... and so it went on. Now, I've got a lovely home-style kitchen. I'm really satisfied with that. But I wasn't at all satisfied with the layout of the dining room and the sitting room. They were two very small rooms. And I thought – just imagine – knock down the dividing wall and I could have this lovely open living space. So, one weekend, I got busy and the wall came down! I've still got some work to do there. Then there's the bedroom ... I haven't had time yet ... and the bathroom needs major attention. OK – I admit it – I'm addicted to renovation. I can't help myself. I love doing these things myself. Getting it done by a professional isn't nearly as much fun. But, hey, there are lots of worse things to be addicted to and my apartment's looking better and better with every day!

ROB You see, under our house, there was a kind of cellar and a garage. And there was also a small passage between the two. They're the kind of places where we keep things we no longer use. But I suddenly had this great idea. What if I knocked down a few walls and made the cellar and the garage one big area – a kind of basement that the kids could use as their space. I got a friend of mine who's an engineer to have a look and make sure it was possible – I mean, I didn't want the house to fall down! And he said, sure, no problem. And I've helped a lot of friends and family do this kind of thing in the past – like, I've got a pretty good idea about what to do. So, I had this great weekend where I knocked down the walls – I loved that – you can really see the potential – immediately. Problem is – once you knock something down, you kind of have to build a few things in their place, so it doesn't look like a worksite. But, well, things have been busy at work and at weekends there are lots of things to do with the kids – sports matches and stuff like that. I mean, I fully intend to finish it all off. That's what I keep promising my wife. But she thinks I've got a 'commitment problem'. You know, I'm not committed to finishing off the renovation. Maybe she's right – but these things aren't as easy as they look. I suppose I could have it done by a professional – but that's expensive. I just say that it's a 'work in progress'. It'll get there. Eventually.

▶ 3.12 PART 1

TESSA This is a really good angle.

BECKY Let's have a look. Oh that's great. We can use that one in the competition.

T What competition?

B Didn't you get the email?

T I don't think so. I don't remember.

B It's called 'London architecture in photographs'. It's a free competition. The college said they'll enter our bridge photos.

T I'm not sure I can be bothered. I don't really see the point.

B Well, the first prize is £500.

T OK, that's different! Let's take some more.

B Oh! I completely forgot the time – I've got to go. I'm meeting Tom at 12.00.

T Why don't you call him? Tell him you'll be late.

B I can't. We're meeting the estate agent.

T Estate agent?

B Yeah, we're looking at flats. You know, we want to rent a flat. For after we're married.

T Oh right. You'd better go then.

B Yeah. See you later.

T Bye. Good luck.

▶ 3.15 PART 2

BECKY Hi. So sorry I'm late. I was taking photos with Tessa.

TOM That's OK. This is Katie West. She's from the estate agent's.

B Hi, lovely to meet you. I'm Becky.

KATIE Very nice to meet you, Becky. Good. So I'll show you the first flat. We've had a lot of interest in this already. As you can see, it's in a great location, right by the shops, close to the station. Follow me. . .

B Great.

K Here it is. It's a lovely flat for two people. Not too big. Just right for the two of you.

T Two rooms and a kitchen?

K Yes, two rooms, a kitchen – and a bathroom.

T OK.

K So here's the living room. Quite a good-sized room. And a nice view of the street ... And here's the second room. It's a bit smaller, but it's perfect as a bedroom. Nice and quiet in here – cosy ... And here's the kitchen. Quite practical and er ... yeah, has everything you need for a kitchen. It's very convenient. I'll leave you to it.

T Well, I can see why the price is low.

B Tiny.

T Yeah, and too noisy. Right on the main road.

B Yeah. And it smells all damp. Horrible.

T Yes, awful.

B Oh dear.

T Well, let's see what the next one's like.

K So, what do you think?

T Yeah, um, it's nice.

B It's lovely! But maybe not quite what we're looking for.

K OK.

▶ 3.16 PART 3

KATIE This one's just come on the market. I think you might like this one better. Have a look round, see what you think.

BECKY Thank you. This is a lovely flat. But can we afford it?

TOM Well, with my promotion ... I have got a bit more money now.

B It really is lovely.

T Look, this could be a kind of sitting area by the window ...

B Yeah, that's a great idea. And we could have some plants and some bookshelves, or a big lamp.

T Mm, that would work well.

B And this would make a great dining area, we could have a table and some interesting lights.

T Yeah, and I can imagine a big TV right here.

B [laughs]

K So, what do you think?

T Yeah ... it's a brilliant flat, um ...

K Well, we have had one other enquiry this morning. But if you're definitely interested ...

T We'll think about it. Can I let you know this afternoon?

K Of course, no problem.

▶ 3.18

RYAN I think it's a really bad idea. What do we need a shopping mall for? I mean, we've got a local shop and that sells quite a good range of things – anything you need in an emergency. There's a supermarket only about five kilometres away and it's so easy to get there by bus. A mall's going to ruin this neighbourhood. Why can't they create a nice green living space instead?

SUSIE I think it's great. It's going to be really convenient to have plenty of shops nearby. If I have to do anything like, I don't know – go to the supermarket or get my hair cut or something – I have to go into town and it takes such a long time in the traffic. Can't wait for them to build the mall – it's exciting.

CAROL Well, I am looking forward to having a range of shops nearby. There aren't enough in this part of town. But I know this will change the neighbourhood. It'll make it a lot busier and noisier. And there'll be so much traffic. But I guess that's the price you pay for convenience.

DUNCAN The idea of a mall doesn't particularly bother me, but I guess there'll be a large number of the same old shops – very boring. Everything's part of a chain these days. I wouldn't mind so much if they had a few more interesting shops in the mall – you know, something like an independent music shop or something. But I know that won't happen.

MILES Well, it's about time. That local shop we have is useless. They never order enough of anything and they're always running out of milk and bread and basic things like that. But a new supermarket and lots of shops ... that's progress. It'll be great.

MARION It's going to completely change the community. I mean, a number of families live in this part of town and we have young children. Apart from the traffic, we'll have so many people passing through our streets ... I really don't know how safe it'll be to live here. It's just ... well, I'm thinking about my children. I want them to be safe.

MICHAEL Welcome to this week's edition of The Money Pool. Today, we've invited personal finance expert Mia Radkin on the show to answer questions about your money. Hi Mia.

MIA Hello Michael.

MIC And welcome.

MIA Thank you.

MIC The number is 0800 666961. Give us a call now with your personal finance question, but I believe we already have Jacob on the line.

JACOB Hello.

MIA Hello Jacob.

MIC So, Jacob, you've got a question about savings goals, is that right?

J Yeah, that's right. My income's OK and I more or less manage to keep up with my bills and everything, but I never seem to get much ahead. I'd like to start saving for a home, but it feels like a bit of a waste of time.

MIA OK, Jacob, I noticed that you said you 'more or less' keep up with your bills. What's your biggest monthly bill?

J Well, probably my credit card.

MIA Hmm ... thought so.

J But I always pay at least the minimum amount each month – sometimes a bit more.

MIA Do you mind my asking, Jacob, how much do you owe on your credit card?

J Well, it's about £15,000.

MIA And I imagine you're paying about 18% interest.

J Yeah, about that.

MIA OK, here's what I'd suggest you do. Jacob, find another credit card provider who will let you transfer your balance to them and pay a very low interest rate. If you transfer your balance, you'll probably pay as little as 3%. And then start paying off that debt as fast as you can. The first step to serious saving is to get out of debt.

J Right.

MIA And then I'd like you to do something else. Get a pair of scissors and cut up your new credit card.

J You mean get rid of it?

MIA That's right, so you don't use it.

J But if I did that I wouldn't be able to afford things like holidays and going out for dinner.

MIA Well, no. Looks like you might have to make some lifestyle changes too, Jacob. But the first step is to manage your debt – sensibly. OK?

J Yeah, good point. Thanks.

MIC Thank you for calling us, Jacob. So, now we go to Sophie. Sounds like she's got money to spare. Is that right, Sophie?

SOPHIE Hello?

MIC Yes, hello Sophie, you're on air now.

MIA How can I help Sophie?

S Well, I just want a bit of advice, really. I've been putting aside money for the past five years or so. I've got savings of just over £17,500 in a long-term interest account and it's earning about 2.5%. But I worry if this is the best place for it. Should I be investing the money somewhere else?

MIA So, tell me, Sophie. Have you got debts?

S Not really. Well, just my student loan, but money gets taken out of my salary for that. It's automatic; sort of like paying tax.

MIA But you're still paying interest on that loan. If I were you, I'd use the money to pay off your student loan.

S But if I did that, I wouldn't have any spare money, you know, for an emergency.

MIA £17,500 – what kind of emergency are you expecting?!

S Yes, I see.

MIA Look, it sounds to me like you're a pretty sensible person when it comes to money. And I always say before you worry about investment, free yourself from debt.

S Actually, I think my student loan is now about £16,000. If I pay it off, I'll be debt free.

MIA And that's a very good thing to be.

3.21

SPEAKER 1 Well, I think if I'd found it in the street, I would have posted the letter. It seems quite clear to me. Obviously the person should have been more careful, but it wasn't addressed to me, so it would have been quite wrong to open it. It would have been theft; it doesn't matter what was in it. If I'd found it in a café, I would have given it to one of the staff to keep for Mr Fingham.

SPEAKER 2 I probably would have opened it to check that there really were tickets inside, but then I would have posted it to Mr Fingham. I'm sure the Closing Ceremony was wonderful, but if I'd used the tickets I would have felt guilty, so I wouldn't have enjoyed it. If I'd wanted to go, I would have bought my own tickets.

SPEAKER 3 If I'd found this letter, I certainly wouldn't have just posted it. First, I would have looked at it to see what it was, and I think I would have opened it to see if there really were tickets inside, just out of curiosity. Then I would have thought about it. Maybe I would have used the tickets myself, I don't know. I would have been tempted, certainly. Maybe I'm just not a very honest person – but I would have thought, 'Well, it wasn't my mistake; he shouldn't have dropped the letter. So tough luck.'

SPEAKER 4 If I'd seen a letter like this I probably wouldn't have picked it up; I would have just walked on past and left it for someone else. It's better to mind your own business – you never know what you might find if you pick something up in the street. You hear so many stories about letter bombs these days. I think I would have been afraid to touch it.

3.25

A Did you hear about the trial of that company director?

B Oh, you mean the one who was accused of bribery. I knew he'd been arrested. What happened?

A It was incredible. He appeared in court yesterday and five witnesses all gave evidence. They all said he had asked them for bribes.

B Wow. So, what was the verdict? Was he found guilty?

A No, the jury said he was not guilty.

B Hmm. What did the judge say?

A Nothing. She didn't sentence him. She let him go free.

B Hmm. That's a bit odd, isn't it?

3.28 PART 1

TOM The estate agent just called me back.

BECKY And?

TOM We didn't get the flat. We just missed it. Someone came in and signed a contract about an hour ago.

B Oh no. So we just missed it?

T Afraid so.

B That's really disappointing.

T I know. I did try ringing earlier, but kept getting the estate agent's voice mail.

B Don't worry. It's not your fault – we're just unlucky.

T Yeah, I'll go and see what else they've got a bit later on.

B Good idea. I'm sure there'll be plenty of other places. We'll find somewhere.

T Of course we will.

B Bye.

3.29 PART 2

SAM I'm just popping out for an hour.

BECKY Sure.

S What's up?

B Oh, flat hunting – you know ...

S Yeah, it's never easy. Don't give up hope – you'll find something.

B Yeah. You look very smart! What's the big occasion?

S The bank.

B Oh ... scary!

S Well, if I want to make improvements to the kitchen ...

B Yeah, that's going to be expensive.

S Yeah. We need a new cooker, a bigger fridge – that sort of thing.

B Well, the evening meals have been popular though, haven't they?

S Yeah, better than I thought.

B Emma's a great cook.

S Well, I always knew that!

B And it's good to make changes.

S I hope the bank agrees.

B I'm sure they will. Good luck.

S Thanks!

3.31 PART 3

TOM Sam!

SAM Hi Tom!

T Hi Sam. Escaped for a few minutes?

S I've just been to the bank.

T Oh yeah?

S To see about a loan to improve the kitchen.

T Oh right. How did it go?

S I don't really know. You know banks ... they never say much at first. And then they say no!

T Yeah, the same thing happened to me.

S At the bank?

T No, at the estate agent's. They weren't very helpful.

S Yeah, right, finding somewhere to live. It's really difficult, isn't it?

T Yeah, it is. Sorry. I've got to get back to work. Are you going this way?

S Yeah. Erm, Becky said it's been hard work.

T Yeah, we missed out on the perfect flat.

S Hmm, I know the feeling.

T Oh?

S It was just like that when I was looking for the café.

T But you found a good place. The café's great. And it's in a good location.

S In the end. Someone else got it first – then they changed their mind.

T Oh right.

S So you never know ...

T Well, I've learnt one thing.

S What's that?

T The next time we find the perfect place, I'll say yes straight away.

3.32 PART 4

KATIE Hello, Tom. It's Katie here from Barkers Estate Agents. Thanks for coming in earlier. Something interesting's just come up. Can you call me back on 249 4567?

TOM Hi, Katie? Katie – hi. Hi, it's Tom Gibson here. Yes, I just got your voice mail ...

3.34

PAUL Did you see that reality crime show on TV last night?

ZOE The one about the young woman using the old man's credit card to buy things for herself?

P Yeah. It made me really angry. It was like a lesson on how to commit a crime. You know, get friendly with the old person – get them to trust you and then offer to get a credit card for them. I mean, if you show people this stuff, then other people will just copy what that young woman did.

Z Do you think so? But it showed you'll get arrested in the end.

P That's only because the old man's niece happened to see the credit card statement and notice all those purchases for women's clothing.

Z Actually, what amazed me about that is the way the niece spoke to the young woman first. If it had been me, I'd have gone straight to the police.

P But I still think the whole programme was sort of saying it's OK to do this. Like, the interview with the young woman. She had all this make-up on, a beautiful dress – it was like she was some kind of star or something. I couldn't believe it!

Z That's true and they hardly spoke to the old man. Poor thing, he looked terrified by the whole experience of being filmed.

P Exactly and he really didn't want to be on TV. I thought the presenter was really pushy with him – she kept repeating the same question – 'but didn't you realise, didn't you realise?'

Z But he must have agreed to it all. They usually have to sign something for those TV programmes.

P I bet it was the niece who talked him into it. She seemed to enjoy being on TV, too. That's the problem with programmes like that – all these boring, ordinary people turn into 'famous people'. Well, for about five minutes, anyway.

Z But I guess you could say that the programme was like a warning to people. You know, telling them to be careful, who they trust with their money, credit cards, things like that.

P Hardly.

Z But the presenter did say that at the very end.

P Yeah, I suppose so. But the saddest thing of all – the old man still thought the young woman was a 'nice girl'.

Z And the presenter did point out that many thieves are very charming.

P But doesn't everyone know that?

Z Obviously not! If I were you, I wouldn't watch that show any more.

TOBY Well, I'm not sure I want electronics just stuck on my skin.

ROSIE I bet it's no different from putting on a plaster when you cut yourself.

T But plasters don't have electronics in them.

R It wouldn't worry me. There are other things to worry about.

T Like what?

R Well, what was it I was reading about the other day? Yeah, there's this laboratory where they're growing meat. Synthetic meat – I find that kind of scary.

T Oh, that. Yeah, there was that scientist who made his own hamburger and ate it online.

R Yuck!

T Now, I think that's a great idea. Grow your own meat – very cool.

R But it's not natural.

T Yes, it is. It's just not grown on a cow, that's all.

R But all these tiny pieces of meat that they have to push together just to make one burger.

T Nothing wrong with that.

R And the end result is something which costs £250,000. I mean, these scientists, who are sort of like Dr Frankenstein, how can they justify that?

T Well ... but they're bound to find cheaper ways to grow the meat. And what you may not realise is that it's much better for the environment.

R I don't see how it can be.

T I was reading about it ... And, to produce just 15 grams of meat – that's one-fifth – cows need about 100 grams of vegetables. I mean, that's a really, really inefficient use of energy.

R I'm sure it takes a lot of energy to make meat grow in the laboratory.

T Not as much. And what I didn't know was that about 30% of the Earth's surface is covered with crops that we grow just to feed animals for meat.

R Yeah, I know that ...

T So, if we can grow meat, we could use some of that land to grow crops for people.

BECKY What's all this about? What's the big secret?
TOM We've got to be somewhere, that's all.
B But where?
T Ah ... it's a surprise.
B Hmm, I'm not sure I like surprises.
T I'll be fine.
B I've no idea where we are. I've never seen this street before.
T Just wait and see.
B Where on earth are we going?
T Wait and see.
B Hang on ... I know where we are.
T Do you?
B Yeah. Is there another flat available around here?
T Follow me.

3.45 PART 2

BECKY But Tom ... this is the same flat.
TOM Welcome to our new home!
B Really?
T Step right this way ... What do you think?
B But didn't you say yesterday that we'd missed out?
T And we did.
B So what happened?
T The estate agent called me back – the other people changed their mind.
B Really? So it's ours if we want it?
T Um ... actually ... it is ours.
B What?
T I paid a deposit this afternoon.
B But, Tom, I thought we were going to talk about it first.
T Oh. Right. I sort of thought we had.
B Well, I suppose – in a way.
T And you were so disappointed when we missed out.
B Yes. Yes, I was.
T And I didn't want to miss out this time.
B But you could have said something.
T Sorry. I wanted it to be a surprise.
B Well, next time make sure you ask me ...
T Well?
B It's a lovely surprise.
T You're not too annoyed?
B No. In fact, not at all.
T You did say it was the perfect flat.
B And it is. I love this space ... And the view ... And the kitchen is so well designed ...
T Did you guess?
B In the car?
T Yeah.
B Well, I thought you were taking me to see a flat.
T But not this one?
B No, of course not.
T I thought about it a bit yesterday, you know, the different route ...
B I do love it. I can't wait to move in.
T We have to sign the lease first.
B Yes, of course.
T And ... oh ... but there's another document that we have to sign beforehand.
B Oh. What's that?
T Our marriage licence – that's all!

3.49

TOM What do you think?
BECKY But didn't you say yesterday that we'd missed out?
T And we did.

SPEAKER 1 I had really bad headaches, so I decided to go to a homeopathic doctor. You know, they give you these little white tablets which have a tiny amount of something which is actually poisonous. And I remember on my first visit, he spent an hour asking me questions to find out as much as he could about me, before he looked at what was wrong with me. He said the idea was to treat 'the whole person', not just the disease. I thought this was really good – my normal doctor is always in a hurry and you're lucky if he gives you more than ten minutes.

SPEAKER 2 A friend of mine had a very bad cough which wouldn't go away, so he tried a treatment called 'radionics'. The person treating you takes something that belongs to you, like a piece of clothing or something, and then turns some dials on this box. It looks a bit like a radio actually. And then they decide what's wrong with you. What a load of rubbish! I don't know how people can believe things like that.

SPEAKER 3 I had really bad pains in my knee. I tried all kinds of drugs and I even went to hospital, but nothing worked. I could walk, but I couldn't run or do sport. Then a friend recommended acupuncture. It's where they put needles into particular points or places on your body. I was a bit doubtful at first, but I tried it and the doctor put needles all round my knees. Since then I haven't had any problems at all – I can even go skiing again. I've no idea how it works, but it certainly worked for me.

SPEAKER 4 A friend of mine tried several times to give up smoking, but she always started again. Then someone recommended a doctor who used hypnosis. She told me about it, it was really interesting. She sat in a comfortable chair and he hypnotised her – he just counted to 20 and she fell into a deep sleep and when she woke up she didn't want to smoke any more. Obviously she doesn't remember what he said when she was under hypnosis, but I guess he must have told her that she didn't need to smoke. That was three months ago and she still doesn't want to smoke.

Unit 10

3.53

INTERVIEWER The story of Dan Cooper raises more questions than it answers. Today we talk to Bob Fernandez, who has written a new book on the disappearance. Bob, there are a lot of mysterious elements to this story. First of all, how did he get on the plane with a briefcase full of dynamite?

BOB Well, that's easy to answer. Remember, this was 1971 and they didn't have airport security the way they do now. Security checks came in much later, so there's no mystery there. But, of course, we have no idea whether he was really carrying dynamite – it might have just looked like dynamite.

I And who was he? Do we know that?

B We know that Dan Cooper wasn't his real name. That was easy to check and there were no Dan Coopers who'd gone missing. But who was he? No one knows. He knew a lot about planes and he also knew how to parachute, so he may have been a retired pilot or he may have had some job to do with aircraft. Certainly someone with inside knowledge. And he also knew the area where he jumped. One interesting thing is that several people claimed later that he survived and they knew him. For example, in 1982, a woman claimed that he was her husband, who'd just died. She said she'd found him in 1972 hiding in her garden with a broken foot and they'd fallen in love and got married. This was her story. But there was no way they could prove it.

I I suppose the big question is: could he have survived the jump? He jumped into a storm, at night, holding bags of dollar bills and he had to open a parachute. Is that possible?

B Well, we know that what he did was possible, because not long afterwards a stuntman repeated exactly what he'd done – successfully. And quite a few things suggest that he did land safely. For example, they never found either the body or the parachute and if you think the parachute was bright yellow and red, and they searched everywhere, that's quite something. You'd be able to see it from the air. So that suggests he might have landed and then hidden the parachute.

I One of the few clues we have is that in 1980 a boy found some of the money buried in a riverbank.

B Yes, this was one bag of Dan Cooper's money, so people thought that he might have drowned in the river. But they searched the river pretty carefully and they didn't find anything. And there are other explanations. For example, he might have lost some of the money when he landed and gone off with the rest. Or he might even have thrown it away to confuse the police and then crossed the border into Mexico. No one knows. The one thing we do know is the police never found him.

LOUISE Ever since I was a child, I've been fascinated with Africa. The thing that has always interested me most is the incredible wildlife – lions, elephants, gazelle, rhinos – I mean, there are just so many amazing animals. After I started work, I saved up money for a holiday in South Africa and went on a safari. It was fantastic, but it just wasn't enough. I remember thinking at the time, 'I wish I could stay longer.' I came back home and went back to work. I'd heard about conservation projects and the fact they often need volunteers – you know, people who go and help researchers – that kind of thing. So, I started saving, because I thought it would be great to go and volunteer for a year. It took me another six years to save up enough money to support myself for that year, but I managed to do it. My workplace lets people take leave without pay for up to six months. I should probably have done that, but I wanted to go for a full year, so I had to resign from my job.

TERRY I'm a computer technician and I used to work in the IT support department for a bank. I was there for about three years and in my final year I really began to hate the atmosphere in the team I worked in. I thought my boss wasn't a very good manager – and I felt I could have done a better job. If only I'd applied for his job when it became free, I thought I wasn't qualified enough, but I would have done a much better job than he did. Anyway, I realised there were a lot of people living in my area who needed help with computers and IT problems. And I also worked out that they'd prefer the technician to go to them at home rather than have to take it to a workshop to be fixed. So I decided to set up my own business and become my own boss. I gave up my job at the bank.

LOUISE I was really excited just before my departure. When I arrived, we stayed in a kind of hut, but there were five people sleeping in the same room and I found it a bit crowded. I wish I'd checked this before leaving, because I've heard that other conservation projects have better living conditions and I could have chosen a different project. The main part of my job was counting elephants. Sounds a bit boring, I know. But I loved it. And apart from the elephants, I saw all kinds of extraordinary wildlife. I also made some amazing new friends. It was a unique experience. I've been back now for three months and am having trouble finding a new job. I could have stayed on in Africa, but I didn't have enough money. If only I'd saved more before I left, I could have had two years there. Not to worry, I've had an amazing year and I've managed to make a dream come true. How many people can say that?

TERRY Things were quite hard to start and I wish I'd done a bit more market research before I gave up my job. For example, I found out that I got more calls at weekends, so, perhaps in the beginning, I could have worked part-time for the bank and started my business at weekends only. This would have helped my money situation. And the other thing – I should have checked out other companies doing this kind of work. I quickly found out that I wasn't charging enough, so I wasn't making enough money. Still, after two years, things are going quite well and I'm managing to make a decent living. I don't think this will make me a millionaire and getting set up was much harder than I'd thought it would be. I wish I'd done a course on starting a small business, but it's too late now! But I do have much more flexibility in my working life and, most important of all, I'm my own boss.

3.60 PART 1

TUTOR Oh hi, Tessa. I was just looking for you. Uh, can I have a quick word? It's something important. Let's go to my office.

TESSA Yeah.

BECKY I'll wait for you.

TU Don't look so worried. It's good news. We've had the results of the photo competition.

TE Oh yeah?

TU And you've won first prize. £500. Congratulations!

TE What?

TU Yes. Well done. We're very pleased for you. And it's excellent news for the college too.

TE I don't know what to say. I wasn't expecting this.

TU No, you deserved to win. I don't think you realise quite how good you are.

TE Well – no. I mean, yes, thank you.

3.61 PART 2

SAM So ... two things to celebrate today. First, Becky and Tom, you've found your dream flat.

BECKY Thanks to Tom making a quick decision.

TOM We almost didn't get it.

EMMA We hope you'll both be very happy in it.

B So what's the second thing?

S The second reason to celebrate ... as you've seen, business is going well. The meals have really been a success ... thanks to Emma and your wonderful cooking ... and to Phil, it was your idea to open late and serve meals. Brilliant! So, let's cut this cake.

B Hold on, there's something else we have to celebrate.

3.65 PART 3

BECKY Hold on, there's something else we have to celebrate. You know the photo competition? Our photos of the bridges? Well, Tessa won first prize.

EMMA That's brilliant!

SAM Yeah, great news.

E When did you find out?

TESSA I only heard this morning. I couldn't believe it, I was so surprised. First prize! I still can't get over it.

PHIL Well done, Tessa. I knew you'd win. You take such great photos.

S So that's three things to celebrate – the flat, the café and Tessa's prize.

E And you looking happy for a change – that's a fourth thing.

S OK. So can we eat this cake?

P Hang on a minute, before we start. I have got something to say ... I know you won't believe this, but ... I've finished my novel.

E That's great, Phil!

P I sent it off today. So, the coffee's on me.

B You can't afford to buy us coffee, you're not JK Rowling yet!

T You never know. Maybe one day? Well done, Phil. It's such a good story. And so original.

P Thanks, Tessa.

T I reckon you'll get some good news soon.

P Hope so.

T But you won't forget us when you're rich and famous?

P How could I?!

S Right, I'm going to cut this cake.

TOM Just a minute, before we start.

We've decided on a date for the wedding.

B Finally.

T Saturday the nineteenth of June ... invited!

S OK, any more good news, anyone? Now I am definitely going to cut this cake.

3.67

The Valley

It is a late afternoon in September. The valley in south-western France. The river between the steep, wooded hills. There is a rock, which sticks out into the river. He sits absolutely still. After a while he sees something in the water – a fish, perhaps, so, something hits the water and there is a splash. He puts his hand to his ear. It's blood. He falls forward into the river and into its muddy water.

3.68

I picked up a piece of wood lying near the place. My ear was bleeding heavily, but I ignore the pain. Quietly and carefully, behind Heidi. He was so busy looking through his binoculars that he did not notice I brought the stick down on the back of his head. He fell down and rolled a little further down the riverbank. I thought I had knocked him unconscious. I bent over him, he suddenly grabbed my hands around my throat, slowly squeezing out of me. The stick was still in my hand, last of my energy I brought it down on his head and let go of my throat immediately. In a sudden fit of anger, I hit him again and again until my anger left me, I realised I had gone mad. He was dead. I had foolishly lost my chance to answer to my questions. And all because of anger.

Heid's body was now at the bottom of the river. His face was in the water and the slow current of the river carried away a steady flow of his body along the riverbank, to a place under overhanging trees and low bushes hidden in the bushes. I need not have worried, and I knew that anyone out fishing or hunting would already be going home. The surface of the water was still, except for the occasional fish jumping. Far away, a church clock struck seven, a perfect autumn evening.

First, I had to hide the body. Then I had to find a safe place to return to the house. After all, it would not be safe for me to stay in the village where should I go? And then I had to find Heidi had come after me and who had found her.

In the pocket of his shorts there was a set of car keys – with a registration number on the keyring. Keys in my pocket. There was only one key. Heidi could have parked the car – outside, it might be useful later.

I rolled the body into the water, pushed under the riverbank and put some large stones on top of it to hold it under the water. I picked up a rifle and then set off for the village. It was dark by the time I reached the house.

Corpus Development of this publication has made use of the Cambridge English Corpus (CEC). The CEC is a computer database of contemporary spoken and written English, which currently stands at over one billion words. It includes British English, American English and other varieties of English. It also includes the Cambridge Learner Corpus, developed in collaboration with the University of Cambridge ESOL Examinations. Cambridge University Press has built up the CEC to provide evidence about language use that helps to produce better language teaching materials.

English Profile This product is informed by the English Vocabulary Profile, built as part of English Profile, a collaborative programme designed to enhance the learning, teaching and assessment of English worldwide. Its main funding partners are Cambridge University Press and Cambridge ESOL and its aim is to create a 'profile' for English linked to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). English Profile outcomes, such as the English Vocabulary Profile, will provide detailed information about the language that learners can be expected to demonstrate at each CEFR level, offering a clear benchmark for learners' proficiency. For more information, please visit www.englishprofile.org CALD The Cambridge Advanced Learner's Dictionary is the world's most widely used dictionary for learners of English. Including all the words and phrases that learners are likely to come across, it also has easy-to-understand definitions and example sentences to show how the word is used in context. The Cambridge Advanced Learner's Dictionary is available online at dictionary.cambridge.org. © Cambridge University Press, Third Edition, 2008 reproduced with permission.
